FREE TOLLS PLAN FOR OUR SHIPS IS DEAD

HOUSE AGAINST SUBSIDY

Which Is Likely to Seal the Fate of Lodge's Refund Compromise—Canadian Railways Accused.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—The supporters of free passage through the Panama Canal for American ships admit that the proposal is dead. The fate in the Senate of Senator Lodge's compromise measure providing for the collection of equal tolls from all ships and a refunding in the case of American ship owners is not so certain; but it is known that the House is irrevocably against this or any other measure that looks like a ship subsidy. That means that this country will accept Great Britain's interpretation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty and impose the same fees on American as on foreign vessels.

So confident of success are the supporters of the British contention to-night that even the opposition concedes that delay is now out of the question. Last night it was thought that the greatest effect of the speeches of Senators Burton and Root would be to cause a postponement of contentious matters until next session. But after to-day's debate, in which it was evident that the Senate was overwhelmingly in favor of a strict observance of the treaty, the opinion was expressed that the measure would be pushed forward to a vote.

Senator O'Gorman of New York, and Senator Lodge of Massachusetts to-day spoke vigorously in favor of this country's rights to exempt American ships from all levies. But it was the colloquies their speeches occasioned, more than anything else, that marked the change in the sentiment of the chamber in the last two days.

Mr. McCumber of North Dakota made an exhaustive review of the history of the existing treaty to show that in order to obtain its advantages this country willingly and with open eyes deeded away its rights of exemption, and his speech seemed to command the general support of the Senate.

The speech of Mr. O'Gorman was not far short of an attack upon Great Britain. He declared that her contentions now were without moral or legal foundation, and he endeavored to show that the whole controversy was an after thought. Opposition to American exemption, he urged, was a device of the transcontinental railroads to avoid dangerous water competition, and what the Senator said on that point agreed with representations made to the President and Secretary Knox earlier in the day by Representative Knowland of California.

"Not the slightest objection was made by Great Britain," said Mr. Knowland, at the White House, "until a committee of Canadian railway men took the question up with the British Government. There is little doubt that American transcontinental railroads prompted the move."

Senator Lodge, at the opening of the debate in the Senate to-day, declared the United States had retained full rights under the Hay-Pauncefote treaty to form its own policy toward American vessels, and he defended the provision for free tolls to American ships. He had been the member of the Foreign Relations Committee which reported the draft of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, he reminded the Senate.

Senator Lodge admitted that the question of the free passage of American ships probably would be sent finally to The Hague, but suggested that such a course could be avoided by the United State Government paying the tolls on American-owned ships. No foreign Government, he contended, could object to that.

"We never permit any foreign power to interfere with our disposition of our own money in connection with our own property," he said. "There is little doubt what the result would be of the matter should the question be submitted to The Hague."

"Don't you think we would lose?" asked Senator Smith of Georgia.

"Unquestionably," Mr. Lodge replied, and then referred to Canada.

"The whole cause of this action by Great Britain is Canada," he declared. "Canada is the only country situated as we are in reference to the canal. England is not worrying about her own merchant marine. Her shipping would not be affected by any arrangement we make for the tolls to American ships. The whole trouble lies with Canada; she fears that all the Canadian traffic will go through American ports if American ships receive free passage in the canal."

MONTREAL, July 17.—Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, to-day denied absolutely that his company had made any representations to Great Britain regarding the Panama Canal.

MUST NOT IGNORE PROTEST.

London Post Says England Should See That Rights Are Respected.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 17. — The Morning Post, in an editorial on the Panama Canal bill, after declaring that the construction of the canal by the United States was only rendered possible by the conclusion of the special convention between the United States and Great Britain, proceeds:

"It would seem that the protest put forward by this country is to be ignored. If that is the case, we hope the British Government will take effective steps to insure that adequate attention shall be paid to its protests.

"The United States is no more entitled than any other power to take action detrimental to British interests, and still less can such action be permitted in a case where she has definitely undertaken to ignore the rights of this country.

"There seems to be a disposition to imagine that the Government of this country made a protest against the Panama Canal bill merely as a matter of form. It is to be hoped, therefore, that the Foreign Secretary will make it clear that when the welfare of British shipping is concerned, he is determined to secure respect for plain treaty obligations.

"As for the suggestion that if Great Britain wanted to protest she should have moved sooner in the matter, it can hardly be seriously made. This country can hardly be blamed for assuming that the United States meant to keep her pledges. It was not until bills violating these pledges passed through the House of Representatives and seemed likely to pass the Senate that the British Government realized that it must take action in the defense of the interests of the mercantile marine."

The article concludes:

"If Congress persists in its attempt to disregard the solemn obligations of the recent treaty, Great Britain is bound to stand firm in defense of her rights and interests. If no solution of the controversy can be reached by friendly negotiations, the question must be referred to arbitration."

GOLD IN CAPE TOWN DOCKS.

Quartz Reef, 30 Feet High, Found as Excavations Are Carried On.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

CAPE TOWN, July 17.—It is reported that a gold-bearing quartz reef has been discovered in excavations at the docks in Cape Town. The reef is stated to be 30 feet high and runs toward Signal Hill.

The discoverer is a man named Tearnan, who was employed at the docks eighteen years ago and then suspected the presence of gold. He went north to the mines and recently returned.

Yesterday he observed that excavations were being made in order to erect posts. His early suspicions were recalled and he collected some soil, which had been removed. After a careful examination he handed to the Civil Commissioner a report to the effect that it contained gold.

Specimens were submitted to experts, who were in ignorance of their place of origin, and they stated they came from a mine in Transvaal.

WAR INSURANCE IN LONDON.

Lloyd's Again Dealing in Anglo-German Risks—Reason Unknown.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, July 18.—The Times says:

"For some reason, which the underwriters are quite unable to explain, several independent inquiries were yesterday made for terms for war insurance.

"To cover the risk of an outbreak of war between this country and Germany within the next twelve months six guineas ($30) per cent. is quoted.

"This risk had not been seen in the market for a considerable time past. Very likely it may not be seen again for some weeks. It is assumed that some of the inquiries were connected with Stock Exchange dealings."

FIRE CAPTAIN SHOCKED DEAD

Score of His Men Hurt Fighting Blaze in Atlantic City's City Hall.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—While fighting a fire in the tower of the City Hall to-night, Capt. Edward Barnett, 48 years old, commander of the Central Fire Station, was instantly killed; George Profatt, chief of the city Electric Bureau, was knocked unconscious, and a score of firemen shocked when a lantern in Barnett's hand completed a circuit and sent 5,700 volts from an arc light circuit coursing through his own body and into the metal trimmings of the wall.

The men who had been following their leader up the two-foot-wide steps into the narrow tower were hurled from their feet, escaping death only because the shock knocked them from the steps to a landing fifteen feet below. A crowd of 8,000 persons gathered in the street below watching the flames creep about around the clock and small windows, heard the screams of the injured men. Policemen used their clubs to keep back the crowd, while firemen from the central station next door rushed through the entrance and up the stairs.

They found Carl Cramer, George Messick, hosemen, lying stunned thirty feet below the roof, where, dazed from the shock, they had crawled to escape from the flames. Further up, on the first landing, they found Profatt himself almost unconscious, gripping the legs of Barnett endeavoring to drag him from the danger zone.

Dr. Carlos Bossart, one of the beach surgeons, was summoned from Kuehnle's Hotel, a square away. He worked over the body high up on the narrow platform for a half hour without arousing the least spark of life before he gave up the battle. The physician said later that Barnett had been killed instantly.

Barnett had been in active service for the past sixteen years. He became Captain through his work in big fires which swept the beach front on two occasions, and was rated as one of the best men in the department.

STRIKE RIOTERS SENTENCED.

Year Each for Man and Woman Leaders of New Bedford Crowd.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., July 17.—A riot of 1,000 strikers and sympathizers occurred to-day before the gates of the Butler mill. For more than an hour the strikers and their allies refused to allow operatives to enter the gates. During the disturbance three arrests were made, one of the offenders being a woman. A squad of reserves was sent from Police Headquarters to disperse the strikers.

Nearly every one participating in the demonstration either wore the emblem of the Industrial Workers of the World or a button bearing the likeness of Joseph J. Ettor, the imprisoned leader of the Lawrence strike.

Acting under instructions from Mayor Ashley, the Police Department made plans to-night to have a sufficient force on hand to-morrow morning to assure any who desire to go to work of safety and to prevent a repetition of to-day's outbreaks at the Butler mill. Prison sentences meted out to disturbers arrested to-day included a sentence of one year each for Antone Camara and Sophia O'Gara, for inciting to riot.

Representatives of six of the seven mills which are still running entered in to a verbal agreement with a committee of the striking weavers to-night not to put in force the grading system of payment for weaving. It was the announcement that this system was to be used for determining the pay of the weavers that precipitated the strike in the other mills, and the weavers feared that the seven mills now running, which are not affiliated with the New Bedford Cotton Manufacturers' Association, might establish the system.

TACKS IN WHIP USED ON GIRL.

Woman Arrested for Brutality to Child Left in Her Care.

Detectives Collynge and Lagerenne went to 232 East Eighty-first Street last night and arrested Annie Becker, who had rooms there, on the complaint of Agent Masass of the Children's Society of cruelty to children. The woman was locked up in the East 126th Street Station House.

The woman lived in three rooms at 250 East 124th Street until June 1 last, and with her boarded eight-year-old Bertha Ornels, whose mother is dead and whose father put her with Annie Becker to be cared for. Neighbors heard the child crying and ran in to find Annie Becker standing over her with a whip in which tacks were studded. The woman said she had beaten the child because she was bad.

The little girl was almost senseless and was hurried to Harlem Hospital, where she was kept until eighty-eight bruises on her body healed. Then she was sent to the Children's Society, where she now is. Annie Becker fled, but was traced to Eighty-first Street.

MARLBOROUGHS MAY NOW BE RECONCILED

Lady Londonderry's Action in Inviting Them Together Due to Suggestion by King and Queen.

THEIR BOYS A GREAT FACTOR

Love of the Duke and Duchess for Their Children Likely to Bring an End to Their Quarrel.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 17.—The fact that the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough were invited together to the royal dinner given at Londonderry House last night has naturally given rise to renewed reports that a reconciliation is in progress.

King George and Queen Mary are anxious to bring this about, as both the Duke and the Duchess are personally regarded with great favor by their Majesties, and it was by the expressed desire of the King and Queen that invitations were sent by the Marchioness of Londonderry to the Marlboroughs. These invitations were addressed both to Blenheim, the Duke's residence, and to Sunderland House, London, where the Duchess lives, and each invitation was extended to "The Duke and Duchess of Marlborough."

The ground upon which the Duke and Duchess are most in sympathy is their affection for their two young sons. Ever since their separation the Duchess has written or telegraphed daily to the Duke, either giving or asking for news of the lads, according to whether they were at the time with him or with her. Her devotion to their happiness is the one object of her life.

When the boys were quite young the differences between the Duchess and her husband did not materially affect this devotion, for she had them with her when she wished, but now matters are critical. The boys are getting big, and with their growth are most devoted to Blenheim and their life there, and always want to spend their holidays at Blenheim—whereas, they hate London and the Continent. As their mother cannot bear to deprive them of any happiness, it is thought more than likely that this may before long be an inducement toward at least a formal reconciliation between the parents.

Extended conferences between the relatives, lawyers, and others concerned in the differences of the Marlboroughs resulted in an agreement in January, 1907, whereby the Duke and Duchess were to live apart, the Duke retaining Blenheim Palace and continuing, it was reported, to enjoy the $100,000 a year settled on him by the family of the Duchess. He obtained the custody of the two children for six months of each year, the control of their education until they should become 21 years old, and the choice of their professions.

On the other hand it was generally understood that the Duchess was to enjoy the use of the Marlborough family jewels, to have precedence as the Duke's wife, and to have the right to take her sons with her to any part of the Continent during their holidays, but without interfering with their studies after the age of 14. One exaction was said to be that she might not bring the children with her to America for any extended period until they should reach an age when they could choose a place of residence for themselves.

The cause of the separation, which followed a dispute of some years' standing, has never been disclosed. Friends of the Duchess have said from time to time that she found the Duke's company incompatible with her comfort, while the Duke is said to have expressed to his distinguished relative, Winston Churchill, his increasing dislike, not only of his wife personally, but of her general conduct and behavior toward him.

The Duchess of Marlborough is the only daughter of William K. Vanderbilt. She was born in 1877, and was married to the Duke in St. Thomas's Church in this city on Nov. 6, 1895. The couple's first son, the Marquis of Blandford, was born at Spencer House, London, on Sept. 18, 1897, and was christened John Albert Edward William. The second son, Lord Ivor Charles Spencer-Churchill, was born on Oct. 14, 1898.

PREFERS HOME TO POLITICS.

Mrs. Hamilton's Five Children Make Her Refuse Assembly Nomination.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 17.—"My advice to woman," said Mrs. A. L. Hamilton, wife of a former Assistant Superintendent of Schools in Pasadena, "is to keep out of politics until their babies are grown up. Women should take an interest in voting and affairs of State, but let that interest be passive until the little ones at home are able to care for themselves."

Mrs. Hamilton, who was formerly President of the State Mothers' Congress and at present is head of the Southern district of the organization, to-day refused the Prohibition nomination for the Assembly, declaring her duty was first to her children and her home, and not to the State. She is the mother of five children, and if she were elected to the Assembly would be absent from home for many months of the year. This fact decided her to refuse the nomination.

"I will neglect my home for nothing on earth," said Mrs. Hamilton. "As one of the leaders in the Mothers' Congress I could not consistently sacrifice my home duties for a political position."

LIGHTNING HITS HOUSEBOAT.

Parents Swim to Shore with Their Five Children.

Lightning struck the houseboat occupied by William Frederich, an oyster man, his wife and five children, which was anchored in Jamaica Bay, about 200 yards off Broad Channel, at 11:45 o'clock last night. Frederich and his family awoke to find the boat in flames.

Their only chance to reach shore was by swimming, and the father and a seventeen-year-old boy helped the other children, only one of whom, a lad of 12, could swim. Mrs. Frederich, almost as good a swimmer as her husband, needed no help.

The family had a hard time in the water, which was kicked up into a choppy seaway by the high wind, but they all reached shore. The boat was burned to the water's edge.

HUYLER'S FORTUNE DROPS TO $2,104,000

Estate of Candy Manufacturer Had Been Put as High as $20,000,000.

With About Half a Million in Mining and Bank Stocks—Division of the Estate.

John S. Huyler, founder of Huyler's, who died Oct. 1, 1911, left a net estate of $2,104,384.81, of which $1,060,939.22 was personalty, according to the appraisal filed yesterday in the Transfer Tax Office of the Surrogates' Court by Deputy State Controller Fraser. At the time of his death his estate was estimated to be worth between $10,000,000 and $20,000,000. His total real estate is valued at $1,291,283, but there are mortgages which amount to $201,522, and deducting the dower of the widow, which is $183,390, it brings his equity in the real estate to $906,620. His most valuable piece of unencumbered real estate is his home, 301 West Seventy-second Street, which is valued by Appraiser Solomon Golderkranz at $111,500. The factory and office of Huyler's, 62-64 Irving Place, is valued at $180,000, less a mortgage of $30,000. His other real estate is in this city, at Rye, where he owned a Summer residence, and in other parts of the State.

Mr. Huyler's personalty consisted principally of his interest in his business. He owned 960 shares of this, worth $960,000. David Huyler, his son, who is now Treasurer and Manager of the business, gave $10,000 as the value of the shares. The assets of the company, including fixtures of the Huyler stores, raw material, and merchandise on hand, &c., are $766,187.13.

He owned securities in other enterprises, but these were comparatively few in number. The largest [illegible] shares of the Prospect Mining Company, worth $483,604, and 223 shares of the Bank of the Metropolis, worth $88,920. Deductions amounted to $247,837.41, of which $118,134.41 were debts; $50,000 administration expenses, and $42,000 commissions.

By the terms of Mr. Huyler's will the estate is disposed of as follows: Rosa F. Huyler, his wife, $239,500; William C. Dodge, stepson, $4,900; Louis F. Fulton of 31 Nassau Street, $4,900; Frank DeK. Huyler, a son, $331,930; David Huyler, a son, $387,713; Coulton D. Huyler, a son, $338,848; Frank DeK. Huyler and Elizabeth Huyler, grandchildren, $28,655 each; John S. Huyler, a son, $383,744; Margaret Huyler and Coulter Huyler, grandchildren, $24,038 each; John S. Huyler Held and Abbie Huyler Held, grandchildren, $94,828; Methodist Episcopal Church, New York City Church Extension and Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, New York Deaconesses' Home and Training School of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and the St. Christopher Home for Children, $5,000 each; Drew Theological Seminary of Madison, N. J., $2,400; New York Eastern Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, $3,000; New York Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, $2,000; McAuley Water Street Mission, $2,500.

Mr. Huyler was the son of David Huyler, who owned a bakery in the Old Greenwich Village. When quite young he made and sold candy. Later he opened up a little shop on Broadway, near Eighteenth Street, and it was here that the foundation of his fortune was laid.

PENSION AFTER 25 YEARS.

Miss Drumgold, Blind, Put on Roll by Special Act of Congress.

After twenty-five years of anxiety Miss Mary Agnes Drumgold of 228 Fairmount Avenue, Newark, a blind woman, is to receive the pension that her father was entitled to as a veteran of the Civil War. President Taft signed the special act of Congress granting the pension.

Miss Drumgold has sent a letter of thanks to President Taft. It is written by the impression method, which she learned at the School for the Blind in Manhattan.

Miss Drumgold, who is 40 years old, has been blind since she was 3. She was deprived of her father's pension because he ran away from his regiment to pay a visit to his family. He intended to return, but his wife persuaded him not to return to the army, so he joined the navy under the name of "Gould."

When it came to the question of pension there were the records in Washington with Drumgold as a "deserter" from the army, but there was also a record of Gould, who was honorably discharged from the navy.

Through the efforts of William J. Kearns, who enlisted the aid of United States Senator Frank O. Briggs and Congressman James A. Hammill, the special act was brought about by which Miss Drumgold could receive her father's pension.

STOP-A-WHILE IN TROUBLE.

Hyde's Famous Houseboat in Collision—Beached, Hole in Her Bow.

William W. Fox, the theatrical man, who recently bought the famous houseboat Stop Awhile from ex-City Chamberlain Hyde, took his wife and sister-in-law, two women friends, and five men friends for a cruise up the Hudson last night. In the midst of the storm the houseboat became unmanageable and crashed into a scow in tow of a tug off 140th Street. A big hole was stoved in the hull of the houseboat and it began to sink.

The women of the party were frightened, and even though they were ordered to don life preservers and were assured by the men that they were in no danger, they screamed at the top of their lungs and tried to jump overboard. Capt. Edward L. Mahnken and W. C. Richards heard the commotion in the Colonial Yacht Club at 140th Street and put out in a motorboat. They took the women and men aboard their craft and towed the sinking houseboat into shallow water. Mr. Fox and his party went to the Fox home at 237 Bedford Park Boulevard, the Bronx.

$20 A SEAT TO SEE ROOSEVELT NAMED

WHY MERRIAM WITHDREW

Found No Intention to Form Third Party in Illinois—Colonel Abandons Speaking Tour.

CHICAGO, July 17.—Members of the local Committee on Arrangements decided to-day to hold the Progressive Party's National Convention at the Coliseum on Aug. 5 instead of the Auditorium, the place first selected. The change was made in order to provide more seats for spectators.

The committee also decided that the expenses of the convention would be met by the sale of tickets to spectators. The prices for tickets entitling the holder to attend every session of the convention will be $10, $15, and $20, according to location.

"It is plain to me that there is no intention on the part of the Roosevelt managers in Illinois to form a new party in this State," said Charles E. Merriam, Republican candidate for Mayor of Chicago in the last municipal election, in a statement issued to-day in explanation of his refusal yesterday to sign the call for a State Convention of the third party. "The call for the National Progressive Convention declared that: 'The power of the crooked political bosses and of the privileged classes behind them is so strong in the two old party organizations that no helpful movement in the real interest of our country can come out of either.'

"While I was doubtful as to the desirability and possibility of forming a new party at this time, and believed it better to continue the fight to make the Republican Party Progressive, I was assured by the promoters of the 'new party' that their firm purpose was to create an entirely new organization and to place a Progressive ticket in the field in Illinois. On this basis I entered the preliminary conferences, having clearly indicated my position and that of the Progressive Republican League.

"It appeared at the conference on Tuesday that it was not the intention of those present to form a new party in Illinois, but merely to nominate independent or contesting Republican electors. This intention was frankly stated by some of the participants. Others with equal frankness declared that a third ticket would imperil their jobs. It was shown that as far as the county, legislative, and Congressional situations were concerned each such district must decide for itself. On the motion to induce State officers in the call for the State Convention the vote was announced as 14 to 11.

"In view of this situation it seemed clear to me that the terms and spirit of the National call would not be carried out in Illinois, and I therefore declined to sign the call for the State Convention and several who had already signed withdrew their names."

ROOSEVELT GIVES UP TRIP.

Induced by Managers Not to Stump Till After Convention.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., July 17.—Col. Roosevelt has decided to abandon his Western primary campaign, which he had planned to make before the convention of Progressives at Chicago on Aug. 5. This announcement was made late to-night by O. K. Davis, head of the Roosevelt Publicity Bureau, after a long conference at Sagamore Hill, attended by Senator Dixon and George W. Perkins.

"So many questions have come up at headquarters which require consultation with Col. Roosevelt that it is a physical impossibility for him to leave at this time," he said.

The trip has really been given up, it is said, because the third party leaders have come to the conclusion that some of the Roosevelt utterances might complicate matters in States where situations are already tangled. He wanted to go ahead with the trip despite their protestations, but was finally dissuaded.

The impending break between Roosevelt and his leaders in Pennsylvania over the attempt to save the party ticket by effecting a compromise was one of the things which decided the Roosevelt managers to hold him in check, it is said. His reply to ex-Senator Flinn's proposal caused some consternation, and it was feared that he might stir up more trouble on his stumping tour.

In getting Col. Roosevelt to remain at home his managers had no easy task, for even as late as this evening he declared that he would have to make a few speeches in the West before the convention. The Colonel will leave here for Chicago Aug. 3.

About 100 of the third party advocates of Oyster Bay held a meeting in the Board of Trade Hall to-night, and formed a local organization. Resolutions were adopted condemning the Republican National Committee for stealing the nomination at Chicago.

Smith Cox and Dr. William Carey, the local delegates to the Republican National Convention, were upbraided for supporting Taft.

The Rev. Dr. George E. Farrar, pastor of the Methodist Church, was elected President; H. G. Vail, Andrew Snouder, and Thomas J. Ellison, Vice Presidents; James H. Ludlam, Treasurer; Robert W. Duvall, Secretary, and A. L. Marsh Chairman of the Executive Committee.

It was decided to call the organization the Roosevelt Progressive Club of Oyster Bay. Lucien Bonheur, Chairman of the Nassau County Progressive Committee, spoke at the meeting.

DIXON HAS ROSEATE VIEWS.

Says Roosevelt Will Beat Wilson and Taft Won't Get an Electoral Vote.

Senator Joseph M. Dixon, National campaign manager for Col. Theodore Roosevelt and his National Progressive Party, was most optimistic yesterday. That the Colonel would overcome Gov. Wilson in November was one of his predictions. That President Taft would not get a single Electoral vote was another.

Everything seemed quiet yesterday, both at the National headquarters and at the State headquarters in the Metropolitan Tower, where William H. Hotchkiss has direction.

George W. Perkins was at the National headquarters all afternoon in preparation for the National Convention, which will be held in Chicago on Aug. 5, and the various State Conventions, which will be held prior to that time for the purpose of electing National delegates. These affairs, it is understood, are being financed from this city. In this State the delegates will be named by the individual Congressional districts.

The most notable of the State Conventions will be that of Michigan. It will be held at Jackson on Saturday "under the oaks" where the Republican Party

AMERICAN LAUNCH CAPTURED

Poaching Vessel Run Down Off Vancouver Island—Shots Exchanged.

VICTORIA, B. C., July 17.—The American gasoline launch Bonita of Seattle has been captured after a running fight, while poaching off the west coast of Vancouver Island, by the fishery protection cruiser Newington.

Many shots were fired from each boat, and the launch was finally run down and captured.

The Newington arrived in port to-day with the American boat in tow. The Bonita is held, awaiting confiscation as a prize.

ODDS ON WILSON.

Broker Is Willing to Bet $5,000 at Two to One That He'll Win.

Any one who doesn't believe that Woodrow Wilson will be the next President of the United States, and is willing to take a chance on his conviction, may find an opportunity to bet by interviewing an active member of the Stock Exchange. His name may not be mentioned because of the possible conflict with the anti-betting laws, but the broker has $5,000 of his own money which he has been vainly trying to bet this week at odds of 2 to 1 on Wilson.

When Wilson was first nominated the price was even money on Wilson against the field, but since confidence in his election has become more general in the Street the odds have slowly gone up. Some $2,000 was bet by individuals at 6 to 5 on Wilson, and the total placed at 8 to 5 is estimated at from $3,000 to $4,000. Every one who follows odds and betting in the Wall Street district agrees that this is the poorest year for wagers on record.

Brokers agree that the anti-betting law prohibits making book or the placing of money by an agent, but it is the contention of those who are betting this year that there is nothing to prevent bets between one man and another.

OELRICHS A LIFE SAVER.

While Calling with Vincent Astor, Stops Horse Plunging Into Children.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 17.—Young Hermann Oelrichs saved a score of little children playing in Lower Thames Street early to-night by stopping a horse running up from the Standard Oil Company's wharf.

Mr. Oelrichs was with Vincent Astor, who was driving his automobile, and with Miss Margaret F. Andrews had been paying a round of calls to permit Mr. Astor to say good-bye. A block away from the automobile were the children, and as the party approached the big horse came running up into the street.

Mr. Oelrichs realized in a second what would be the result if the horse reached the children. He jumped from the automobile, ran toward the horse, and threw both his arms around the animal's neck and slackened his speed.

Those who witnessed the work of Mr. Oelrichs were loud in their praise of his daring. Every one said that if it had not been for him some of the children surely would have been injured.

CLIMB HIGH TO AID DYING MAN

Priest Shrives Him as Doctor Rigs Sling to Lower Him to Street.

To reach a man who had been injured on the fifth floor of the new building at 601 Fifth Avenue yesterday afternoon Father Barney McQuade of St. Patrick's Cathedral and Dr. Dietrich of Flower Hospital had to climb up ladders on the Fifth Avenue side of the building, there being no stairs in place. The sight of the priest on the ladder, followed by the ambulance surgeon, who was dressed in white, caused a crowd to collect and automobiles stopped, blocking traffic.

James Kennedy, 54 years old, a plasterer, of 1,778 Amsterdam Avenue, was the man injured. He had fallen from a ladder he was working on to the floor. His back was broken.

Father McQuade administered extreme unction, while Dr. Dietrich prepared to rush the man to the hospital. A canvas bag was rigged from a crane, Kennedy was placed in it, lowered to the street, and removed in the ambulance. He probably will die.

KILLED IN LENOX LIBRARY.

Laborers Fall When Floor of Building Being Demolished Gives Way.

One man was killed and two injured late yesterday afternoon while at work on the sixth floor of the old Lenox Library Building, Seventieth Street and Fifth Avenue, by the fall of the flooring. The three men were thrown to the cellar. The man who was killed has not been identified. Those injured were:

Charles Drideaux, 29 years old, of 327 East 125th Street, and John Nykgintik, 32 years old, of 345 East Third Street. Both men were removed to the Reception Hospital by Dr. Burdick. Patrolman Fichter of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station House, arrested Louis Fink of 1,820 De Graw Street, Brooklyn, the foreman, on a charge of criminal negligence. Fink was taken to the Coroner's office. The three men were at work on the sixth floor of the library when the flooring suddenly collapsed, and the men fell to the basement. Other workers pulled the three men from under the débris. The library building was being demolished to make room for Henry Frick's home.

ARRESTED IN A STORE.

Visiting Bank President's Wife Sure Theft Charge Is an Error.

Mrs. Joseph A. Guerin, wife of the President of the Dorchester Bank of Summerville, S. C., who came North with her husband to attend a convention of bankers in Atlantic City, N. J., was arrested in a Broadway department store yesterday on the complaint of a woman detective employed by the store that she had taken several small pieces of jewelry worth about $5 in all. Mrs. Guerin, although protesting that she had paid for the jewelry, was taken to the Jefferson Market Court and held in $500 bail for Special Sessions by Magistrate Murphy.

Mrs. Guerin said that at home she was accustomed to take such articles in the stores as she liked without having them wrapped up when she was in a hurry. She had been in a hurry to meet her husband yesterday, she said, and had asked the saleswoman if she might take the jewelry. She said the girl replied that she might and that after putting the proper price on the counter she picked up the small pieces of jewelry and started to hurry out.

GRAY AUTO AT BECKER HOME?

SLAYERS KNOWN TO WALDO

Arrests to be Made When It Seems Best, It's Said for Him—Resents Whitman's Attacks on Police.

All the activity of the high officials of the Police Department, and nearly every waking moment of District Attorney Whitman were concentrated yesterday upon the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler who was shot to death by four men in front of the Hotel Metropole at 2 o'clock on Tuesday morning—the gambler who had broken all the rules of the game and gone to the District Attorney with a story of police graft and with the accusation that Lieut. Charles Becker of the Strong-Arm Squad had been a silent partner in his establishment in West Forty-fifth Street.

The Police Department is working on the theory that Rosenthal was murdered by gamblers as a consequence of a gamblers' quarrel, either to shut his mouth or in a spirit of revenge, and their eyes are turned upon members of the Sam Paul Association, an east side fraternity, a group of men who had no earthly use for Rosenthal.

Though Louis Libby and William Shapiro, the men who tok turns in driving the big gray touring car that carried the assassins to the Hotel Metropole, have been close mouthed all through the grilling hours that Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty devoted to pumping them, certain important pieces of information escaped from their unwilling lips. Following up the clues thus obtained the department detectives have turned in reports which seem to indicate that the assassins are known, and that the police have a very shrewd idea where those men are. To know this, however, and to be able to convict them of murder are two different things, and arrests will not come until the case is ripe. That was the impression obtained at Police Headquarters yesterday.

Seeking Now for Jack Rose.

But above all the developments of the day the thing that awakened the greatest interest in the minds of those studying the case from the spectator's point of view was the tremendous and increasing prominence that attached to the name of one Jack Rose.

Who and what was Jack Rose? What part, if any, did he play in the expedition that went up out of the east side on Tuesday morning, and ended in the death of the gambler-informer. And, above all, the question yesterday was, Where is this Jack Rose?

Scores upon scores of persons have been questioned in the case. The long arm of Police Headquarters has reached down into the east side, and hauled from sundry unsavory spots men who might be expected to throw light on anything unlawful. The District Attorney has questioned everybody from the widow of the murdered man to the County Clerk. But no one has questioned Jack Rose, and, from all appearances yesterday both at Police Headquarters and the District Attorney's office, this was for the very good reason that nobody knew where Jack Rose was. Neither Mr. Whitman nor Commissioner Dougherty was willing to say that this man was a fugitive. Certainly there is no charge against him, but it can be said on the best authority that Commissioner Dougherty would give a good deal for a two hours' chat with Jack Rose.

Jack Rose, lanky and bald, is said to be a genius at the game of poker. His friends say enviously that he is the "best little poker player" in New York. His name first appeared in the case in the story which Rosenthal told to The New York World and which was printed in that newspaper yesterday morning. In that story Rosenthal practically charged that Rose was the go-between and collector for Becker.

"You know Rose, don't you?" Becker was asked on Tuesday, and he nodded.

"Sure," he said, "I've raided him."

It was learned yesterday that when Charles Plitt, a man who does various services for the head of the strong arm squad, went down to the nome of Dora Gilbert, Rosenthal's first wife, to get from her an affidavit that could be used against Rosenthal if that man should ever be called to the witness stand to press his charges against Becker, Rose went with him and helped him in the work. For Rose used to be a partner of Rosenthal's and knew him well, but, according to the story told yesterday, they had a violent quarrel last November, gamblers being given to quarrels, and Rosenthal more than most.

He Figured in the Mortgage Deal.

Rose's name was heard again yesterday, and this time from the lips of Robert H. Hibbard, the ex-policeman lawyer of 220 Broadway, in whose offices the chattel mortgage on Rosenthal's goods was executed last Spring. Interest centred in the mortgage part of Rosenthal's story when it was learned that the John J. Donohue, whose name appeared in the mortgage papers on file, was a dummy in the transaction, precisely as Rosenthal had said. Yesterday Mr. Hibbard appeared before the Grand Jury to tell all about this mortgage by which Rosenthal said Becker loaned to him the money to open up the West Forty-fifth Street gaming house.

Mr. Hibbard testified that the man who loaned the money was one Jacob Rose, supposed to be this same Jack Rose. He had been a client of Mr. Hibbard's, the lawyer explained, and was the man who advanced the now famous $1,500. Becker, the lawyer said, had not figured in the matter at all. But his named had been mentioned. This was after the satisfaction piece had been signed and the transaction was concluded.

"Why," he quoted Rosenthal as having said to him, "you know, don't you, that it wasn't Rose who loaned that money? It was Charlie Becker."

Whereupon Mr. Hibbard said that he didn't know anything of the kind. He was not Becker's lawyer at all, he explained, and although he knew him in his old days on the police force, he was quite sure that he had never done any legal business for him. He had done some legal business for Mrs. Becker, and he had appeared as attorney for both Mr. Becker's brothers, so that he had much the appearance of being the Becker family counsel; but it just happened that he had never done any legal work at all for the head of the Strong Arm Squad. This was the information he furnished to the reporters waiting outside the Grand Jury room after he had given his testimony.

That was the second appearance of the name of Jack Rose.

The third appearance was the most interesting and the most direct of all. It was the first time that his name had appeared in connection with the events of Monday night. It was the first appearance of his name in connection with the big gray touring car, around which all the evidence in the case hinges and will hinge.

Say Rose Chartered the Big Gray Car.

This connection was made by the prisoners, Louis Libby and William Shapiro, when they told their story in the Tombs to their lawyer, Assemblyman Aaron J. Levy, who appeared for them yesterday afternoon when they were arraigned and held without bail by Coroner Feinberg in the Coroners' Court. As Mr. Levy, later in the afternoon in his office at 320 Broadway, related the substance of the tale which he had obtained from his two clients, the story shaped itself something like this:

On Monday night "Whitey," the starter at the Café Boulevard in Second Avenue, received a telephone message from some one bidding him go out and tell Shapiro or Libby to bring their gray car up to Third Avenue and Fourteenth Street in front of Tom Sharkey's saloon. That was after 11 o'clock, and Shapiro was in the driver's seat at their stand near the Cafe Boulevard. That telephone message, the chauffeur was told, came from Jack Rose, who mhe knew well enough and for whom he had often driven the gray car on one errand or another.

It was getting on toward midnight when the gray car rolled along to the appointed place, and there were Rose and one or two other men, who piled in and bade him drive on. The route from place to place was circuitous, and before they had gone very far four other men piled in, and there was a general getting in and getting out. The party seemed to be in quest of some one, and went from one resort to another in their search.

Finally, toward 2 o'clock, the order came to drive up to West Forty-third Street.

By this time there were only four men in the car besides the driver himself. Whether Jack Rose was one of those four Shapiro cannot remember, his lawyer said.

When it became apparent what the mission was, and after the four murderers jumped back to the big gray car and bade the driver put on full speed for a getaway, Shapiro balked. Then, his lawyer said, grim persuasion was applied in the form of a revolver, which was knocked smartly against his right temple. Shapiro still bears the mark, according to Mr. Levy.

He knew what was best for him, at all events, and drove on as fast as the big gray car could go, taking the route up Madison Avenue to Fifty-eighth Street, as it has been already described, and then dropping the fares at Forty-ninth Street and Third Avenue on the way downtown.

Shapiro hustled to his lodgings in Stuyvesant Street, tumbled Libby out of bed, gave him a brief account of the adventure, and told him to take the car over to the garage in Washington Place South.

Chauffeur Complains He Wasn't Paid.

When this version of the story was told it served to explain how the impression was first firmly fixed that Libby, and not Shapiro, was the driver of the car, for from one of the employes of the garage one of the first clues that fell into the hands of Commissioner Dougherty was the admission that the car had really returned at 2:30 A. M. instead of at midnight, as Libby had bade him say.

And one of the worst things about it all, according to Shapiro, was that Rose never paid for the use of the car, but vanished into the night without so much as a word on the subject.

One of the questions leveled at Commissioner Dougherty when he spared a few moments for the newspaper men last evening was this:

"Was Jack Rose the man who hired that car?"

"I decline to discuss that," replied the Commissioner.

Both Libby and Shapiro assured their lawyer that they had been discreetly silent in spite of all the police questioning. For all this, it is pretty well understood at Police Headquarters that so expert an examiner as Mr. Dougherty was not behind closed doors with the two men for the greater part of ten hours without learning a good deal of what they knew and of what he wanted so much to know. Perhaps Libby and Shapiro had no idea how much they let the police know.

All this about Jack Rose was learned with particular interest in the light of the fact that Rosenthal had had so much to say about him in a statement made to The World two days before he was murdered, and when the case was a very little, inconspicuous thing compared with the tremendous proportions to which it has attained. That statement, as printed in yesterday's World, contained these paragraphs:

Said Rose Represented Becker.

> Well, Becker was very pleasant, and our friends tried to get us together. His first raid on Second Avenue had been in a house run by a man named Sigmund Rosenfeld, who was known as "Beansey," and who had as his partner a man known as Jack Rose. This fellow Rose had a fair education, and was a little better versed in the use of words than most of the boys on the east side, and they looked up to him as a wise fellow—a sort of mouthpiece—and although he never had much, he worked his way in. The result of Becker's raid on "Beansey" and Rose's place was a sort of partnership between Becker and Rose.
>
> Becker wanted to be made a big man, and Rose boosted him along. Rose knew some of the newspaper boys, he said, and sure enough some stories were printed about Lieut. Becker and his Strong-Arm Squad which made him a big man and made him out to be in absolute control of the gambling situation in New York. And then the places began to open up, and protection money was paid again.

Then, later, after Rosenthal had spoken of the loan of $1,500, he said.

> I had enough for the bankroll and to open up, and so early in March I started in business. Becker had told me to put Jack Rose in, and I knew what that meant, for Rose would represent Becker as his collector and would see that he got his 20 per cent. cut out of all that the house won. I had no objection to the arrangement.

Saw a Gray Car Near Becker's Home.

The distinct sensation contributed to the Rosenthal case in the early part of the day was the appearance of a young woman who came down from Washington Heights to contribute to the investigation her testimony that on Monday night, from 6 o'clock until 9, there stood empty in front of the Belleclaire Court Apartments, at 165th Street and Edgecombe Avenue, a gray touring car, strikingly similar to the one in which the assassins rode to the Hotel Metropole five hours later. Lieut. Becker lives in the Belleclaire Court Apartments.

The woman was obdurate in her refusal to give her name, and at the sight of any one of the swarm of photographers about the Criminal Court Building she held her bag in front of her face, obscuring it completely. She appeared to be young, and her gown was made of changeable green silk and adorned with a costly lace collar.

She first appeared at the building about 10 o'clock, but went away when she was informed that Mr. Whitman was too busy to see anybody. When she came again, at 1 o'clock, the Grand Jury investigation into the charges of Rosenthal was already in progress, and Mr. Whitman had to be called from the Grand Jury room to meet her. He was tremendously interested in the few words she whispered to him, and a few moments later the sensation-loving loungers about the corridors were enthralled at the sight of the District Attorney and the "mysterious woman," as she was called before the day was an hour older, hurrying down to the street, and there, with the aid of brawny Detective Al Thomas, making their way to the side of the gray car that had been driven to the curb outside the Coroners' Court in case the Coroner should care to treat it as an exhibit in the hearing that was not held.

All the woman was able to tell Mr. Whitman was that the car looked remarkably like the one she had seen at the door of the apartment house. But the thing that particularly interested the prosecutor was that she remembered distinctly the last four figures on the number plate.

Those were 1313. The figures on the big, gray car are 41,313, and one of the brass tail lights is so placed that to one standing a few feet to the left of the car in the rear the only figures visible are 1313. If that car were to stand facing uptown at the curb in front of the Belleclaire it would be difficult for one on the same side of the street to see anything but 1313.

This story of the young woman from Washington Heights was not regarded by the prosecutor as a piece of deliberate sensationalism, apparently, because he gave it the dignity of testimony, taking her before the Grand Jury and adding her to the list of witnesses for the day.

Later in the afternoon it was learned in the District Attorney's office that the Superintendent of the apartment house had volunteered the information that a car answering that general description had been seen frequently in front of the building.

Another Woman Saw the Car There.

Mrs. Mamie Reilly, who lives at 462 West 165th Street, across the street, told a TIMES reporter last evening that she had seen a gray automobile standing against the curb on 165th Street, opposite the Belleclaire on Monday night.

"I did not take particular notice of the machine," she said. "It had a gray body, but I do not know the color of the upholstery. I saw it some time Monday evening, but I am not sure whether it was before or after supper. I frequently had seen either the same machine or one resembling it standing in the same place."

Commissioner Dougherty was not particularly impressed with this piece of information, because he has reason to believe that that car was in its garage downtown until well after 11 o'clock. The testimony on which this reason is based is all the more valuable and convincing, from his point of view, because it was obtained for another purpose at a time when the early doings of the gray car did not seem particularly important.

When the figures on the number plate furnished the police with their first important clue in the murder case, they made a bee-line for the garage in Washington Square, and there routed out half a dozen employes of the place. Several of these were Italians, and they all agreed that the car had been at the garage until 11 o'clock or after. They all said that it returned about 2:30 the following morning, although one tried to say that it returned at midnight, admitting afterward that Libby had told him to make his oath to that effect.

On the other hand, Lawyer Levy says that his clients told him that the big car was away uptown some time during the evening.

Lieut. Becker himself did not reach home until about 2 o'clock that morning. This is according to the story of his movements which was furnished to the newspaper men by him in his lawyer's office on Tuesday afternoon before the "mysterious woman" entered into the case. The reporters were talking to him at Mr. Hart's office, at 60 Broadway, on Monday afternoon till well after 6 o'clock, and it was some time later that he and his lawyer drove on up to the latter's home in West Ninth Street. From there, about 8 o'clock, he went on up to the garage in West Fiftieth Street, and from there, in company with the chauffeur and the bookkeeper of the garage, he walked over to Madison Square Garden to take in the boxing bouts.

Becker's car, the one in which he is frequently seen at his raids, belongs to Col. Henry S. Sternberger, a Wall Street broker, who is a close friend. The car is a four-cylinder Simplex, dull gray in color like the hue of a battleship, and its number is 142 N. Y.

Whitman Repudiates Interviews.

While Mr. Whitman did no more than take the story of the woman about the car for what it appeared to be worth and present it on the ground that he could not throw aside any piece of evidence, so that a tendency on the part of the police to take no great interest in it could hardly be called a disagreement with the prosecutor, there is no doubt that relations between the Criminal Court Building and Police Headquarters became decidedly strained yesterday.

In all the morning papers Mr. Whitman was shown as expressing hearty disbelief in the police theory that this was one of many gambler murders. He was shown as criticising the police for the way they handled the case at the outset. In some of the papers, however, he was put in the position of roundly accusing the police—or part of the force at least—of responsibility for the murder, and in yesterday's evening papers he was quoted as making such statements as this:

> I accuse the Police Department of New York, through certain members of it, with having murdered Herman Rosenthal. Either directly or indirectly, it was because of them that he was slain in cold blood, with never a chance for his life.
> And the time and place selected were such as to inspire terror in the hearts of those the system had most to fear. It was intended to be a lesson to any who might have thought of exposing the alliance between the police and crime.

Mr. Whitman later in the day repudiated most of these sentiments attributed to him, but their publication elicited a very sharp leter to him from Police Commissioner Waldo, who expressed regret that any one should be so desirous of publicity as to attack unjustly a body of men because of the alleged wrongdoing of a few.

Waldo's Letter to Whitman.

Many thought these same statements appearing in the papers explained the early morning visit of the Police Commissioner to Mayor Gaynor's office. Here is the letter:

> Sir: I have the honor to again urge that a complete investigation be made by you without any further delay of the allegations made in the press that members of the police force have been in partnership with gamblers, and of the statement that you are alleged to have made publicly that members of the department were guilty of instigating the murder of a gambler. Immediate action is necessary in the interest of good order and that the good reputation of 10,400 men who are honestly doing their duty should not be besmirched by individuals who may be rascals.
>
> Under the present organization of the department less than 150 men have any connection whatsoever with the enforcement of gambling laws, leaving over 10,000 members free from suspicion of connection with gamblers. It would appear to be unjust that the reputation of the entire force should be attacked on account of the allegations of a self-confessed gambler that a subordinate police officer, who has never been intrusted with any special power, has been his partner. It is unfortunate that the desire for publicity should lead any one to unjustly attack a body of men on account of alleged wrong doings of a few.
>
> In investigating the action of the police in connection with the gambling situation, investigation should also be made of the courts and District Attorneys, who could stop gambling if they desired by upholding the police and sending convicted gamblers to jail instead of letting them free on suspended sentences or with an insignificant fine and issuing court orders requiring the police to return to the gamblers gambling apparatus seized in the raids.
>
> Again assuring you of every support in bringing all facts before the public and convicting the guilty. Very respectfully,
>
> R. WALDO, Police Commissioner.

This was in strong contrast with the letter which Mr. Waldo wrote to Mr. Whitman on Monday, in which he said:

> There should be no gambling in the city if the Judges and the several District Attorneys' offices co-operate with the Police Department as fully as you have personally.

Limits His Criticism to a Few.

This letter was written on Monday morning, and the Commissioner and Mr. Whitman took luncheon together that day. Whether in answer to this letter or not, later in the afternoon Mr. Whitman made this statement, which was given out at his office in typewritten form:

> In order that the position of this office may be made perfectly clear at a time when so many misstatements are being made, I wish to say that I have never charged that the police are responsible for Herman Rosenthal's death. I have no such proof, and my own personal opinions are unimportant to the public.
>
> But I desire to say this: Four men shot Rosenthal to death, firing five or six shots at him. This was done in a conspicuous public place, which was as light as it is at noonday. Five or six policemen were within less than a stone's throw of the scene of the crime. The murderers entered a motor car and escaped with little more than a pretense of pursuit. The officers admit that they lost sight of the automobile before they started in the taxicab.
>
> These facts present a shocking situation. Those members of the police force who were present at the time of the crime, having failed so signally to obtain evidence, the task of bringing to justice the perpetrators of the crime and those who instigated their action is a very difficult one. Rosenthal's death makes the Grand Jury investigation of his charges, asked for by the Police Commissioner, a very difficult matter, and I have never promised or indicated that such an investigation would develop proof of corruption in the department. I shall, however, continue the investigation and present to the Grand Jury all information obtainable.
>
> Of course, at present, our time is fully occupied, with the co-operation of the police, in the effort to clear up the Rosenthal murder mystery.

"Im on the Job, and Im Independent," says Dougherty.

When Commissioner Dougherty talked to some friends last evening he wanted it made quite clear that he was pushing the investigation just as hard as he could, let it hit whom it might.

"This has been one of the worst crimes in the history of the city," said he. "It would not matter to me if the trail led to the Governor of the State, I am on the job just the same, and I am independent."

"Are you proceeding entirely along the theory that this murder was committed by gamblers?" he was asked by a man who has known him for many years.

"No, I am not," he said. "I am not working on any one line."

In Police Headquarters, where the eye is turned toward the Sam Paul Association, a connection is seen between the outburst of Rosenthal and the threat to tell a great deal more and the raiding on Monday afternoon by Inspector Cahalane of the Old Sans Souci Music Hall establishment, which is a favorite meeting place of the Sam Paul men, and which is said to have the kindly backing of Sam Paul himself. Furthermore, the raiding of that place is supposed to have fanned the old flame of bitterness against Rosenthal into the flare that ended in his assassination nine hours after that raid, according to a favorite theory of the mystery entertained at Police Headquarters.

It was on the Sam Paul Association outing on the way to Northport last Sunday that the familiar discussion is reported to have taken place about the advisability of "getting" Rosenthal because of the noise he was making and threatening to make.

One of those who was in that party was "Dollar John," according to a story told in Aaron J. Levy's office yesterday. Now, this "Dollar John" is a client of Mr. Levy and, according to him, "Dollar John's" name was one of those Rosenthal intended to carry to District Attorney Whitman on Tuesday morning. For this worthy was "sore" at the police, and particularly at Lieut. Becker, who had raided his place in Third Street several times.

It was raided again only last Monday by Inspector Cahalane, but the raid that rankled was one which found its way to adjudication in Special Sessions in May. At this raid, according to "Dollar John's" lament, his $5,700 bank roll disappeared, and "Dollar John" was furious on the subject and thoroughly disgusted with the raiders. He didn't know just what had become of the money and he didn't seem able to find out.

Rosenthal banked high on his resentfulness, but on Tuesday morning, after the murder, "Dollar John," shook the dust of New York from his feet. He telephoned to Mr. Levy that he had been warned to get out of town and that he was going at once.

Heard Threats Against Rosenthal.

Another man who was on the Northport expedition of the Sam Paul Association was "Bridgey" Webber, and the further coincidence that this same "Bridgey" was in the Hotel Metropole shortly before the murderous shots were fired, and was seen in the crowd that gathered curiously about the body of Herman Rosenthal as it lay on the pavement a little later, led to his detention by the police. Detective Shevelin took him in on Tuesday evening, and yesterday he was held by Coroner Feinberg in $100 bail as a material witness. "Bridgey" produced this sum from a roll of fifties that all but stupefied the reporters. Hartwell Marshall, the old "Hod" Marshall of the Jerome period, appearfed as his attorney.

Webber explained to questioners that he was in the Metropole as late as 1 o'clock, and that he had seen Rosenthal there in company with "Moe Brown," "Dutch," and a man whom he called Walker. He had been friendly with Rosenthal, and had paid his June rent for him, because the man was in hard straits, what with a policeman quartered in his house and business bad. That every morning in the Metropole, Rosenthal had pointed "Bridgey" out as one of the best friends he ever had. Policeman File says that "Bridgey" was at the Metropole as late as 1:30 o'clock, but Mr. Marshall says he can bring twenty witnesses to show he was nowhere in that vicinity at the time the shooting was done.

Webber said that almost everybody on the steamer Seagate on Sunday was discussing the Rosenthal excitement, particularly that part contained in The World affidavit. In the midst of this talk about the gambler, Webber said, his attention was attracted to a group of three men, one of whom remarked that they were going to get Rosenthal, or some one else would get him. He hastened to explain that he couldn't be sure whether "they" referred to the three men who were talking together, to the gambling fraternity in general, or to some other persons who had been mentioned in the conversation before Webber began to overhear it.

Sam Paul himself had a long talk with Commissioner Dougherty yesterday afternoon at Headquarters, and when it was over the Commissioner seemed vastly satisfied with the interview.

Policeman File Says He Did His Best

No one in all the police force, from Mr. Waldo to the newest recruit, was quite as indignant at the statements in the newspapers attributed to the District Attorney as Policeman William File, once a detective, but reduced recently by Commissioner Dougherty to the rank of patrolman. He was in the Metropole, off duty, when the shooting was done, and it was he who executed the taxicab chase which Mr. Whitman, even in the authorized statement, described as "little more than a pretense of pursuit."

File, according to his own story, was back in the Metropole, thirty-five feet away. Out of a clear sky came the shooting, "Bing, bing, bing," as he described it, a rapid fire that took him on a dead run to the doorway, leaving his hat behind and knocking over a careless waiter in his rush. Once on the pavement, he was confronted by a crowd of gesticulating people, pointing in every direction. He drew his gun and leveled it in the direction of a man who appeared to be climbing overhastily into a car across the street.

As he leveled the gun, he called out, "Is that the man?" but he didn't get an answer from the excited crowd, and even as he pointed his gun and shouted, a rush of people separated him and his mark. He saw the car for a brief instant, got an incorrect idea of the numbers on the plate, and then commandeered the taxicab.

Even in those few moments, as File tells his own story, the gray car had gone and he never saw it again. The chase up town to Fifty-eighth Street and Madison Avenue was based on shouted directions from the sidewalks.

"Oh, Gee!" File said, disgusted, to a friend of his yesterday, "they meet me on the street and say they're sorry I'm in trouble, and yet I risked my life getting out into that street with the sound of guns still in the air. Pretense of pursuit, eh? I'd have given an arm to have got that car or one of those men. Do you realize that would have meant First Grade Detective dead sure for me? Do you realize that it would have meant a raise of $850 a year sure? And the medal of the department and honorable mention? Say, I did my best, and I thought just as fast as a man can think, let me tell you."

Waldo Knows the Assassins.

If District Attorney Whitman is determined to bring the murderers of Rosenthal to book, Commissioner Waldo is no less so, according to the position he has taken in conversations with friends. The Commissioner does not talk for publication, but it is known that he does not intend to rest until every man in that murderous party is under lock and key. It was stated yesterday on a high authority very close to the Commissioner himself that Mr. Waldo knows the names of all the men who were in the gray automobile at 2 o'clock on Tuesday morning, and will make arrests when it seems best to do so.

Those who have talked with him say that the Commissioner has not the slightest intention of shielding anybody. He goes upon the assumption that in a department of 10,400 men there will always be some rascals, and for that reason he has never placed anybody in a position where his work could not be checked.

It is said that in the case of Lieut. Becker the Commissioner has thus far taken no action because he does not want to have the reputation of a hitherto efficient policeman smirched upon the mere assertion of a self-confessed gambler, whom the Commissioner had ordered put out of business.

The Commissioner does not think favorably of the suggestion that the police administration be shifted to Albany. A shift of that sort, he says, is the very thing the gamblers desire. It is said that when Waldo's men were beginning to close up the gamblers, the gamblers got up a defense fund and hired publicity agents for the purpose of raising a rumpus over gambling in the hope of getting a change of administration. Police experts say that every time there is a new police head it takes about six months for the new administration to get its bearings and begin to operate against the gamblers, so that the gamblers themselves believe their best protection lies in a frequent change of administration. Commissioner Waldo's friends and admirers now believe that he has reduced gambling to a minimum, and that about the only way in which gambling can be revived upon any extensive scale is to have another change of administration.

The Commissioner is familiarly impatient with the mincing steps of court procedure and the employment of technicalities to defeat the ends of swift and direct justice. In a recent speech he said:

"The way to stop gambling is to stop it. The courts could stop gambling within twenty-four hours if they would merely let it be known by their rulings that they intend to aid the police instead of all they can to thwart their efforts every time we catch the gamblers with the goods."

He holds that, even with the obstruction in the courts, his men have made it so uncomfortable for the gamblers that only a very few places venture to keep open. Those few places, he contends, could not run a day if the judges would interpret the law differently. The need of men on the inside before an entrance by the police makes a raid impossible in the "swell" places, where only those personally introduced to the proprietors can pass the door.

Libby and Shapiro Held; No Bail.

There were two official steps in the Rosenthal investigation yesterday. First came the Grand Jury proceedings, when Mr. Whitman summoned witnesses to tell about the chattel mortgage transaction. These were John J. Donohue, a clerk in the office of J. Van Vechten Olcott; Albert R. Lesinsky and Robert H. Hibbard, the lawyers in whose office the mortgage was executed, and County Clerk Schneider. The fifth witness was the woman who wanted to tell about the gray car in front of the Belleclaire.

Concerning the statement of Mr. Hibbard that he had been largely retained in the Becker family, the Lieutenant himself explained that Mrs. Becker had retained Hibbard to proceed for her against the executor of her father's estate some years ago, and had his services in various routine matters since. As to whether his brothers, one of them a Lieutenant in the department, and one a Wall Street broker, had ever retained Hibbard, he said he did not know.

The other official step was the arraignment of Libby and Shapiro before Coroner Feinberg in the Coroner's Court. For "Bridgey" Webber, Mr. Marshall obtained release on nominal bail, but when Mr. Levy asked, not very hopefully, if he could get release for his clients in nominal bail the Coroner said that he thought a nominal bail for them would be just about $250,000 each. So they were not released, but were remanded to the Tombs on the insistence of Mr. Levy that there be no more secret sessions with the police without his presence.

As for the hearing, Coroner Feinberg adjourned that until next Monday afternoon. This was done on a motion by Mr. Levy, who declared that he made it in the interest of public justice. In the case of the fourth arrest, that of a man variously referred to as Clark and Koch, and sometimes quite as definitely as "John Doe," the prisoner was paroled in the custody of his lawyer to appear as a witness when wanted.

Victim to be Buried To-day.

One of the favorite arguments against the theory that the murder of Herman Rosenthal was planned by gamblers as part of one of the eternal gamblers' quarrels that had reached up out of the east side and burst in the full lights of Broadway was that the gamblers could not have done anything more calculated to close the lid down tight under pressure of aroused public opinion. A rejoinder to this argument that was made with great insistence in many quarters yesterday was the advancing of the theory that an old and smoldering hatred of Herman Rosenthal flared up at this time for the very reason that Rosenthal was in open war with the police and because detection might be avoided in the confusion of suspicions.

At Rosenthal's house in West Forty-fifth Street it was said last evening that Mrs. Rosenthal was still in a hysterical condition and unable to talk collectedly of the events which led up to the murder of her husband. She will be summoned before the Grand Jury, but not until after the funeral, which will be held from the house at 10 o'clock this morning.

At the home of District Attorney Whitman last evening it was reported that the prosecutor had gone out of town. There was a report around the Criminal Court Building yesterday that he would try to slip away for a few hours of rest. He has had very little of that since he was routed out of bed shortly after Rosenthal was killed.

Lieut. Becker's Career.

Charles Becker, the head of the Strong Arm Squad, joined the police force on Nov. 1 twenty-nine years ago. His first notoriety came in connection with the shooting of a boy in a burglar chase. According to the story told them, both Becker and Patrolman Carey fired shots, one of which killed the boy. Carey and Becker were suspended, but their version was never discredited.

About this same time Becker was in trouble on the charge that he had arrested and locked up all night a woman who was quite innocent of the charge preferred.

He was made a Roundsman in 1903, and in 1904 he received a medal for plunging into the North River to the rescue of one James Butler. After Becker had been wearing his medal for nearly two years, Butler, it was said, made an affidavit that he was an expert swimmer and had taken the midsummer plunge at Becker's request and on his promise of a $15 fee. Becker always denied this vigorously, and attributed the story to Inspector Schmittberger, with whom he was not on good terms.

Becker was put in charge of the Strong Arm Squad on June 30, 1911, and made numerous raids. Last March a bullet fired by one of his men during a raid killed a man. Becker was relieved from duty with the squad for a time, but was reassigned to command it.

Gov. Dix Not to Interfere.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 17.—Gov. Dix said to-day that he would not interfere with the investigation being made into the death of Herman Rosenthal, the New York gambler, unless a request was made by the officials interested in the inquiry. The Governor believes that the local authorities have ample authority to meet the situation.

DROWNED MAN NOT GIRL'S MURDERER

For a Time Yesterday Police Thought Body Found in the Hudson Was That of Swartz.

CLUES FROM MANY SOURCES

Police Investigate Report That Girl's Alleged Slayer Applied for Work in Mills in New Jersey.

Detectives hunting for Nathan Swartz, now indicted as the slayer of twelve-year-old Julia Connors of the Bronx, are searching the morgues, for they are inclined to believe that there is a remote possibility—a very remote one, they say—that Nathan Swartz may have taken the advice his father gave him, to end his life in the river. This does not mean, as Capt. Price said, that the police believe that the man has committed suicide, but they are not overlooking any end of the case.

The body of a man whose description closely resembled that of Swartz was picked up in the Hudson River off Tenth Street, Hoboken, on Monday, and is now in the A. J. Volk morgue, at 633 Washington Street, Hoboken. This body, the police said last night, was not that of Nathan Swartz, though earlier in the day it was believed to be that of the murderer.

Chief of Police Hayes of Hoboken telephoned to Police Headquarters here, and told Deputy Commissioner Dougherty of the resemblance of the dead man to the child slayer. Detective Richard McKenna went to Hoboken accompanied by Henry Alexander, the brother-in-law of Swartz. Alexander was not willing to view the body, and he only looked at it a few seconds. He said that there were many points of resemblance, but he was sure that it was not that of his brother-in-law. It had been intended to have Samuel Swartz, the missing man's father, go to Hoboken, but as a detailed examination showed an absence of many marks by which Swartz could be identified it was decided the body could not be his. It was announced last night at Police Headquarters that the police were sure that the body was not that of the man for whom a country-wide search had been started.

Leaving the Hoboken Morgue, McKenna and Alexander went to Weehawken, where a man had been detained upon suspicion of being the man wanted. He had been released there because the authorities had become convinced that he was not the man sought. Detective McKenna got a description of the man, and he was sure that he was not Swartz. Clues are being received by the police from all over the city and from different places in the East. Several telephone messages were received at Headquarters from persons who were sure they had seen the missing man, and from others who alleged they possessed facts which would lead to his capture.

From Morristown, N. J., came a report that Nathan Swartz had been seen in Whippany, near there, on Friday. This man was looking for work in the Whippany Mills, and being unable to obtain it went away in the direction of Powerville, another small place.

Swartz, it is said, at one time worked in the Whippany Mills, and he is said to have been recognized by some of his old associates. Police Sergt. Morrison of Morristown hurried to Whippany. He learned of many places the alleged Swartz visited, and found the man had left by the road in the direction of Powerville. The Sergeant believes that the supposed Swartz will try and obtain work as a farm hand, as this is a busy season and he could easily get work.

PLANS INDUSTRIAL INQUIRY.

House Passes Hughes Bill for Labor Investigation in All States.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—The House passed by unanimous vote to-day the bill of Representative Hughes, Democrat, of New Jersey, providing for the creation of a Federal commission on industrial relations, of nine members, to be appointed by the President. Not less than three of them are to be employers of labor and not less than three representatives of organized labor. The Department of Commerce and Labor is required to co-operate with the proposed new commission in every possible manner.

The scope of the commission's work is described as an inquiry into the general condition of labor in the principal industries of the United States and existing relations between employers and employes; the effect of industrial conditions on the public welfare, and to the rights and powers of the community to deal therewith, the growth of associations of employers and wage earners, and the effect of such associations upon the relations between employers and employes.

The commission is specifically directed to seek to discover the underlying causes of dissatisfaction in the industrial situation and report its conclusions.

An appropriation of $500,000 is carried by the bill, and the members of the commission are to be paid $10 a day and actual expenses while engaged in the work of the commission.

COMPLAINTS OF LIGHT BILLS.

Service Commission Will Look Into Edison Co. in Brooklyn.

An investigation into the rates charged for lighting by the Edison Illuminating Company is to be begun by Public Service Commissioner Maltbie on July 30. A number of complaints have been received by the commission saying that the present twelve-cent rate for electrical current and the proposed eleven-cent rate are alike unreasonable and excessive and disproportionate to the cost of manufacturing and delivering the electricity. Moreover, it is alleged that an unfair difference has been made between the rates charged to the ordinary customers and preferred consumers.

The complainants, among whom were Naval Officer F. J. H. Kracke, the Rev. Madison C. Peters, the Rev. J. C. Welwood, the Rev. Henry W. Sneowtzel, Dr. M. L. Funk, and Almoth W. Hoff, also have alleged that, though there is understood to be a close connection between the Brooklyn Edison Company and the New York Edison Company, the rates of the latter are very much less than those charged in Brooklyn.

HELD BY SHOWER, THEY WED.

Assemblyman W. S. Coffey Marries Miss Becker While on Auto Trip.

Special to The New York Times.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., July 17.—Held up by a thunder shower while at the Florence Inn with a party of friends, Assemblyman William S. Coffey of Mount Vernon was married at midnight last night to Miss Alice E. Becker, daughter of Wallace Becker, editor of The Kingston Express, after an eight days' courtship. Miss Becker had been visiting Mrs. Henry Scherp of New Rochelle, and it was there that Mr. Coffey met her.

Last evening Mrs. Scherp suggested that they go for a ride in her car, and, picking up Supervisor Louis Elrodt and Judge W. E. Clark of Mount Vernon, the party came to Tarrytown. When the shower came up and they knew they could not get home some one suggested the marriage, and Mr. Coffey and Miss Becker agreed. They got a license and Judge W. B. Moorehouse was called from his bed at midnight to perform the ceremony.

Mr. Coffey is the son of the Rev. Dr. Coffey, for more than fifty years rector of the old East Chester Church.

TURKISH CABINET QUITS.

Military League to Overthrow Committee of Progress Grows.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 17.—The Cabinet resigned to-day in consequence of the revolt in the army against the methods of the Committee of Union and Progress, (the Young Turks' organization.)

It was thought that the vote of confidence in the Grand Vizier passed by the Chamber on Monday, after he had announced that the Turkish Government refused all the proposed conditions of peace with Italy as unacceptable, would give the Cabinet a new lease of life. The feeling, however, against the dictatorial Salonika Committee, which, behind the scenes, has been paralyzing the departmental action of the Ministers, could no longer be resisted.

Mahmud Shefket Pasha's resignation of the War Office was a protest against the action of the Committee of Union and Progress, which peremptorily countermanded his orders to the troops to abstain from interfering in the elections.

The Military League since formed has rapidly grown and is pledged to obtain the appointment of a new Cabinet, which will enjoy the confidence of the powers. The league is determined to overthrow the Committee of Union and Progress, which is apparently losing the vicelike grip in which it has held the Government and the Turkish Empire since the revolution of four years ago.

Tewfik Pasha, the Ambassador at London, has been appointed Grand Vizier. He has a reputation for good judgment and moderation, and will, it is expected, form a neutral Cabinet. It is probable that he will include in it Nazim Pasha, commander of the First Army Corps, as Minister of War, which would assist in the coalition of the different parties and possibly prevent a dissolution of the Chamber. It is doubtful, however, whether the Young Turk Party would acquiesce in this solution.

The news received to-day from Albania is serious. The troops have been rebuffed by the Albanians in many directions. Four battalions of infantry were recently surrounded on the river Kruma, near Diakova, by Albanians and over 300 troops with three of their officers were forced to surrender. They were disarmed and carried off to the rebel fastnesses. The remainder of the Turkish troops retreated to the town of Diakova, where they are besieged by the Albanians.

BILL TO AMEND SHERMAN ACT

Stanley Committee Will Include It in Report on Steel Inquiry.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—A bill amending the Sherman anti-trust law in many particulars will be included in the report of the majority members of the House special committee of inquiry into the United States Steel Corporation.

One amendment will be directed against the interpretation by the Supreme Court in the American Tobacco Company case that a corporation must be in "unreasonable restraint of trade" in order to be held in violation of the law.

The proposed bill would provide that in any suit, alleging that a corporation or trust exists in restraint of trade, "the burden of proof to establish the reasonableness of such restraint shall be upon the party who contends that said restraint is reasonable."

This provision would demand that the defendant establish its status as "reasonable" rather than requiring the Government to prove that it operated in "unreasonable" restraint of trade.

Another provision would grant to persons or concerns asserting that they had been injured by a corporation adjudged guilty of violating the law the right to damages without bringing an independent suit. This clause of the bill is said to be modeled after one proposed several months ago directed particularly against the United Shoe Machinery Company.

This provision would allow any person or persons injured by the conduct of the defendants to become parties to the Government suit, and, by proving damages, to obtain judgment as if an independent suit had been instituted.

The bill proposed by the majority is said to have the sanction of the minority members. Mr. Stanley returned to-night from New York, where he conferred with Representative Littleton regarding his report. He said he expected Mr. Littleton to sign it.

CATHOLIC COLLEGES UNITED.

Father Hanelman Confirms Report of St. Francis Xavier and Fordham.

The Rev. Joseph F. Hanelman, S. J., Father Provincial of the Society of Jesus, and a member of the Board of Trustees of Fordham University, confirmed yesterday the report that the College Department of the College of St. Francis Xavier had been consolidated with the Fordham University, the new arrangement to become effective in September. St. Francis Xavier College will retain its charter and continue its high school and grammar school, and its name will be preserved on the diplomas issued from the College of St. Francis Xavier of Fordham University.

The consolidation was considered practicable because of the encroachments of the business section on St. Francis Xavier's College, and of the economy in having one Faculty for both. With the removal of the College Department there will be greater possibilities for enlarging the grammar and high schools of St. Francis Xavier.

SUICIDE IN THE SUBWAY.

Young Man Jumps in Front of Train at Fifty-ninth Street.

A young man about 32 years old, who the police say was Sam Siegel of 113 St. Mark's Place, threw himself in front of a southbound Subway train in the Fifty-ninth Street station about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and was killed. The motorman, James Strock, saw Siegel fall, and immediately put on the brakes, but two cars had passed over the body before the train could be stopped.

Then the body was taken from between the rails where it lay, and Patrolman James Wall of the Sixty-eighth Street station was called in from the street above. There had been two spectators of the act on the platform, but they had disappeared, so that Motorman Strock was the only witness. In the pockets of the dead man were found pictures of a baby, several letters in Hungarian, and $2 in money.

COLLECTED $1,655,578 TO HELP ELECT TAFT

RETURNED DU PONT'S $20,000

Suits Against Powder Trust Made Contribution Undesirable, Said Mr. Hitchcock—Some Contributors.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—The story of the Republican campaign fund in 1904 was told to the Senate Committee on Campaign Expenditures to-day by Postmaster General Hitchcock, who was Mr. Cortelyou's right-hand man in the Roosevelt campaign and who was National Chairman in the campaign that elected President Taft.

In the way of contributions, he said, he had nothing to change in his statement filed at Albany, showing a total of contributions of $1,655,518.27. The law against receiving contributions from corporations, said Mr. Hitchcock, had already gone into effect, and his committee strictly obeyed it. None of the stockholders of the Tobacco Trust contributed, as far as Mr. Hitchcock could remember, in 1908, and the one questionable contribution, he said, was returned. That was $20,000 offered by Gen. T. Coleman du Pont of Delaware, now a supporter of Col. Roosevelt. His offer was rejected because of suits pending against his company.

"He turned it over to the Treasurer, George R. Sheldon," began Mr. Hitchcock. "When I learned of it I sent for Mr. du Pont and told him that I did not think we could accept it because the Government had a civil suit against a corporation in which he was interested. I instructed the Treasurer to return it, and he did so."

Senator Paynter asked if this contribution was not then given to some other fund.

Mr. Hitchcock replied that Gen. du Pont declared he felt he was not doing his part, and asked if he could not give the money in some way. Mr. Hitchcock said he had replied in the negative.

"I am positive he did not contribute it to any other fund," he added, "because I have talked to Gen. du Pont about it since the campaign. He said that when the fund was returned he considered he had given it to a cause, and placed it on special deposit."

"It may come in handy," remarked Senator Oliver, aside.

"Is he a Roosevelt man?" inquired Senator Paynter.

The question was unanswered. Mr. Hitchcock insisted that, with the exception of about twenty-five, all the contributions were below $5,000.

"We figured that the more persons we could get to invest the more interest they would take in the success of the venture," explained the former Chairman.

Mr. Hitchock said friends of the party came forward with large contributions. The first friends he mentioned in that connection were Charles P. Taft, brother of President Taft, who contributed $50,000; William Nelson Cromwell, $25,000; Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson, $25,000; Andrew Carnegie, $20,000; William Smith Cochran, $15,000; Frank Munsey, $10,000; Whitelaw Reid, $10,000; M. C. Borden, $10,000, and Gen. Corbin, for a number of persons, $10,000.

During the examination Mr. Hitchcock remembered that a number of banks contributed $5,000 each, and that they might have been interested in corporations, but he thought, at any rate, that was a small contribution for them.

Several Senators inquired if the books of the National Committee showed the amount collected in the States under its direction.

"Yes," responded Mr. Hitchcock. "My object in appointing the Chairmen of these State Finance Committees was to superintend the collection of funds, and to require the State Committees to report to the National Committee."

"Did the Tobacco Trust contribute?" inquired Senator Paynter.

"No, Sir."

"Any from stockholders of the Steel Corporation?"

"I believe some of the men I have mentioned as contributing at the opening of the campaign are interested in it. I think Frank Munsey is."

"And Mr. Cochran?" suggested Senator Oliver.

"Yes, Sir."

Senator Paynter asked Mr. Hitchcock if he were acquainted with any of the stockholders of the International Harvester Company. He said he knew the McCormicks, Frank Munsev, George Perkins, and Clarence S. Funk.

"Did Mr. Perkins contribute?" asked the Senator.

"I do not think so."

"Did the McCormicks?"

"Not that I remember. They would be more likely to contribute to your party, Sir."

When asked if Mr. Funk contributed or if he had requested him to do so, Mr. Hitchcock replied he never talked to any officer of any corporation about contributions during the campaign.

To-morrow William F. Sheehan of the Democratic National Executive Committee in 1904 will testify.

CHARLES D. HILLES ARRIVES.

Republican National Chairman Takes Up His Office in Times Building.

Charles D. Hilles, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, arrived in this city yesterday to take up his new duties as campaign manager for President Taft. He had a long talk with Republican State Chairman William Barnes, Jr., at the Hotel Manhattan and later went to the Eastern headquarters of the committee in the Times Building.

When questioned there by some reporters Mr. Hilles said he had no statement to make and probably would have little to say before the meeting of the Republican National Committee's sub committee is held here to-morrow. At this meeting a treasurer of the committee will be selected, as well as an Executive Committee and an Advisory Committee. It was predicted yesterday that Mr. Barnes would be appointed to one of these committees.

CONANT SUCCEEDS SMITH.

New Yorker Has Been Deputy Since 1909—Allen in Andrew's Place.

WASHINGTON, July 17. — President Taft sent to the Senate to-day the nominations of George F. Kramer to be Postmaster at South St. Paul, Minn.; Sherman P. Allen of Vermont to be Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, and Luther Conant, Jr., of New York to be Commissioner of Corporations. The latter succeeds Herbert Knox Smith, resigned to join Col. Roosevelt's new party.

Mr. Conant has been Deputy Commissioner of the Bureau of Corporations since 1909. Previous to that he was a Special Examiner in the bureau, and had been a financial writer on a New York newspaper. He is 40 years old, was born in Massachusetts, and was educated at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. His home is in New York City.

ROOSEVELT SPLIT IN GEORGIA

Rival Organization Issues Call to Choose Chicago Delegates.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 17.—The Roosevelt party in Georgia, while still in swaddling clothes, is split. There are two rival organizations, and each has issued a call for a convention to select delegates to the Chicago Convention to be held on Aug. 5.

The negro has caused the split in Georgia. Roger Dewar, who has one faction, has called a convention, regardless of color. St. Julien Yates, who heads the Roosevelt "White League" of Georgia, has called a convention in which it is openly announced that white men will rule.

ELEVATOR FALLS; SIX HURT.

Five Likely to Die—Puck Building Car Dropped 7 Stories.

Six men were injured—five of them perhaps mortally—when a freight elevator in which they were descending yesterday afternoon snapped from the two cables supporting it and fell from the seventh floor to the subcellar of the Puck Building, at Mulberry and Houston Streets. The injured men were:

FREUND, CARL, stock clerk, 515 East Eighty-sixth Street; cut on head by snapped cable and suffering from shock; removed to home.

NOLAN, EUGENE, operator of elevator, 278 Mulberry Street; internal injuries; removed to St. Vincent's Hospital.

HENDERSON, EDWARD, driver, 279 Seventy-second Street, Bay Ridge; internal injuries; removed to St. Vincent's Hospital.

MARKOWITZ, MARTIN, porter, 389 East Eighth Street; internal injuries; removed to St. Vincent's Hospital.

POSNER, DAVID, driver, 57 East Fourth Street; internal injuries; removed to St. Vincent's Hospital.

SIMON, ISIDOR, 48 Prince Street; internal injuries; removed to St. Vincent's Hospital.

The elevator, in charge of Nolan, had just left the seventh floor on its downward trip from the loft occupied by Lissner & Co., where it had taken aboard five men and a hand truck loaded with trousers. Almost immediately cables overhead parted and the car dropped. Nolan grabbed at the tiller rope, but the rope only burned his hands as the car shot downward along it. There was no automatic device to stop the car, but Nolan grabbed at the check rope in the centre of the car to shut off the steam. It did not help. The car struck the subcellar floor and the platform splintered into bits. The steel cables piled up in a tangled mass upon the steel roof, driving it almost to the floor of the car. In the midst of the wreckage the six men lay moaning in the dark corner of the subcellar.

Employes of the building rushed to give assistance, and extricated the men from the mass of wreckage. In the street above ambulance surgeons from St. Vincent's Hospital attended them, removing all except Freund to the hospital. There it was said last evening that the condition of all five was serious.

According to Supt. Jannecke of the Puck Building the elevator had not been inspected by the Department of Buildings for two years or more. It was tested, however, he said, in March by Inspector Langford of the Ocean Accident Insurance Company, with whom the owners of the building hold a policy insuring the elevator. The Inspector ordered new cables put in, and the order was obeyed. As a result, according to the Superintendent, the car was passed as in excellent condition upon a later inspection on May 24.

Supt. Miller of the Department of Buildings sent Inspector Dietrich to make an inspection of the wrecked elevator yesterday and to report to him to-day. Mr. Miller declared last evening that the records of the department showed that three elevators in the Puck Building had been in inspected on March 12, but he declared that he did not believe the wrecked elevator of yesterday was among them.

The Building Department, he said, did not inspect freight elevators, and this particular elevator was so classed.

LORIMER NEVER ELECTED.

Gov. Deneen Is Advised He Cannot Fill Senatorial Vacancy.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 17.—Attorney General Stead handed to Gov. Deneen an opinion in which he held that the Illinois Legislature failed to properly elect William Lorimer to the United States Senate, and therefore a vacancy did not exist by reason of Mr. Lorimer's unseating. Consequently Gov. Deneen was neither called upon nor did he have the power to fill the Senatorship by appointment.

It is generally conceded that Gov. Deneen will follow the advice of the Attorney General, and let the next General Assembly elect two United States Senators. It is unlikely that Gov. Deneen will call a special session of the Legislature to name a Senator, for the reason that such an election prior to next January would make Lawrence Y. Sherman the junior Senator. It is said the Governor is not disposed to deprive Sherman of the seniority.

While Attorney General Stead's investigation of the law was hurried, he holds in effect that Mr. Lorimer's election never took place and that he was a Senator "de facto" only. The Attorney General's opinion holds that the action of the Senate in declaring Lorimer's election was accomplished by corrupt methods clearly establishes that Lorimer never had a legal title to the office.

The situation is the same, in the opinion of the Attorney General, as if the Legislature of Illinois in 1909 had failed absolutely to elect a Senator. He holds further that any temporary appointee of the Governor to fill a portion of the term supposed to have been started by Lorimer would not have title to the office of United States Senator. In other words, since the Legislature failed properly to elect a Senator in 1909 it is up to the Legislature and to the Legislature only to elect a man to succeed Albert J. Hopkins, whose term expired three years ago.

TARIFF BILLS DOOMED.

Senate Filibuster Makes a Vote Possible at Early Date.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—A little filibuster by the Senate Democrats to-day gave them a shade of a victory that will permit a vote on the tariff bills at an early date. But as it had been already arranged either that the bills should be defeated by the well-nigh solid vote of the Republicans or else allowed to pass with the Canadian reciprocity amendment that would kill them in the House, the victory was regarded as important solely for the campaign purpose of having record votes on each measure.

The filibuster began as soon as Senator Simmons of North Carolina, who is handling the tariff fight for the Democrats, found that he could not supplant the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill by the woolen tariff measure. He forced a roll call on that, and Chairman Warren of the Appropriation Committee succeeded in taking up the Money bill by a vote of 35 to 28. To force concessions from the Republicans, Mr. Simmons demanded the full reading of the 200 pages of the measure. That brought the Republicans to terms, and in hurried conferences an agreement was reached looking to early votes on tariff measures with as little debate as possible.

Thousands of Mothers and Babies
IN THE Tenement Districts
Must Get Relief from THE STIFLING HEAT.

Many appeals for fresh air relief are received by us every day.

If you have returned from your Summer rest, you appreciate the benefits of a vacation. If you have not, you still realize its necessity for the over-worked and under-rested.

WILL YOU NOT HELP THEM?

Think of the suffering in the tenements these hot days. It will make you happy to know that some poor family is enjoying the ocean or country breezes, or is receiving relief through you.

Here are a few possibilities:

$2.50 will keep a teething baby as your guest at the seashore or in the country for a week. Twice that amount will give the baby's worn-out mother a rest, too.

$5.00 will pay a week's board on a farm for a boy or girl who cannot continue work without a rest and change of air.

$10.00 will pay a week's board for a tired mother and delicate baby on a desirable farm, or it will make a family of four happy for a week at Sea Breeze, and strong for many months, possibly years.

$20.00 will keep a mother and three children, or two "cash girls" (sisters) at Sea Breeze for two weeks of fun and unaccustomed joy.

$100.00 will send fifteen hard working girls to the country, or ten mothers and thirty children to Sea Breeze for a week.

TELL US HOW MANY YOU WILL HELP.

WILSON PICKS HIS VERANDA CABINET

This Is the Name Coined for the Men Who Will Advise Candidate on His Campaign.

NO BOSSES AMONG THEM

List of Those Selected by Governor as His Leaders Differs Greatly from the One Given Out in Chicago.

Special to The New York Times.

SEA GIRT, N. J., July 17.—Ten men who hereafter will head Gov. Wilson's campaign, will visit the Democratic nominee for the Presidency to-morrow. Not one of the men is a politician of the old school. They represent personal ability in each instance and there are no political bosses among them.

These men are coming here for the first council of war of the Wilson campaign. They will outline the campaign problems and decide upon the make-up of the Campaign Committee which Col. William F. McCombs was authorized at the meeting of the National Committee in Chicago to appoint. They will carry a name taken from the fact that Gov. Wilson's political discussions have so far occurred in rocking chair parties on the veranda of the Little White House. They will be known, it is expected, as members of the "Veranda Cabinet." These are the men who will come here to-morrow: Col. William F. McCombs of New York, Robert S. Hudspeth of New Jersey, Josephus Daniels of North Carolina, Willard Saulsbury of Delaware, A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania, Joseph E. Davies of Wisconsin, Senator Gore of Oklahoma, Senator O'Gorman of New York, William G. McAdoo of New York, and Albert S. Burleson of Texas.

Friends of Gov. Wilson studied the list of guests closely to-night. They were convinced that every man on it was a man whom the country at large would take notice in the very near future, and through whom the country might fairly judge Woodrow Wilson on the standard of "the company he keeps."

There was much comment here over the fact that an entirely different list of guests had been sent out from Chicago as the men on whom Gov. Wilson would depend for political advice throughout the campaign. Those who know the Governor speculated on the fact that he had declared at Atlantic City that he proposed to wage a war without quarter on every man in public life who was serving not public ends so much as himself—who "played politics" as a game from which to win private and personal reward.

When the list from Chicago arrived here it contained the names of many of the old wheel-horses of the Democracy. The Governor's friends contrasted the list and its array of bosses with the known antipathies of Gov. Wilson. They concluded that the list had been prepared by some one who expected this campaign to be conducted as other campaigns had been conducted, and who could not realize the revolution in political methods to which Gov. Wilson has pledged himself.

The older politicians seemingly could not believe that Gov. Wilson would ignore certain men who had figured prominently in the party in the past. The younger politicians could not reconcile the Governor's views, as they estimated them, with the list of names submitted from Chicago. The result was that many wagers were made as to who would and who would not sit down for the council of war at the campaign's opening. Gauged by the list of those now known to be coming, the younger politicians won their wagers without exception. There was only one point on which both factions agreed, and that was that the group selected to come to-morrow thoroughly represented Woodrow Wilson personally. As soon after the conference to-morrow afternoon as possible Col. McCombs will announce the names of those who are to serve on the Board of Directors for the campaign.

Gov. Wilson tried hard to-day to get enough time away from visitors to begin the task of preparing the speech of acceptance he is to deliver on the lawn near his home here on Aug. 7. This speech is considered by Gov. Wilson to be the most important one he will deliver throughout the campaign. The Governor's morning was taken up, however, by callers, and in the afternoon he fled from the Little White House to the golf course, where he played without a partner for two hours.

'MURDER' TO NAME WILSON.

Congressman Hill (Rep.) Says Clark Should Have Been Named.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTH NORWALK, Conn., July 17.—"The nomination of Wilson was murder; it was assassination. Clark was the best man and should have been named." This was the reply of Congressman E. J. Hill, Republican, of the Fourth Connecticut Congressional District, at his home here to-day when asked what he thought of Mr. Wilson's nomination.

In giving his opinion of Taft's chances for re-election if the Progressives nominate Col. Roosevelt, Congressman Hill said:

"Taft will win. He is getting stronger every day."

JOIN CLARK IN WILSON VISIT.

150 Democratic Representatives to Go to Sea Girt on Saturday.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—One hundred and fifty Democratic representatives, headed by Speaker Champ Clark, will visit Gov. Woodrow Wilson on Saturday at Sea Girt, N. J., leaving Washington on a special train over the Pennsylvania Railroad at 8 o'clock on Saturday morning and arriving in Sea Girt at 1:15 o'clock.

They will be heralded by Speaker Clark in a brief speech and introduced to Gov. Wilson by Representative Hughes of New Jersey.

Interesting Theory of C. P. Taft.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, July 17.—Charles P. Taft has the following editorial in his newspaper this afternoon:

> Woodrow Wilson, Democratic candidate for the Presidency, is being supported in New York City by The New York Times and in Cincinnati by the local Scripps paper. As there is little or nothing in common between The New York Times and The Cincinnati Post in the matter of political philosophy, or in any other matter so far as that goes, it is reasonable to say that somebody is being fooled.

DEMOCRATS ARE UNITED.

Split in Pennsylvania Central Committee Is Healed.

HARRISBURG, Penn., July 17.—Harmony was effected and the "reorganization wing" of the party was placed in complete control at the meeting of the Democratic State Central Committee here to-day. Walter E. Ritter, who was chosen Chairman by the "regulars" last year and who would still have six months to serve, withdrew in favor of George W. Guthrie of Pittsburgh, who was chosen at the same time by the reorganizers.

In the only contest, William J. Brennan, for many years Democratic leader of Allegheny County and City Chairman of Pittsburgh, and his supporters were refused places in the committee by a large vote.

The question of fusion with the Keystone Party on the State ticket was left to the party's Executive Committee. It was decided to pledge all Senatorial and legislative nominees to support the progressive measures in the State platform and to oppose the re-election of Senator Penrose "or any adherent or representative of the system he now represents."

TO FIGHT HARD FOR ELECTORS

Taft Refuses to Make Any Compromise with Roosevelt Men.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 17. — President Taft made it plain to-day that he intends to join issue squarely with Col. Roosevelt in every State and make a straight-out fight for the entire Republican electoral vote of the country. The President's position was set out to-day by Senator Gamble and Representative Burke of South Dakota, who were authorized by him to announce the determination reached last week, when the Pennsylvania situation was discussed.

When this tangle was under consideration State Chairman Wasson, representing Boss Flinn and the Roosevelt faction, showed hostility to a plan for calling the State Convention together again and solving the problem of doubtful Electors. He realized that the defection from the Roosevelt ranks of Mayor Magee of Pittsburgh and others would probably mean the indorsement of the President by the same delegates who before the Chicago Convention recognized Col. Roosevelt as the regular candidate.

But the President saw that the plan to place the names of all the Electors, whether favorably disposed to himself or to Col. Roosevelt, under both emblems, with the understanding that they should vote for the man under whose emblem they received the most votes, might leave him, even if victorious, at the mercy of hostile Electors, and he sent Mr. Wasson away in defeat. The same question came up in regard to Maryland, where the Electors have shown signs of bolting the party nominee, and in a still greater degree it is true of South Dakota, Illinois, Michigan, Kansas, and West Virginia.

The story of the rejection of Mr. Wasson's scheme was carried to Oyster Bay a few days ago by Editor Van Valkenberg, and Col. Roosevelt repudiated the entire plan. Apparently smarting at the position to which he had been forced of seeming to have made overtures, only to have them rejected, he came out in a characteristic statement, declaring that he would never compromise.

That statement of the Colonel's was received with great amusement in Washington, where the efforts of Flinn and the Roosevelt leaders in Maryland were still fresh in public memory. That explains why the President's statement today is not taken at all as an answer to the Colonel, but merely as carrying another step further the decision that forced the Colonel to repudiate his own lieutenants.

In South Dakota the Presidential Electors were nominated by a convention controlled by Roosevelt men, although the convention posed as a Republican body. These Electors are known as Roosevelt men, and will, it is believed, vote for the Colonel if they carry the State. The Taft people are helpless as matters stand, and a number of prominent Republicans went to the Whtie House to-day to confer with the President.

The committee, which is going from here to New York to consult with Chairman Hilles of the Republican National Committee, consists of J. C. Simmons of Aberdeen, Chambers Keller of Leeds, George Jeffers of Dallas, and J. T. Cash of Bonestell. They will be accompanied by Senator Gamble and Mr. Burke.

The detailed answer which President Taft's advisers will make to charges that his nomination at Chicago was procured in illegal fashion was one of the first subjects that greeted Carmi A. Thompson of Ohio, when he assumed today the post of Secretary to the President. He discussed it with former United States Senator Charles Dick of Ohio, who had charge of the Taft contests before the Republican National Committee at Chicago.

The statement reviews every contest and is longer than any Presidential message, but a comprehensive abstract will be drafted. Republican leaders intend to arm Taft speakers with all the facts in every contest in every State they visit. The abstract probably will be made public through the newspapers, and the full answer published in pamphlet form.

TAFT'S NEW SECRETARY BUSY

He Favors Reciprocal Square Deal with Newspaper Correspondents.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Carmi Thompson, the new secretary to the President, was at his desk early to-day, and through the long sweltering hours of a White House day, which is twice the length of any other laboring day, dug into the status quo ante where Mr. Hilles left it before the Chicago Convention.

At the close of the day he gave a "séance" to the newspaper men, and in a brief speech announced that he desired to adopt a new deal by which the White House offices would be less exclusive, and the newspaper men might feel that they could get at him any time during the day to get the news.

"I'm for the reciprocal square deal," said Carmi. "I will treat you fairly, and you must treat me fairly. I realize that what you want is the news. Any one can come in here any time and get it, but it will not always be exclusive. We must tote fair with all. How's that?"

Inasmuch as during the last three years the correspondents have never heard such encouraging talk about their work at the White House they replied in concert: "That surely is the square deal."

TEXAS PRIMARIES JULY 27.

Few Progressives Expected to Vote Owing to Mix-Up of Dates.

DALLAS, Texas, July 17.—Texas adherents of the new party movement have arranged for precinct primaries in Texas on July 27, and it is probable that few Progressives will attempt to vote in either the Republican or the Democratic primaries, which will take place the same day. The primaries are to choose delegates to State Conventions to take place Aug. 13.

No definite announcement has been made as to whether the Progressives will attempt to capture the Republican State Convention, this being left for determination, it is said, until after the Chicago Convention.

HELENA, Mon., July 17. — From a meeting attended by representatives of twelve Montana counties a call went out last night for a mass convention of Roosevelt supporters to be held in Helena on July 29, at which delegates will be named to the convention of the new party. The call invites all Progressives to attend, but limits each county to ten votes in the convention. The meeting went on record by resolution as favoring a third party in Montana, but the placing of State and county tickets in the field was left to the convention.

MEET TO ORGANIZE EMPIRE DEMOCRACY

Those Wishing to Attend Conference on Move to Put Down Tammany Force Open Session.

FRIEDENWALD OPPOSES PLAN

Tells Insurgents He Fears Effect on Wilson's Campaign of Any Split in the Democratic Ranks.

With the launching of the Empire State Democracy at a meeting held last night in the Hotel Belmont another call was issued to independent Democrats to revolt against the influence of Tammany Leader Charles F. Murphy and the clique that stands with him in Democratic affairs in this State. This time the appeal was made on the ground that the continued domination of Tammany Hall in the Democratic organization might endanger the National ticket in this State.

The meeting last night was intended merely as a conference of some thirty or thirty-five men of pronounced anti-Tammany tendencies, who were summoned to meet by letters sent out last week. But the plans became public, with the result that about one hundred men, many of whom have been interested in similar movements before, came to the Hotel Belmont anxious to join in the first meeting of the Empire State Democrats.

Senator Franklin D. Roosevelt, who is at the head of the temporary organization of the new movement, and some of the men who are helping him organize it, were not altogether pleased when they found it necessary to turn what they had expected would be a secret conference on plan and scope into a free and open discussion along the lines suggested by the call for the meeting. After this had proceeded for more than an hour with five-minute addresses in which varying degrees of unfriendliness to Tammany Hall and its leader were expressed, the discussion was brought to an end and those formally invited to attend went into executive session to carry out the original purpose of the gathering.

This included plans to call within the next two weeks a conference to perfect a State organization of the Empire State Democracy. Senator Roosevelt said after the meeting had adjourned that the call probably would be formulated and the time and place for the State conference fixed some time to-day.

When the Executive Committee went into session there was referred to it among other things an address from ex-Senator Thomas C. Whitlock of Brooklyn, which together with a resolution from the same source urged the Empire State Democracy to put in the field complete State and local tickets this Fall. The resolution protested against fusion with any other party or organizataion. The address said:

> To the People of the State of New York:
>
> The Empire State Democracy invites you to join it in ridding the Democratic Party in this State from the leadership and control of Mr. Charles F. Murphy and the men whose instrument he is.
>
> They have brought a once great, flourishing, and representative political organization to the verge of ruin and to the borderland of disgrace.
>
> They have seized a great representative, majority political organization, and by using it as an instrument only for place and profit reduced it to a hopeless minority party, which it will remain so long as they control it.
>
> They are the representatives and agents of that class of "big business" which knows neither parties, nor principles, save that of gain, and finds both Cannon and Fitzgerald equally serviceable.
>
> They, at Baltimore, opposed the nomination of Gov. Wilson because they believed he would defeat President Taft, and supported any candidate whom they believed President Taft could defeat.
>
> They have pursued the same political practices, and by the same means and methods, for so long a time, that their brains have become politically atrophied. No hope of reform can be genuinely entertained, so long as they, or men of similar beliefs, desires, and political principles, are permitted to control the Democratic Party.

Senator Roosevelt presided at the meeting last night. There were many speakers. With one exception they declared in favor of the proposed anti-Murphy organization. The exception was Dr. Herbert Friedenwald, one of the men invited by letter to attend the gathering. Dr. Friedenwald based his opposition on a belief that the movement would injure the prospects as a Presidential candidate of Gov. Woodrow Wilson, whom, according to the sponsors for the proposed organization, it was designed to aid. Dr. Friedenwald was the first speaker.

"I rise with reluctance to express my very strong opposition to the formation of the Empire State Democracy or any other organization along the lines suggested in your your letter at this particular time," he said. "I oppose it because personally I believe that it may lead to the defeat of Gov. Woodrow Wilson. I do not want to be a partner in any movement that may render such a thing possible. I believe that if every Democrat will put his shoulder to the wheel and push hard Gov. Wilson will be elected President, but I believe it will take a long pull and a strong pull and a pull altogether to bring it about.

"To achieve that result I, for my part, would be willing to work with any sort of boss. I would work with Barnes if that would help Wilson. Horrible as the idea may seem, I would work with Theodore Roosevelt if that would elect Woodrow Wilson. If you want to elect Roosevelt President, then you can go ahead with this movement, but if you want to elect Woodrow Wilson, it is my advice that you work in harmony with any kind of a Democrat who is willing to assist to that end."

It was evident that Dr. Friedenwald had a whole lot more on his mind, but under the five-minute rule he did not have time to say any more just then.

As far as any outward manifestation of sentiment was concerned Dr. Friedenwald appeared to be in a minority of one. Just one man who sat in the gathering applauded his utterances in a half-hearted fashion. After Dr. Friedenwald finished several of the speakers who followed dissented from his views.

Charles F. Rattigan of Auburn, a member of the Democratic State Committee and political lieutenant of Thomas Mott Osborne, Murphy's ardent foe in this State, was the first to take issue with Dr. Friedenwald.

"Wilson is going to carry the State of New York by 250,000 if Tammany gives him a chance," said Mr. Rattigan. "For that reason I am here to say to Mr. Murphy, 'give us a decent State ticket that will not endanger Wilson's chance of election.'"

Julius Henry Cohen, who is prominently identified with the Citizens' Union and many reform organizations, appeared as a regular Democrat at last night's gathering. He expressed the firm belief that Gov. Wilson would be elected President despite Tammany Hall.

"This meeting can do nothing better," he went on, "than send out a challenge that unless Tammany gives us a State ticket which we can vote for without holding our noses we will take advantage of the split in the Republican Party to nominate our own ticket and to prevent the State being prostituted any further than it has been."

There was much enthusiasm as Thomas M. Osborne, ex-Mayor of Auburn, who has been the leader in Democratic anti-boss movements for years, got up to speak.

"Why are we for Wilson?" he asked. "Not because he is Wilson, but because he stands to us as the symbol of true Democracy. But if we should accept any sort of a State ticket Tammany may fasten on us for the sake of harmony, would that be standing for Wilson? I think not.

"We up-State Democrats are through with that sort of thing for good. We are willing to accept defeat this year, and next year, and the year after, and the year after that, to the end that some day we may have a decent Democratic organization in this State—an organization symbolic of the sort of Democracy Wilson stands for. We can never have that with Murphy. Whenever we try to get the sort of Democracy Wilson typifies Murphy and his clique are always found blocking the way.

"If you want Murphy down here you are welcome to him. But keep him down here, where he is appreciated."

Before the meeting adjourned Dr. Friedenwald again got the floor and implored those organizing the movement to confer with friends of Woodrow Wilson in their State before going any further.

$20 A SEAT TO SEE ROOSEVELT NAMED

was born on July 6, 1854. The Colonel's followers in Michigan were anxious to have him attend that auspicious event, but it was learned from Senator Dixon yesterday that the Colonel would send his regrets.

Senator Dixon had cheering intelligence from below Mason and Dixon's line yesterday, when C. W. McClure, President of the McClure Ten-Cent-Company of Atlanta, Ga., brought word that the State of Georgia was aflame for Roosevelt. Julian Harris, son of Joe Chandler Harris, the humorist, and Harry W. Grady, Jr., son of one of the late editors of The Atlanta Constitution and one of the foremost publicists of the South, were said to be out for the Colonel.

"Both these men are sterling Democrats," said Mr. McClure. "There are hundreds of others less prominent, but equally sincere, to my knowledge who will vote for the Colonel in November down our way."

Senator Dixon said last night that a full attendance of delegates from all the States of the Union was assured at the Bull Moose Convention in Chicago.

"It will be such a great gathering," said Senator Dixon, "that we have found it necessary to get the Coliseum, where we had expected to get along with merely a large hall. It is sure going to be some convention, believe me."

State Conventions of the new party to be held are:

Nevada, at Reno, on July 23; Maryland, at Baltimore, on July 25; Georgia, at Atlanta, on July 25; Oregon, at Portland, on July 25; Montana, at Helena, on July 29; New Mexico, at Albuquerque, on July 29, and Louisiana, at New Orleans, on Aug. 2.

Florida will send a double delegation to Chicago, giving each delegate half a vote.

Staten Island Progressives effected a temporary organization of the Roosevelt party in Richmond County last night at the law offices of Charles J. D. Noble in Stapleton. Representatives of all sections of the island were present and signed the articles of organization.

OPPOSES ROOSEVELT TICKET.

His Michigan Chairman Will Seek Office as a Republican Nominee.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., July 17.—Charles A. Nichols, Chairman of the Roosevelt forces in Michigan during the preliminary campaign, stated to-night that he saw no necessity for the Roosevelt programme of forming a complete new party, and that he would be a candidate for re-election as City Clerk on the regular Republican ticket.

"There is no need for a bolt. We will reform the Republican Party instead," he said. "I shall be a delegate to the Progressive Convention at Jackson and as far as Roosevelt's candidacy is concerned, I shall help nominate him and do all I can toward carrying Michigan for him. But there is no necessity for organizing a new party."

Mr. Nichols and W. F. Knox were called to Oyster Bay last week for a conference on the policy to be pursued by the Michigan Progressive Convention. After he had seen them Roosevelt refused to attend the convention.

Committeeman Stanley of Kansas Says They Have No Right on Ticket.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWTON, Kan., July 17.—A temporary restraining order was issued by Judge C. E. Branine in the District Court here today enjoining every County Clerk in Kansas from printing on the official primary ballot under the head of the Republican Party those candidates for Presidential Electors who have openly declared they would support Roosevelt if elected.

The case was brought through Republican National Committeeman Fred Stanley in the name of R. A. Marks and others, Electors. Eight candidates named before the Chicago Convention have declared they will not support Taft if elected.

"We claim," said Stanley, "that they have no more right on the Republican ticket than the Democrats or any other party candidates."

The case will be heard at Hutchinson on July 22.

Speed in building construction is economical in two ways.

It is not only economical in the results it gives, but economical to practise.

Speedy completion means earlier rentals — and it also means a corresponding curtailment of carrying charges during the course of construction.

Delayed completion means the reverse, which explains why we do not deal in delays.

British Government Says It Is Unable to Interfere in Peru.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 17.—In the House of Commons to-day J. Dundas White (Liberal) asked the Foreign Secretary what steps it was proposed to take in relation to the atrocities committed upon native rubber collectors employed in the Putumayo district of Peru.

Sir Francis Dyke Acland, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, said the published facts related to territories in which the British Government had no responsibility and in which it had no power of direct interference. He hoped the publication of the reports would prove helpful by attracting public opinion and stimulating private enterprise to establish a mission.

The British Government, added Sir Francis, would promise that wherever sympathy and support could be helpful it would be readily forthcoming.

SIR GEORGE HOLFORD WEDS.

King George, Queen Mary, and Queen Alexandra Attend the Ceremony.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 17.—King George, Queen Mary, and Queen Alexandra attended the wedding to-day of Col. Sir George L. Holford, Equerry to Queen Alexandra, and Mrs. J. Graham Menzies, daughter of the late Arthur Wilson of Tranby Croft, at the Chapel Royal, St. James's.

The other guests included the American Ambassador and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, who are Sir George Holford's tenants at Dorchester House.

GETS DATA ON LAND BANKS.

Ambassador Herrick Collecting Material to Aid This Government.

PARIS, July 17.—With the object of promoting agricultural development in the United States, American Ambassador Herrick has been engaged since May, when he received instructions from President Taft, in gathering and compiling material for the formulating of plans for an efficient land and agricultural system.

Edwin Chamberlain of San Antonio, Texas, representing the American Bankers' Association; T. Ford of Los Angeles, R. Ingalls of Kansas, and John J. Dillon of New York have arrived in Paris and will assist the Ambassador in this work. Mr. Herrick has already collected important material in the way of statutes, reports, and statistics regarding land mortgage banks and agricultural associations of advanced European countries.

Mr. Herrick will make a detailed report in October to Secretary of State Knox and Mr. Chamberlain will report to the Bankers' Association. No action will be taken by the Government or the bankers until the reports have been submitted.

DON'T WANT OUR BEEF TRUST

Australians Will Fight It if It Tries to Gain a Foothold.

MELBOURNE, July 17.—Answering a question in the House of Representatives to-day with reference to the report that the American Beef Trust was establishing big meat packing works in Australia, Premier Fisher said:

"The Government will spare no efforts and no expense and will use all the means in its power to protect Australia from the rapacity which has characterized the operations of the American Beef Trust in other countries."

BRISBANE, July 17.—Regarding the report that American meat packers are setting up big meat packing works here, a representative of the company concerned denied to-day that it was a branch of the American Beef Trust.

He declared that it was a Queensland company, and that it would be registered here.

AMERICAN ORANGEMEN READY

Delegate to Conference Says 100,000 Would Fight Home Rule.

GLASGOW, July 17.—The triennial conference of the Imperial Grand Orange Council of the World opened here to-day.

Andrew Weir, a New York delegate, assured the assemblage that there were 100,000 stalwart Orangemen in Amreica who were "ready to stand beside the men of Ulster foot to foot and financially in order to wipe out the home rule enemy."

FAMOUS GLOBE ROOM SAVED FOR ENGLAND

Work of Removing Paneling and Ceiling Begun, but They Will Now Be Replaced.

BUYER'S NAME NOT GIVEN

Room in Old Reindeer Inn at Banbury Scene of Cromwell's Council Before Battle of Edgehill.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 17.—The famous Globe Room of the Old Reindeer Inn at Banbury has, after all, been saved for England.

The Evening News, which has been appealing to Englishmen to prevent this treasure of Jacobean art from leaving the country, presumably for America, announces this evening that this object has been attained. The name of the patriotic purchaser of the carvings and ceiling is not announced.

The room has already been partly dismantled, but doubtless the paneling and raised plaster ceiling will now be replaced, just as the famous carved fireplaces of Tattershall Castle, Norfolk, also recently rescued from the all-devouring Americans, will soon be returned to their original positions.

The Old Reindeer Inn bears the date 1662. It has much quaint paneling in various rooms, but that in the Globe Room is one of the finest specimens of Jacobean carved woodwork in this country. The date 1637 is carved on the paneling, and it was in this room that Cromwell held a council before the battle of Edgehill.

As a matter of fact, Banbury is really the richer by the threatened loss of the Globe Room, as the Reindeer Inn has now a new tradition. In the process of removing the paneling, among other interesting "finds," there was discovered a double-barreled pistol behind the paneling near the fireplace. Between the two barrels is the inscription: "Presented to Dick Turpin, at the White Bear Inn, Drury Lane, Feb. 7, 1735." The name of the maker is Baker, London.

Hitherto there had been no tradition of any connection between the famous highwayman and Banbury.

NO AIRSHIP NEAR FORTRESS.

German Authorities Forbid a Flying Ground Near Spandau.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, July 17.—The Berlin Electricity Company, a large concern which a year ago took up the manufacture of aeroplanes, recently laid out an elaborately equipped flying ground near Spandau. At the last moment the War Office forbade flights in the neighborhood on the ground that the military powder magazines near by might be exploded if an aeroplane happened to fall on them.

This is precisely the same pretext given by the Grand Master of the Turkish Artillery for forbidding two Russian airmen to make ascents at Constantinople two years ago.

The Zeppelin airship Victoria Louise, which yesterday flew from Hamburg to Frankfort, made to-day another seven-hour journey near the latter city. On this cruise the airship was formally invested with the dignity and duties of a Postmaster and was provided with a special postmark and stamp to deal with the letters posted aboard by passengers.

COUTTS NOT YET A PEER.

House of Lords Has Only Admitted His Co-Heirship to a Barony.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 17.—The statement circulated on Monday that Francis Coutts had established his claim to the Barony of Latymer was partly incorrect.

What the House of Lords held was that Mr. Coutts had established his claim as co-heir to the Barony of Latymer. Among many other co-heirs are the Duke of Northumberland, the Marquis of Exeter, and the Duke of Atholl.

Mr. Coutt's chances of succeeding to the title are therefore somewhat remote.

Australia Beats South Africa.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 17.—The Australian cricket team to-day won its second victory over South Africa by ten wickets. With four international matches played, Australia has defeated South Africa twice, England has taken one game from the South Africans, and the match between Australia and Enland was drawn.

DETAILS OF WINGED CAR.

Propeller Is Constructed on the Principle of the Action of Birds.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, July 17.—The following are some additional details of the winged motor car, which, as reported in THE NEW YORK TIMES last Saturday, accomplished a run of 320 miles, from Paris to Lyons, last Thursday.

The car is propelled by means of a two-bladed wing propeller constructed on the principle of the action of a bird's wings. The propeller is 45 inches in diameter. The maximum number of revolutions is 2,200 per minute.

The car seats three persons and is designed so as to offer the least possible resistance to the wind.

There is a foot brake acting on the back wheel, to be used in connection with the reverse action of the propeller to stop the car. Change of speed is simply regulated by acceleration or diminution of the speed of the motor.

On the trial trip to Lyons with baggage and passengers the car weighed just over a ton. The time for the run of 320 miles was 19 hours 20 minutes, from which 8 hours 6 minutes must be deducted for stoppage. The average speed was therefore twenty-eight miles an hour, although the road is very hilly. At certain points the speed exceeded sixty miles an hour.

ENGLISH DOCTORS HOLD OUT.

Still Refuse to Attend Patients Under Insurance Act Provisions.

LONDON, July 17.—The doctors as represented by the British Medical Association are still in revolt against the National Insurance act, and announce their intention of refusing to attend patients under its provisions.

An organization, including a number of society persons, nas also been formed with the object of resisting payments for domestic servants. This, however, is chiefly a political move, so that the only real opposition the Government has to face is that of the doctors. The Government has offered to the doctors the sum of 4s. 6d. (approximately $1.08 annually for each person insured, but the doctors demand 8s. 6d.

The working men and working women have taken up the great reform with alacrity, and the Government estimates that of the 13,000,000 persons insurable before the act came into force, upward of 10,000,000 have already registered with approved societies, which have undertaken to administer the act, and that 500,000 others have taken out cards at Post Offices.

Before the end of the week, when the first payments fall due for those drawing weekly salaries, the Government believes that practically all those entitled to do so will have become insured.

While the Unionist Party is making campaign ammunition out of the act, there are many earnest supporters of it among individual members of the party, not the least of whom is Waldorf Astor, who was the Chairman of the committee of the House of Commons which worked out the scheme for the treatment of tuberculous work people in sanatoria. Mr. Astor was desirous of postponing this section of the bill until the sanatoria were ready, but Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd-George was sanguine that these would be ready before they were required.

TAYLOR SALE, $1,792,495.

Total for Art Collection Is the Fourth Largest on Record.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 17.—The books of the Taylor collection, which were sold at Christie's yesterday, brought the grand total of the twelve days' sale up to £358,499 ($1,792,495).

This is the fourth highest sum on record for art sales. The Donato sale stands first, the Doucet sale in Paris last month is second, and the Hamilton Palace sale in 1882 is third.

FAIL TO END DOCK STRIKE.

Two Conferences at Premier Asquith's Residence Prove Fruitless.

LONDON, July 17.—The negotiations looking to the settlement of the London dock strike have again failed.

Late last night Premier Asquith and Lord Devonport, the latter representing the Port of London Authority, met representatives of the men at the Premier's official residence, but no agreement was reached, and the conference was adjourned until this afternoon.

At the conclusion of the second conference it was announced that no progress had been made.

COST COLUMBUS $7000 TO DISCOVER AMERICA

WOULD MEAN $70,000 NOW

Money in 1492 at Least Ten Times as Valuable as Now—Ferdinand and Isabella Had to Borrow the Cash.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 17.—The Madrid correspondent of The Pall Mall Gazette says that some ledgers recently discovered at Palos, Spain, contain interesting information concerning the outlay made by Columbus on his great expedition to the New World.

The armament of the little fleet cost 14,000 pesetas. Columbus and his officers spent about 2,000 pesetas on their personal expenses, and, including the expenses of the crew, 22,050 pesetas was spent for the eight months during which the voyage lasted.

The sum total for which America was discovered amounted to some 36,000 pesetas, or about $7,000.

It has been agreed by some historians that about $4,500, representing the greater part of the outlay on the expedition of Columbus, was contributed by Ferdinand and Isabella, while one-eighth of the cost was furnished by Columbus himself. It has been difficult to tell just where Columbus, in his impoverishd circumstances, obtained this sum, unless it was from the Pinzons, or more probably some noble courtier who was seeking the favor of his sovereigns by showing willingness to support the scheme, however hazardous it looked.

The fact seems to have been that two of the vessels of Columbus were assigned to his service with their crews by a royal order, dated April 30, 1492, after having been taken from the town of Palos in consequence of some offense to the royal dignity. The royal command also provided that Columbus might add a third vessel, which he did, it is supposed, with the aid of the Pinzons.

SCHELLING OPERATED ON.

American Pianist Suddenly Stricken in Switzerland.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, July 17.—Ernest Schelling, the American pianist, while entertaining friends on Sunday at his newly purchased chateau, near Geneva, was taken ill suddenly and conveyed to Lausanne, where Dr. Roux, the famous specialist, operated on Monday in haste, as complications had arisen. THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent was told to-night that Mr. Schelling was out of danger, but in a serious condition still. His wife is staying with him.

Paderewski and other friends of Mr. Schelling make frequent inquiries by telephone as to his condition.

DIVORCE FOR EULALIA.

Reported That Spanish Princess Would Wed French Writer.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, July 18.—The Daily Telegraph's San Sebastian correspondent says that great annoyance has been caused in palace circles by the supposed plans of the Infanta Dona Eulalia, and official negotiations have been opened with a view to prevent their realization. Well-informed persons say that it is Infante Don Antonio of Orleans, the husband of the Infanta Eulalia who is desirous of obtaining a divorce and that, with this end in view, efforts are being made to obtain French nationality for the couple. At present Don Antonio is living near Seville.

Quite apart from any domestic relationship, if the affair is not settled, it will produce serious consequences, as it will raise very complex questions which will be extremely difficult of solution.

The Spanish Embassy in Paris has already been endeavoring to find some means continuing the domestic modus vivendi which was established between Antonio and Eulalia, but the matter is full of difficulties. Well-informed persons state that Eulalia intends to publish a book explaining her past and present attitude. The Government will discuss the matter at the Council of Ministers on Monday next.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Thursday, July 18.—The Temps has received the following telegram from Madrid:

"It is announced that the Infanta Eulalia, whose recent book on 'The Stream of Life' was the object of much comment, is thinking of becoming a naturalized Frenchwoman and marrying a French journalist. The strictest reserve is maintained in official circles regarding the affair."

The journalist is stated to be Jules Bois, a well-known French writer.

HONOR OUR CONSUL GENERAL

Consuls in London Elect Mr. Griffiths President of Association.

LONDON, July 17.—John L. Griffiths, American Consul General in London, has been chosen as President of the Association of Foreign Consuls. This is the first time an American has been thus honored, and the honor is all the greater as Mr. Griffiths has held the London post for less than three years.

The association was organized to enable Consuls General and Consuls in London to become better acquainted with each other, and, through exchange of views, to familiarize themselves not only with the trade and commercial conditions in the country to which they are accredited, but also with the conditions in other countries.

The members, who include all the Consular representatives, meet socially every week at luncheon, and annually give a dinner, which is invariably attended by the Lord Mayor, Sheriffs, and members of the Corporation of the City.

Great Crowd Waving Stars and Stripes Bids Good-Bye to Victorious Yankee Athletes.

OUR RIDERS SCORE THIRD

Horsemanship is of the Best, but "Style and Appearance" Subtract from Points Awarded.

STOCKHOLM, July 17.—The steamship Finland, with the American athletes and officials aboard, sailed from here to-day for Dover, England. At that port most of the party will be transferred to the steamer Vaderland, proceeding to New York. A great crowd gathered at the dock to-day to bid farewell to the visitors, and there was much waving of American flags.

The American Special Commissioner to the Olympic Games, James E. Sullivan, and Everett J. Wendell, a member of the Olympic Committee, will remain in Stockholm temporarily.

Delegates from seventeen countries met to-day and appointed a committee to compile rules for the International Sports Association, under the auspices of which the Olympic Games will hereafter be held. The United States, Great Britain, Germany, France, Hungary, and Sweden are represented on the committee.

As a result of the death of the Portuguese runner Lazaro the medical body has memorialized the International Committee to favor holding the Marathon race during the cooler hours of the day, and also raising the question as to whether the race should retain its ancient form and distance.

The fifth and last event in the military riding competition at the Olympic games held to-day saw the United States team drop from second to third place. Four teams competed—Sweden, Germany, and the United States, each represented by four men, and France by three. The English and Danish riders abandoned the competition.

The style and appearance of the horses ridden by the officers counted largely in this event. The foreign officers had animals which were far more costly than those of the Americans, some of whose mounts were cavalry horses picked at chance, and the horses rather than horsemanship turned the scale.

Col. Frederick S. Foltz, who was in charge of the American Army officers here, were confident that they were as good riders as those of any army, and most of the spectators of the competition agreed with him.

The individual scores in this competition after the completion of the fifth event to-day were:

Nordlander, Sweden, first, with 46.59 points; Rockow, Germany, second, with 46.42 points; Corion, France, third, with 46.36 points.

Then came two Swedish officers and one German with fractions more than 46 points, and these were followed by First Lieut. Ben Lear, Fifteenth Cavalry, who is placed seventh, with 45.91 points; First Lieut. John C. Montgomery, Seventh Cavalry, ninth, with 45.88 points; Capt. Guy V. Henry, Thirteenth Cavalry, eleventh, with 45.54 points, and First Lieut. E. F. Graham, Fifteenth Cavalry, thirteenth, with 45.30 points.

The American officers embarked on board the Finland, which sails for Dover to-night, and thus missed the dinner which was held in honor of the military competitors.

The official record of the combined scores in the five competitions in which the military officers participated shows that Sweden is first with 545 points, France second with 538, and Germany third with 530. The United States takes fourth place with 527.

The Olympic regatta, probably the largest international rowing gathering on record, opened this morning with the race for inrigged fours with sliding seats and with a coxswain. The results were as follows:

Stockholm beat Christiania by two lengths.

Denmark beat Gothenburg by a length and a half.

Norway beat France by five lengths.

The race for eight-oared outrigged shells, with coxswain, absorbed most of the attention of the spectators. The heats resulted as follows:

Germany beat France by a length and a half. Time—6:43. Germany led throughout.

Australia beat Sweden easily. Time—6:57. The race was practically a procession.

Berlin R. C. beat Hungary by two and a half lengths. Time—6:32.

New College, Oxford, beat Norway by a length and a quarter Time—6:42½.

Leander Club beat Canada by three-fourths of a length. Time—6:22½. Sweden II. rowed over unopposed.

The heats of the single sculls demonstrated the difficulty of the 2,000-meter course with its bridges and bends. The boats frequently bumped.

E. B. Butler of Toronto won the third heat against Haglund, Sweden, in 7 minutes 55 seconds. The first two heats were fiascos. Kusik, Russia, beat Heinrich, Austria, in the first, but the Austrian protested, and the heat will be rowed again. In the second heat Incuilly, Australia, beat Stahnke, Germany, but was disqualified for cutting across at a bend and interfering with the German.

In the fourth Kinnear, England, beat Hoffman, Germany, in 7 minutes 44 seconds. The Englishman was only paddling at the end. The fifth was a row over from Mesgaros, Hungary. Simonsen, Denmark, won the sixth from Sourek, Bohemia, who withdrew before the finish, in 8 minutes 40 seconds. Levicky of Hungary and Veirman, Belgium, rowed over the course.

In the second round for in-rigged fours Sweden beat Norway by one length in 7 minutes 39½ seconds. Denmark rowed over.

In the preliminary heats for out-rigged fours Finland beat France by two lengths in 7 minutes 18 1-5 seconds. The Norway students rowed over. Christiania beat Austria, Leibnitz, in 7 minutes 15 seconds, the latter four withdrawing 700 meters from the finish. Belgium beat Denmark by one length in 7 minutes 15 seconds.

Germany, Ludwigshafen, beat Sweden by two and one-quarter lengths in 7 minutes 6 3-5 seconds. England, Thames Rowing Club, rowed over.

AMERICANS ROBBED BY MEXICAN REBELS

Gen. Rojas's Command Seizes Horses and Saddles and Marches on Aguaymas.

FIVE SOLDIERS EXECUTED

Gen. Blanquet Takes El Oro, Defeating Strong Rebel Force—To Search for Agitators Here.

MADERA, State of Chihuahua, Mexico, July 17.—Having looted the Madera Lumber Company's storehouses of $25,000 worth of goods and robbed scores of foreigners of horses and saddles, the rebel command of Gen. Antonio Rojas, comprising 1,000 men, started westward to-day through the State of Sonora for Aguaymas and Pacific Coast points.

The troops are headed for Dolores, where a mountain pass leads into the State of Sonora. Their entrance will be opposed by 1,000 Maderista volunteers, who are reported to be awaiting the rebel invasion.

Friction between Americans and foreigners has been at the bursting point for several days. Horses and supplies were commandeered by the rebels. When they were ordered returned by Gen. Rojas the rebel soldiers protested that they needed mounts, and 500 of them will have to travel afoot unless horses can be procured on the way.

Gen. Emilio Campa, who was imprisoned by Gen. Rojas, was released to-day and started westward with 300 followers.

The railroad south of Madera is being destroyed, and many Americans, who were traveling to Chihuahua from Juarez, are marooned here.

Gen. Rojas executed five men while here for alleged offenses of a trivial character. Gen. Rosalio y Hernandez, Lieut. Cipriano Amador, and three soldiers were the unfortunates.

From a Special Correspondent of The Central News, London.

MEXICO CITY, July 17.—An official bulletin issued last night announces that Gen. Blanquet has taken the town of El Oro in Durango, which had been held by a strong rebel force. The rebels were completely routed and many of them were killed or wounded. The defeat of a band of 500 Zapatistas at Poluitla, in the State of Guerrero, is also officially announced. Sixty of the rebels were killed.

Capt. William Burnside, Military Attaché of the United States Embassy, has returned to the capital from the front.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Extreme agitation exists among the American and other foreign citizens along the line of the Mexican Northwestern Railroad as a result of the retreat of the insurgent army in that direction.

Copies of a proclamation by some of Gen. Orozco's men, charging that the rebel leader has $500,000 in El Paso banks and is preparing to go to the United States to enjoy it, have been received by the State Department.

Somewhere in Mexico Patrick Dunne, an American citizen, is in prison under sentence of death. This much and no more the State Department learned through Representative Kinkaid of Nebraska. Consular officers in various sections of Mexico have been directed to make every effort to locate Dunne and save his life.

Senator Nelson's resolution authorizing the Committee on Foreign Relations to investigate if any one in the United States was or had been fomenting or encouraging insurrection in Cuba or Mexico was ordered favorably reported today.

Here, in the Gimbel Clothing Store for Men are plenty of ways to save money on cool clothes.

The July Clearance of our own fine stock furnishes much of the news. Some of our good tailors, whom we found equally eager to clear their stock, have contributed the rest.

First, the Mohair Suits at $11.75 Priestly Cravenetted and Usually $20

Another man who had bought one of the Mohair Suits in the Sale last year, came back for another, to "spell" his old one. Plenty here today, for a man who has not yet bought his.

Continuing the Clearance of

MEN'S $18.50 to $24.75 SUITS at $14.75

An incomplete size range in each pattern is responsible for this sale. No other contigency could have prompted such reductions, for every suit at its former price was the best value you could possibly obtain.

However, the size lots have become much broken. The quicker we reduce our Summer stocks the greater it will be to our present advantage.

It must not be construed from the foregoing that there will be difficulty in getting fitted. The man who takes advantage of this sale early will find many patterns in every size from 33 to 44 from which to choose, but not every pattern in each size.

Designs are rich self-striped blues, plain grays and browns, and hairline worsteds, in light, medium or dark tones. Every suit is all wool or silk and wool.

The clothes have received the best of tailoring. They are modeled along the English lines, with graceful soft-rolling lapels or on the more conservative American lines.

REINDICT FLAGG FOR BUCKETING

Broker Had Dared the Government to Prove Him Guilty of Violating the Law.

PROMISED 1 PERCENT. A WEEK

Three More Defendants Named in Federal Proceedings Against Man Whose Offices Were Raided.

Jared Flagg, who was indicted with seven associates last September for using the mails to defraud in advertising a stock-broking scheme promising dividends of 1 per cent. a week, was indicted again yesterday by the Federal Grand Jury. All but three of those included in the indictment last year were mentioned in the new indictment, with the addition of Rufus P. Hankey of Detroit, James Allen, and Edward C. De Wolfe of Chicago.

Since the first indictment Flagg has circulated a pamphlet entitled "The Flagg Raid," in which he has given an account of the descent on his offices in 105 West Fortieth Street of former Post Office Inspector Kincaid and his assistants, and has held up to ridicule that official and Assistant United States District Attorney Claude E. Thompson, who has been in charge of the prosecution. After attempting to explain his methods of stock dealing, he declared in this work that if the Post Office Inspectors could prove him guilty of bucket-shop operations he would cheerfully go before any Judge in any court and plead guilty.

The new indictment was considered an answer by the Government to this publication. It was found that after Flagg had been before the Grand Jury and had had every opportunity to explain the workings of the system, which he declared in his book was the foundation of the fortune of the late Frank Work and of 40 per cent. of the late Russell Sage's gains. Flagg was examined for two days and the entire investigation of the Grand Jury consumed ten days.

Those indicted yesterday besides Flagg, Hankey, Allen, and De Wolfe were Daniel N. Morgan, at one time Treasurer of the United States; Alvin M. Higgins, a lawyer of 220 Broadway; Henry A. Jackson, and the Rev. Dr. James T. Schock of the Dutch Reformed Church of Plainfield, N. J. De Wolfe, who is a publisher, is said to have been the largest customer of Flagg at the time of the raid. In an interview he gave at the Herald Square Hotel on Sept. 30 last year he said that on an investment of $10,000, that is one "unit" under the Flagg system, he had made since December, 1910, $4,000 profit. The only way an investor could lose with Flagg, he explained, was by all the stocks of which he was short going up and all of which he was long going up at the same time, which was an unprecedented condition.

Some of the defendants are expected to come in and plead to-day to the new indictment. The trial of the case will probably come on in the Fall.

G. WILLETT VAN NEST FOUND.

Lawyer Appeared Greatly Excited—Taken to a Sanitarium.

G. Willett Van Nest, the lawyer of 20 Broad Street, living at the University Club, whose disappearance was reported to the police last Friday night by his brother, Dr. Rynier Van Nest, residing at the Murray Hill Hotel, was found yesterday by his brother in Newark, brought to New York City and later placed in a private sanitarium. Mr. Van Nest started from Tuxedo Park last Friday to meet his brother in this city and when he failed to keep the appointment, Dr. Van Nest sent out an alarm for him. Soon afterward he was said to have been seen in New Brunswick, N. J.

Arriving at the University Club, Fifty-fourth Street and Fifth Avenue, Dr. Van Nest with Gerard Foster of Lenox, Mass., carried his brother in an automobile to the Greenwich Street Police Station at 12:45 o'clock. All the while Mr. Van Nest appeared greatly excited and had to be restrained. Mr. Van Nest was not locked up at the station house, but an ambulance call was sent in to the Houston Street Hospital, and an unsuccessful effort was made to induce him to return to the hospital with Dr. Livingston.

Dr. Edward L. Hunt of 54 West Fiftieth Street was sent for and he said G. Willett Van Nest was his patient and that he would undertake with Dr. Van Nest the responsibility for him. He was allowed to take Mr. Van Nest away. Dr. Hunt refused to make any statement with regard to the condition of Mr. Van Nest.

G. Willett Van Nest is 60 years old and he has been in feeble health. He is a son of Abraham Rynier Van Nest and was graduated from Harvard with the class of 1874. He has written a number of articles on various subjects for the American Law Review and for London magazines. He is a member of the Bar Association of the City of New York, the St. Nicholas and Holland Societies, and the Union, University, Metropolitan, Tuxedo, Harvard and Down Town Clubs.

WINS SUIT AGAINST MOTHER.

Court Orders Her to Return Property to a Former Pugilist.

William J. Sullivan, a former pugilist, known to the sporting fraternity as "Spike" Sullivan, won his suit against his mother and brother to recover the title of property owned near Coney Island. Justice Blackmar, before whom the suit was tried in the Special Term of the Supreme Court in May last, rendered his decision yesterday.

Sullivan contended that he had conveyed title to the property to his mother on the condition that she should hold it in trust for him and give it back to him when he asked for it. Some time after the transfer of the title his brother, David Sullivan, put some money into the property by paying off the interest on a mortgage and other charges. When William J. Sullivan asked his mother to convey the title of his property back to him she refused to do so.

GENTLEMAN BURGLAR GUILTY

Verdict Against Him on Both Indictments—He Expected to Get Free.

John Kennedy, the "gentleman burglar of Flatbush," who made a professional call on at least forty homes in that section of Brooklyn and got away with $30,000 in valuables, according to the police, was convicted of burglary in the second degree and grand larceny in the first degree yesterday by a jury before Judge Ferris in the County Court, Brooklyn.

Kennedy will be sentenced on Monday on the grand larceny conviction. The maximum term for this offense is ten years. When he finishes that term he may be sentenced to another ten years for burglary.

"Jungle Excursion" Up the Hudson.

A "moonlight jungle excursion" will be held on the evening of July 30, when Louis J. Beck will conduct a party of 500 to Point Pleasant Park, near Croton-on-Hudson, in the steamer Isabel. The party is an outgrowth of the first "jungle excursion" given by Frank Bostock and Mr. Beck at Coney Island several years ago, but this time women are invited to accompany the men. One of the features of the party will be the presence of Capt. Jack Bonavita, the animal trainer, who has promised to bring along his baby Nubian lion. Music will be provided by prominent singers and instrumentalists. If the weather is fair there will be moonlight dancing at the Park pavilion. The boat will leave the foot of East Twenty-third Street at 5 P. M.

LOCKED UP IN TOMBS FOR REALTY DEALS

Edgar R. Jackson of Jackson Brothers Realty Co. Arrested in District Attorney's Office.

WENT THERE WITH LAWYERS

Accused by Customers of Juggling Transactions in Long Island Property—Bail Fixed at $20,000.

Edgar R. Jackson of the Jackson Brothers Realty Company, 307 Fifth Avenue, which has been under investigation by the District Attorney in connection with charges involving an alleged juggling of $2,500,000 in Long Island real estate deals, was arrested in District Attorney Whitman's office yesterday. He had gone there on a hint that three indictments had been found against him. He appeared with his counsel, Rosenthal & Steckler of 135 Broadway.

Later in the afternoon, he was taken before Judge Mulqueen in General Sessions and, after pleading not guilty to grand larceny was remanded to the Tombs in default of $20,000 bail. It was rumored about the Criminal Court Building that the District Attorney would demand twenty-four hours to examine any surety that might be offered for Jackson's release from the Tombs.

As early as the beginning of June a warrant had been issued for Jackson's arrest by Magistrate Butts, sitting in the Tombs Court, on complaint of Miss Mary Griffith of Akron, Ohio, who asked that all dispatch be used in executing the warrant, inasmuch as she feared Jackson might leave the jurisdiction of the court. According to Miss Griffith's lawyers, Whiteside & Stryker of 27 William Street, Jackson, meeting her in 1910, said he had syndicated millions of dollars' worth of property on Long Island, and later Miss Griffith joined him in a similar venture. Jackson, according to her attorneys, represented that he bought forty-three acres from Nellie Hanna of 275 Clinton Avenue, Brooklyn, for $4,000 an acre, or a total of $174,000, paying $103,000 in cash. He took Miss Griffith out and showed her the property.

After giving her a typewritten statement containing the figures, according to her lawyers, he told her he had resold the property, through a Dr. Eastman of St. Paul, for $5,000 an acre. Miss Griffith says she accepted his figures as true, and after returning to Akron and receiving from Jackson corroboration of his statements she sent him two drafts, one for $2,700 and one for $2,300. Later, according to her lawyers, she learned that the property cost only $2,400 an acre, and that Jackson paid only about $30,000 for his equity, making a profit of $70,000.

E. B. Denison of 206 Broadway, who was once associated in Cleveland with the Jacksons, but against whom they have since instituted proceedings charging libel, made public some time ago a list of persons in all parts of the United States, who, he said, had been duped by the Jacksons in their Long Island real estate financing.

In August, 1911, both E. R. Jackson and his brother, O. M. Jackson, were arrested on charges brought by John Coles of Brockton, Mass., and of a similar nature to those that caused his arrest yesterday. The brothers, however, were subsequently discharged.

GIVES NEW TITLE TO MAYOR.

Seeking Tax Relief, Whitridge Calls Him "Protector of the Poor."

Frederick W. Whitridge has conferred on Mayor Gaynor the title of Protector of the Poor, the poor being apparently the Third Avenue Railway Company. Mr. Whitridge is President of that corporation, and is now appealing against the taxation which the State Board of Tax Commissioners has heaped upon it.

In a letter to the Mayor Mr. Whitridge points out that in 1901 the franchises of the Third Avenue were assessed at about $19,000,000, but the Court of Appeals, after a seven years' fight, reduced this valuation by about one-half.

Since then, however, the Tax Commissioners have continued to assess the franchises at $19,000,000, and as the company, on the advice of counsel, has paid only $70,000 annually, the corporation has to-day a large contingent liability.

"It is unreasonable and unprofitable for the State that the decisions of the Court of Appeals should be ignored by the Board of Tax Commissioners, that our settlement should be ignored, and that I should be plunged into new litigation every year," Mr. Writridge writes, and he tells of having applied for relief in vain to the Board of Tax Commissioners, to Gov. Hughes, and to Gov. Dix. He ends his appeal to Mayor Gaynor as follows:

"You have earned what in Eastern lands is the most honorable of titles, that of 'Protector of the Poor.' As such I appeal to you for relief from the gross, pig-headed injustice to which the Third Avenue Railway Company is subjected by these Commissioners in Albany. I want to pay my taxes, not only for the past, but for the future, so I beg for your help."

A Message To The Retail Merchants of New York

Approximately 185,000 visitors arrive in New York every week during the months of July, August and September.

Almost every one of this vast army is a PROSPECTIVE PURCHASER—almost every one intends making some purchases while here.

Hundreds, perhaps thousands, would buy from YOU—if they knew about your establishment and the special offers you no doubt make at this season.

But a large majority of these Prospective PURCHASERS are strangers to New York. They may know about what they want to buy—but they don't know WHERE TO BUY IT.

An attractive announcement well placed in the newspaper that's read by these tourists—(and that means the newspaper that "has the call" at the hotel newsstands) will convey this information to these people who are really looking for it.

In the hotels which house New York's out-of-town visitors the sale of THE NEW YORK TIMES far exceeds that of any other metropolitan newspaper.

AT THE HOTEL ASTOR the daily newsstand sales average:

TIMES	72	Fourth	35
Second	50	Fifth	18
Third	36	Sixth	18

Mr. A. G. Curtis,

Gentlemen:

In reply to your letter of the 29th, beg to state that we have in use this day, the ________ ________ ____ and Garford Trucks and find that the Garford trucks have given us the best satisfaction.

Yours very truly,
THE EMPIRE STATE DAIRY CO
Per Treasurer.

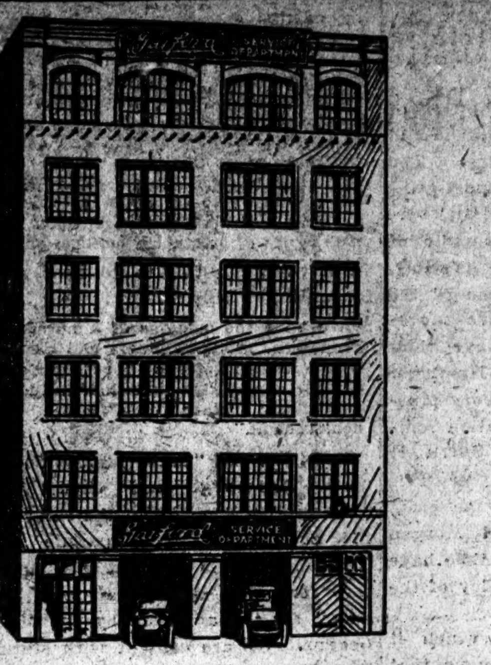
THIS letter was picked at random from hundreds just as convincing. The Empire State Dairy Co. now operates eight motor trucks and says "the Garford trucks have given us the best satisfaction." Short and to the point, but it speaks volumes for Garford efficiency, and so say ALL Garford owners.



OUR interest in you doesn't cease as soon as you buy a Garford Truck. We maintain a complete Service Building in New York, at West End Avenue and 64th St. There are Repair Shops and a Stock Room carrying a complete supply of all Garford parts. This building also offers unusual garage facilities to Garford owners.

Then we have a force of inspectors who critically examine the trucks once every ten days, and a duplicate of their report is sent to the owner. This provides an efficient check upon carelessness or ignorance, and supplies the stitch in time which saves the nine. This inspection is of course without charge, as your interest is our interest. It therefore behooves us to co-operate with the owner in insuring the constant and efficient performance.

Mr. A. G. Curtis,
Messrs. Curtis Brothers,
East Orange, N. J.

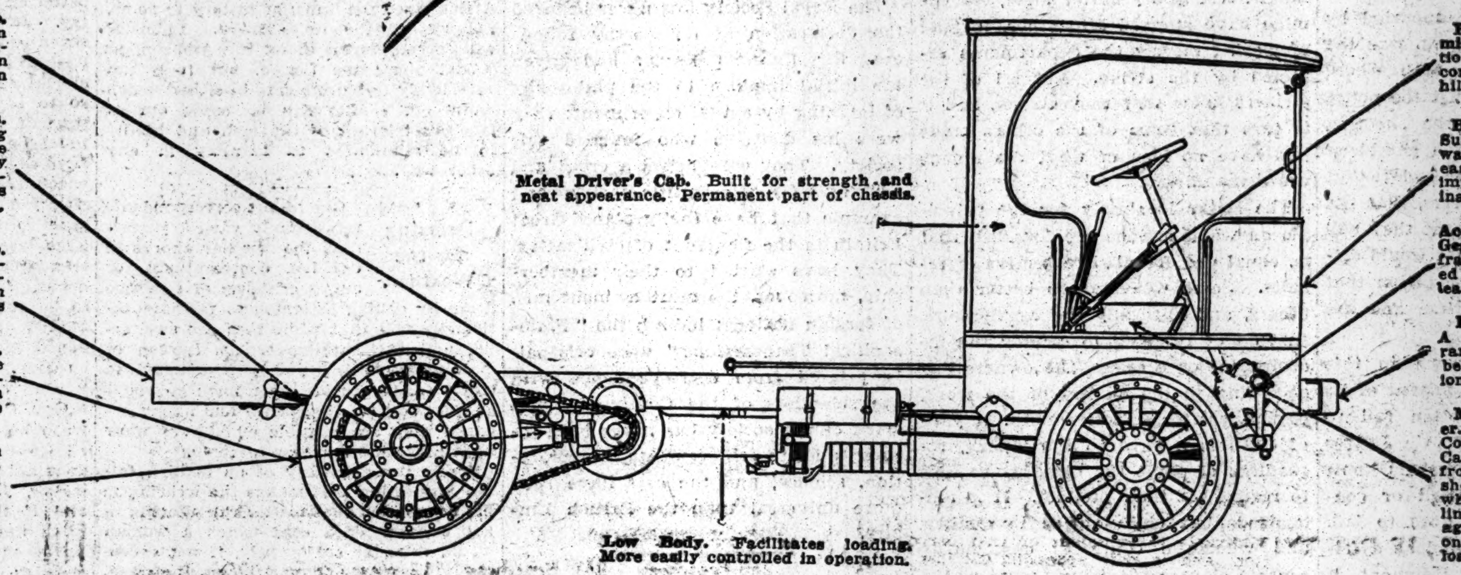
Dear Sir:-

Replying to your favor of the 29th inst., we are operating Sixteen Garford Cars (5 5-ton and 11 1-ton and 1 1/2). These cars are doing very good work for us, and we intend putting in some more of the large size in the Fall. We use the large trucks for delivering goods to our retail stores in suburban towns, such as Tarrytown, White Plains, Portchester, Hempstead, etc., which could not be covered by horses. The smaller trucks we use in our suburban stores for route deliveries to our customers. We had another make of Truck in operation which did fairly good work, but we consider the Garford a better proposition.

Yours very truly,
JAMES BUTLER, Inc.
J. F.

JAMES BUTLER, INC., experimented for two years with motor trucks. Their superiority over horses was proved. Then he purchased a five-ton Garford, which demonstrated its superiority over his previous equipment. The result—he now uses sixteen Garford Trucks. His letter, written not to us, mind you, but to an outsider, is worth reading. "We have had other trucks, but the Garford is a better proposition." No mistaking that.

Why the Garford TRUCK Stands Up



Straight Line Drive. Affords smooth even pull. Eliminates jerking. Reduces strain on frame and torsion members.

Krupp Steel Springs. None better. Strong but resilient side spring. Extra heavy cross spring. Less jostling of load, reduces strain on mechanism, avoids crystallization.

Pressed Steel Frame. Far stronger and lighter than porous channel iron frames used on other trucks. Reduces weight. Unbreakable.

Dual Rear Wheels. Strength to carry the heaviest loads, and affords double traction surface. Hence, more power.

Extra Heavy Torsion Rod. Will stand 50% greater twisting strain than will ever be demanded of it. This is safety insurance. Compare this with other trucks.

Metal Driver's Cab. Built for strength and neat appearance. Permanent part of chassis.

Low Body. Facilitates loading. More easily controlled in operation.

Four Speed Transmission. Has gear ratio to meet every road condition. Takes any hill with impunity.

Headlights Protected. Sunk in dash out of way. Neater, and not easily broken by any impact. Vibration eliminated.

Accessible Steering Gear. Outside of frame. Can be inspected and cared for with least possible trouble.

Heavy Steel Bumper. A veritable battering ram. Mechanism can't be disabled by collisions.

Motor Alongside Driver. Not under him. Completely accessible. Can make adjustments from seat. Permits of shorter wheel-base, which facilitates handling. Less room in storage. Reduces weight on rear axle. Greater loading space.

WERE any of your horses among the 1,200 poor brutes, in New York City alone, that succumbed to the heat during one week of last Summer? Was your delivery system demoralized? Were any of your dollars among the more than a million lost?

If you are one of those who were prostrated, pecuniarily, by the heat, it is well to bear in mind that a good motor truck never tires—never falls from exhaustion—never breaks a leg, and never eats unless it works.

If, however, you were lucky last Summer, remember there will be more hot days this Summer, like those of last week—and more hot Summers coming, with cold Winters sandwiched in between. And your horses cannot be even 50% efficient during either extreme.

If for no other reason than to be absolutely unbiased in your judgment, read the following:

You are probably a business man—not an engineer.

You spend days and nights figuring that perennial puzzle, "How can I get maximum results at minimum cost?" And we want to help you.

So this is to be an understandable guide to carry around in your head—or your pocket. One you can use the minute you agree with thousands of other big business men that your horses are too expensive—too inefficient—too unprofitable to keep pace with modern business.

This brings us to the proposition that most any motor truck is better than horses—and raises the question, "Which truck will give me the most efficient and economical service—will stretch a dollar further than any other?" For that, after all, is the supreme test. Nothing else interests the business man.

We answer, "The Garford." And give these reasons:

Garford trucks are built from stem to stern in the Garford plant—one of the oldest, most conservative and most reputable in the country. That's important. It means, first, that the Garford truck is not an experiment.

It means that responsibility is centered upon one organization whose shoulders are broad enough and willing enough to bear it.

It means the stability of your guarantee is insured.

It means that you do not get an "assembled" truck—the motor made by one firm, the frame by another, and so on. Every part of the Garford is made for co-relative harmony—each part designed and built to do its allotted work—a principle positively essential in any mechanism built to stand the terrific strain of heavy trucking.

It means that you get a machine-made truck. No hand work can approximate the accuracy of the machine, because no two men do work of equal quality. Hence, in hand work one mistake is made to fit another—until the result is one huge composite blunder, which shows up in the daily grind to filch dollars from your pocketbook.

Another thing—important too. Machine work insures interchangeable parts—each precisely like its predecessor. No delay in fitting parts—no off days with the Garford truck. And consider the dollars this machine work saves you, through economical manufacturing methods. A complete set of parts for the average truck usually costs over three times the original price of the truck. But to replace any Garford part entails a comparatively trifling expense.

The frame of a truck is its backbone—its strength. We use a pressed steel frame—many times the strength of the usual but cheaper channel-iron frame, and it weighs much less.

We reinforce the main frame with five sturdy cross-sections, as compared with two or three on the average truck. Result—gigantic strength but less dead weight. And we guarantee this frame for three years.

Garford enthusiasts are those who have tried other trucks. You can't talk fables to men who know.

They know the Garford is operated at from thirty to forty per cent. less than most other trucks. They know even our six-ton trucks run from five to six miles to the gallon of gasoline, as against two or three miles of the average truck. This isn't hearsay—it's fact. Oil consumption is correspondingly economical.

On Garford trucks the tires are guaranteed for 10,000 miles. If a tire wears out sooner you receive a corresponding rebate. When emergency arises, Garford demountable rims facilitate quick change of tires on the road. No laying up the truck. Needn't bother to carry an extra wheel—another saving.

The motor is a brute for strength, and delivers continuous power beyond its rating. Garford motors have for ten years been recognized as honest, consistent performers. Perhaps it will interest you to know we made the first successful four-cylinder vertical automobile motor in America—the type now in general use.

Speed is the curse of the average motor truck. The driver, unable to find anything else on which to exercise his excess energy, takes it out on the truck. At night he is possessed of the mad desire for an early supper and "lets her out" to twenty or thirty miles an hour and jiggles the daylight out of your truck. Your truck, mind you, not his. Result—you pay for his "joy riding" with unwarranted repair bills.

Not so with the Garford. Nothing he can do to make it exceed ten miles an hour or to race the motor on low gear. Neither will it race when clutch is disengaged. If he tries it, the carburetor declines to work and reads him the riot act. A positive automatic governor inside the motor, where he can't reach it, acts as bodyguard to your best interests.

The motor is not under the driver's seat, difficult to reach, and placing the driver high up in the air, where he has to call the Fire Department when he wants to get up or down. Yet we have all the advantages of proper load distribution that this construction affords. Neither is it placed in a bonnet out in front, following pleasure car traditions, and forcing the load all on the rear axle and necessitating that unwieldy—dangerous overhang, so common on the average truck.

This ridiculous overhang isn't there because it is right. Those manufacturers simply haven't solved how to eliminate it. They tell you all about their short wheel-base—true enough. But do they tell you how they get it? No, they let your costly experience unravel the sad story of the overhang. They further attempt to juggle a real vice into an apparent virtue by telling you the overhang weight is required to give greater traction to the drive wheels. Nonsense. If this were true, why don't pleasure cars overhang? They are lighter, and 'twould seem they need this "traction." Why don't locomotives overhang? They pull thousands of tons over smooth, slippery rails, so 'twould seem they need this "traction." Don't be misled. Too much "traction" plays havoc with the bank balance. Remember the excessive overhang. Don't buy a truck that has it.

The position of the Garford motor eliminates the overhang. It is ingeniously located in the most logical possible position—right alongside the driver's seat where he can make any little adjustment, without leaving his seat—merely removing the hood that protects the motor. It is even more accessible than if placed out in front. He sits right down on the chassis frame and gets on and off with a bound.

The motor and driver do not take up half the frame as on other trucks. We place only 60% of the weight on the rear axle and 40% on the front, where it belongs. The obvious result is a short wheel-base, which means quicker handling—shorter turning radius—less wear on tires, and less room required at the loading platform or in the garage—yet retaining full space for the load.

The Garford axles and steering knuckles are of such generous dimensions as to be radical improvements over the average truck. We unqualifiedly guarantee them for three years. Interesting, isn't it, beside the ninety-day guarantee of other makes? Even such little things as bolts, nuts and washers are oversize.

The torsion rod—that great trouble-maker in the average truck—is so massive, so radically different in design, that even the layman is impressed with its strength. Three-year guarantee here also.

Springs are built of imported Krupp steel—the highest priced—the most durable known: Side springs are designed to permit full action when running empty, while a heavy jack spring adds reinforcement under weight of full load. This reduces excessive vibration, which causes that bugbear of all engineers—"crystallization," which is simply the "drying out" of metal—a condition that eventually causes serious breaks.

The Garford four-speed transmission furnishes a gear ratio for every conceivable road, hill or traffic condition. Few trucks equal the Garford in hill-climbing ability. No transmission gear has ever broken. Guaranteed three years.

The Straight line drive of the chain produces a forward movement instead of an upward, which avoids any waste of power and eliminates bearing down, jerky strains on the frame.

Placing the steering gear outside the frame, instead of in the usual position, between frame and motor, permits quick access for lubrication and adjustments—a perpetual reminder to the driver not to neglect it. More economy.

During the last thirteen months 129 Garford Trucks have been sold to some of the largest concerns in New York and vicinity, most of which had tried other trucks. Each and every one is not only satisfied—but highly enthusiastic. Draw your own conclusions. A few of these trucks are shown on the margins. We will gladly furnish you a complete list of owners, and are willing to rest our case in their hands. Ask them what they think of the Garford.

If you know anything of Automobile development, you know of Mr. John N. Willys—man of achievements and sole owner of the Garford Co. His conceded personal ability, backed by unlimited capital, insures Garford permanency and responsibility. This is all-important to Garford owners.

Garford Trucks are built in various tonnages: 1½- 3- 4- 5- and 6-ton capacities. Bodies built to suit individual requirements, or we will sell you the chassis and you can build your own body.

Your order placed now will insure Summer delivery.

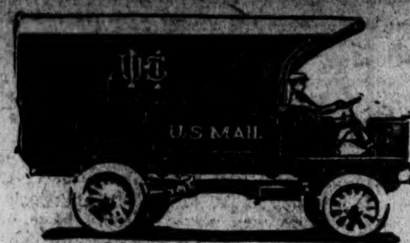
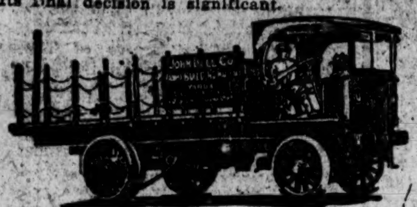
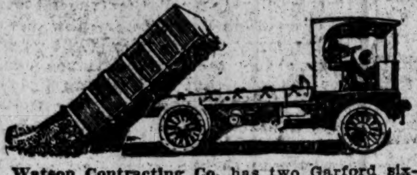
Newark Branch, 987 Broad St.



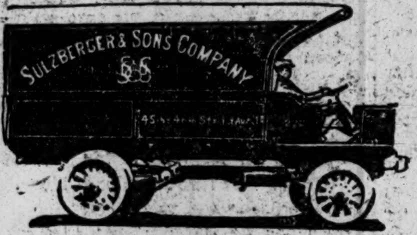
The U. S. Mail Co., which handles the mail contracts in New York, has just ordered 11 three-ton Garfords. And this after two years' experimenting with a dozen different makes. Its final decision is significant.



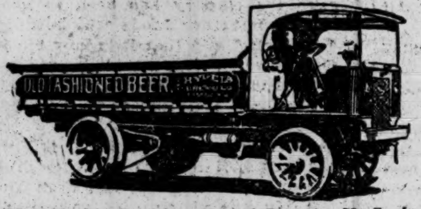
The John Bell Co. delivers about fifty tons a day with this six-ton Garford. It has never been laid up an instant since it went into service. "Most satisfactory," says Mr. Rawling, Vice President.



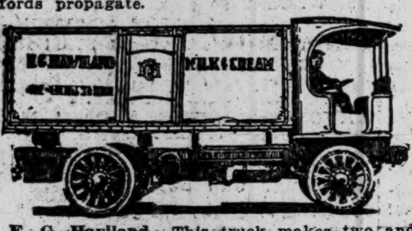
Watson Contracting Co. has two Garford six-ton dump trucks. Each replaced eight horse teams. They haul twice as much per load, and make many times the number of trips.



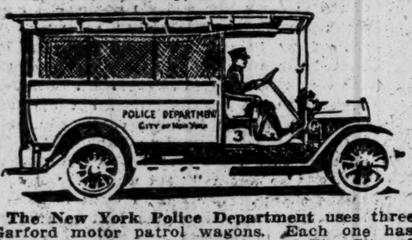
Sulzberger & Sons Co. has over thirty motor trucks. Its most recent purchase is a five-ton Garford. Experience is the best teacher.



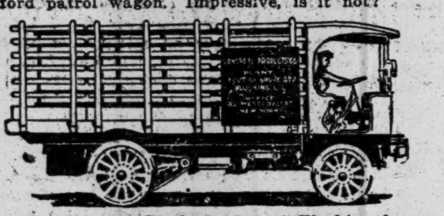
The Hygeia Brewing Co. of Passaic, N. J., is most enthusiastic about the work of this five-ton Garford. Its President has just purchased a second Garford for another concern in which he is interested. Wonderful how Garfords propagate.



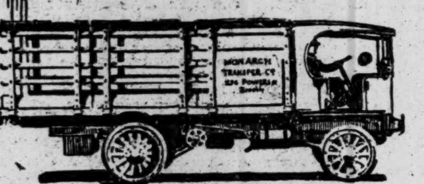
E. G. Haviland. This truck makes two and often three trips between Brooklyn and New Jersey every night. A three-horse team sometimes makes one trip, and that with difficulty.



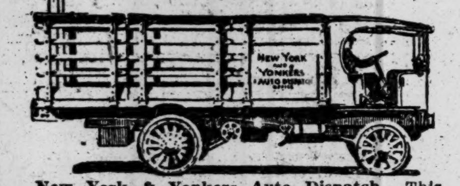
The New York Police Department uses three Garford motor patrol wagons. Each one has replaced ten horse-drawn wagons. The City of Newark, N. J., has just ordered a similar Garford patrol wagon. Impressive, is it not?



The Concrete Products Co. of Flushing formerly owned another make, which was unreliable. Its five-ton Garford has never failed in its delivery all over Long Island, New Jersey and Westchester County. Imagine a horse covering this area.

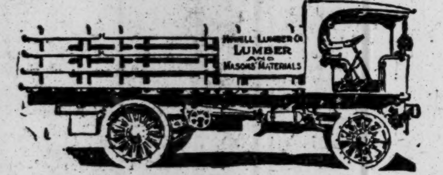


The Monarch Transfer Co. operates this five-ton Garford from 16 to 24 hours a day—day in and day out. Mr. Person, President, advises us it does as much work as six teams.

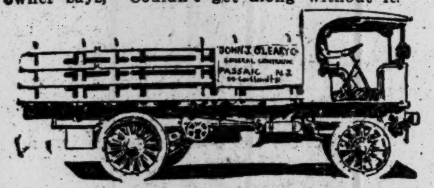


NEW YORK AND YONKERS AUTO DISPATCH

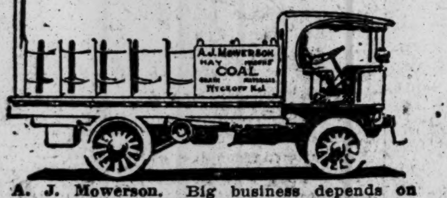
New York & Yonkers Auto Dispatch. This three-ton Garford is a familiar sight along Broadway, as it makes several trips daily between New York and Yonkers. It has never failed to hold to its schedule. A good Garford habit.



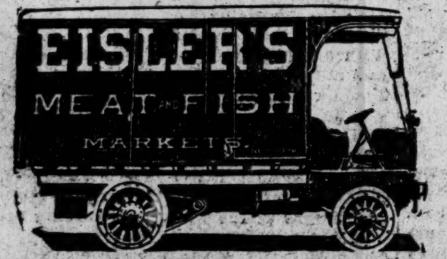
Howell Lumber Co. This truck operates over the hills of Northern New Jersey and goes where it would be impossible for horses. No hill is too steep for it. No road too bad. The owner says, "Couldn't get along without it."



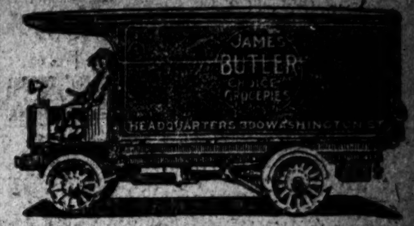
The O'Leary Contracting Co. of Passaic is using a five-ton Garford, which makes daily trips to Dover over one of the steepest grades in the section. "No truck could be more satisfactory," says Mr. O'Leary.



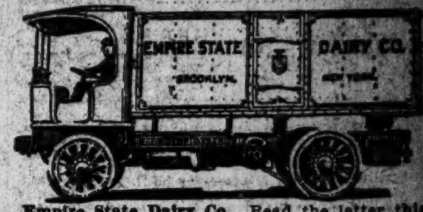
A. J. Mowerson. Big business depends on wide distribution. This truck increased its owner's business by extending his delivery area. He couldn't be induced to part with his Garford.



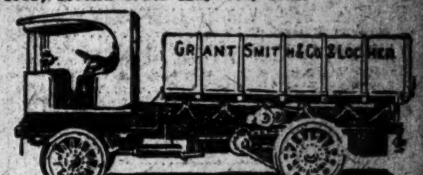
Eisler's Meat & Fish Markets. This truck has replaced three horse-teams and several single wagons. The owner is delighted with its efficiency and economy.



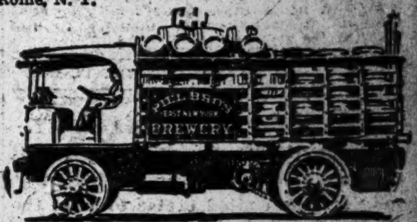
James Butler has twenty-two motor trucks in operation. Sixteen are Garfords. A significant majority. See his letter opposite.



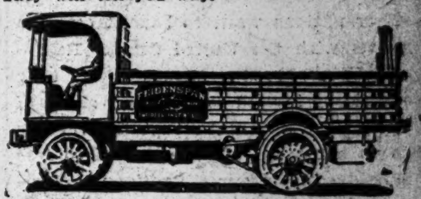
Empire State Dairy Co. Read the letter this firm wrote to an outside party, which is reproduced herewith. First order January 19th, 1912; second order May 7th, 1912.



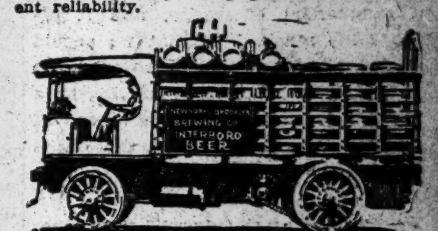
Grant, Smith & Co. & Locher now have two Garford trucks. First ordered August 28th, 1911, for New York. They liked it so well they ordered another on April 17th, 1912, for Rome, N. Y.



Piel Bros. Brewery have tried many kinds of motor trucks. Now they are buying Garfords. They will tell you why.

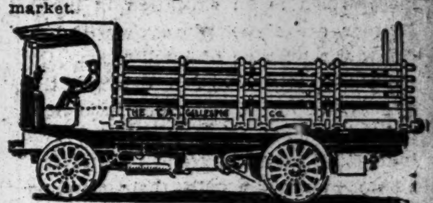


The Feigenspan Brewery of Newark has a large fleet of motor trucks. This year they began buying Garfords, which are prime favorites, both with them and with their drivers, because of the easy riding qualities and consistent reliability.



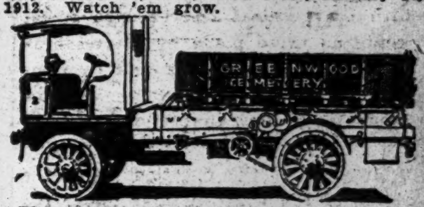
NEW YORK & BROOKLYN BREWING CO.
INTERBORO BEER

The New York & Brooklyn Brewing Co. owns several other trucks. Its last purchase was a Garford, because experience convinced this firm it is the most logical and consistent on the market.

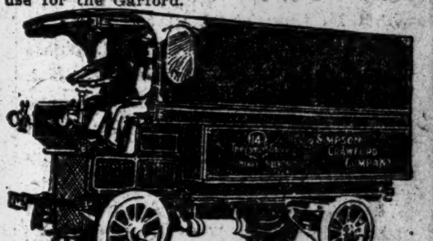


THE T.A. GILLESPIE CO.

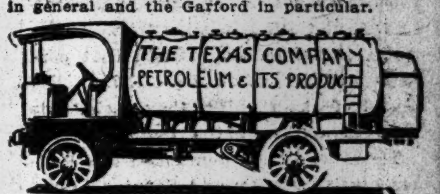
The T. A. Gillespie Co. now has three Garford trucks; first order, March 27, 1911; second order, October 27, 1911; third order, January 26, 1912. Watch 'em grow.



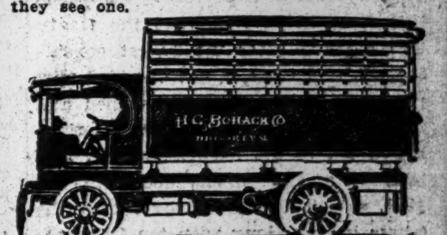
The Greenwood Cemetery has three Garford dump trucks. Its Superintendent reports that they are saving between four and five thousand dollars a year, and have more than fulfilled his expectations. Even cemeteries find profitable use for the Garford.



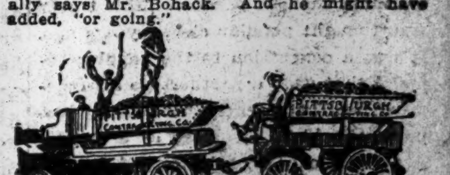
The Simpson Crawford Co. has three Garford trucks. Ask this firm what it thinks of trucks in general and the Garford in particular.



The Texas Co. now has over fifty motor trucks. It ought to know a good truck by this time. Recently this firm has been buying Garfords, on the recommendation of its investigating engineers, who know a real truck when they see one.

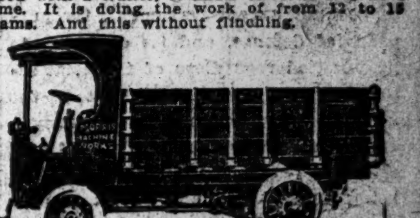


H. C. Bohack Co. of Brooklyn has two Garford motor trucks. "No kick coming," laconically says Mr. Bohack. And he might have added, "or going."

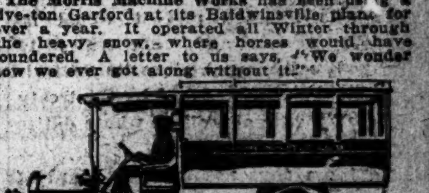


PITTSBURGH CONTRACTING CO.

The Pittsburgh Contracting Co. operates a six-ton Garford on its aqueduct construction work. Used with a trailer, it hauls thirteen tons at a time. It is doing the work of from 12 to 15 teams. And this without flinching.



The Morris Machine Works has been using a five-ton Garford at its Baldwinsville plant for over a year. It operated all Winter through the heavy snow, where horses would have foundered. A letter to us says, "We wonder how we ever got along without it."



Neponsit Club. The Garford line is not confined to heavy-duty vehicles. The steady service of this luxurious omnibus is a great boon to the dwellers in Neponsit.

NEW YORK, THURSDAY, JULY 18, 1912.

THE HEIGHT OF PANAMA FOLLY.

Representative Moore expresses it as his opinion that it is the height of folly for the United States to build the Panama Canal at its sole cost and for the equal benefit of all nations. If other nations want to benefit on even terms with the United States, Representative Moore argues that they should be invited to pay their share of the cost. He thinks that the remedy is to neutralize the canal, and to free ourselves from our obligations to England by asking England to share our burdens and responsibilities. The canal seems to Representative Moore to be a commercial enterprise, and it offends his sensibilities that we should be defending it as though it were liable to attack, and thus to be running up a big bill for military charges, none of which are to be borne by those who demand the equal use of the canal.

We are far from thinking that Mr. Moore is less well informed than other Americans. On the contrary, he is serving his fourth term as Congressman, which is an education in itself. Neither are those who agree with him below the average of intelligence. On the contrary, they are so far above the average of intelligence that it is necessary to deal with them with less indulgence than the man in the street, who sympathizes with their specious arguments. We lament the necessity of warning all and sundry to accept with the greatest reserve such statements as those made by Representative Moore on Tuesday and by Senator Lodge on Wednesday. Senator Lodge says now that unquestionably the United States would be beaten on arbitration of the question as to the rights of the United States under the treaty which the Senator assisted to ratify. That is, all the world would disagree with the views he now holds, which he thought at that time to be expressed with such perfect clearness that they could not be misunderstood. "All" nations, the Senator contends, means "all other" nations, so that the United States stands in a class by itself regarding tolls, and may rebate, or discriminate at will. The argument proves too much. If the United States is excepted for one thing it is excepted for all things, and it is relieved from the observance of the rules in general, as well as those regarding tolls. Americans, therefore, are warned that perhaps another depth of dishonor lies ahead of them unless they resist this first approach of the tempter.

Those who trust gentlemen like Representative Moore and Senator Lodge must be amazed at their invitation to believe that all these things are now argued for the first time. So far is this from being true that the treaty was adopted after the fullest consideration, and there is not one idea now produced which was not weighed and rejected in favor of the considerations which led to the negotiation and ratification of the "musty document" of 1901, which is now thrown into the waste basket along with the Constitution, and anything else that obstructs anything thought popular. This treaty was thought popular eleven years ago. It was a concession to the popular demand that such a partnership arrangement as Representative Moore proposes should be displaced by a strictly American canal, to be owned by the United States, to be built on American territory, and to be operated for the benefit of the United States. It was to be built as a naval canal, for purposes of defense, and its cost was to be justified regardless of financial results by the economy of cost of the navy, and by doubling its efficiency.

The treaty was negotiated to rid ourselves of partners, the cost of freedom being thought worth while. It was for that reason that we assumed the sole cost. The cost of the defenses is for our sole interest, and it would be equally useless and unnecessary to neutralize the canal, since its neutralization was accomplished by the treaty whose benefits as well as whose duties we would lose together.

In those days nothing was heard of any such sordid thing as the division of profits. It was not thought sure that there would be any profits, and nobody would have dared to suggest that any interest should be excepted from "chipping in" toward lessening the greatest single burden in aid of trade any nation ever assumed. The canal was regarded as a species of insurance against the need of a navy twice as large as we have. Now it is said that we are trying to make a profit out of our insurance policy, when we are simply trying to argue ourselves out of a bargain which all the world except ourselves understands differently. We impugn no man's motives, but we state simple truth when we say that the only purpose of this argument is to take money out of the Treasury for an interest for which too much already has been done. The canal is the people's. Its earnings are the people's. One of its greatest earnings is designed to be the cheapening of communications in the interest of the ultimate consumer. Let him beware of the good faith of any argument designed to increase profits at his expense, and even more by resistance to the fall of freights than by the diversion of tolls into a few men's pockets, contrary to the language and intent of all the documents in the case.

THE GAMBLER'S MURDER CASE.

After scrutiny of the evidence adduced, The Times finds, thus far, no warrant in District Attorney Whitman's assertions, or intimations, that the police "system" is responsible for the sensational murder of the gambler Rosenthal. Lacking evidence, any theory is admissible. But it requires eyes that see red in the Summer heats to perceive, in a confessed criminal's accusations against a single subordinate—who had won his enmity, by the way, by shutting up his gambling house—an indictment against the 10,400 men who constitute the Police Department of this city. Commissioner Waldo says pertinently that less than 150 men of the force are empowered, whether honestly or dishonestly, to deal with gamblers.

Another theory, not unsupported by facts, is tenable. Rosenthal was the rival of other gamblers, with whose business his charges against the police threatened to interfere; the shooting may be the conclusion of a gamblers' feud. The police authorities declare that they know all the murderers, that not one of them can escape, that they will be delivered to justice. That would dispose of Mr. Whitman's suspicion that the police abetted the crime and are shielding the criminals.

Gambling is not unknown in this city. Grand juries are cognizant of its existence, though they often fail to indict. The Magistrates and the Judges of Special and General Sessions know it, though no gambler tried or convicted before them ever goes to jail. When "policy" was treated as a felony punishable by imprisonment it ceased. But Judges return captured roulette tables to their illicit owners, while the public is apathetic. If Mr. Whitman can show that the police are taking bribe-money from the gamblers and are committing murder to conceal their methods, he will gain public attention and praise. But he need not talk before he has something to show.

THOSE PRINCIPLES.

Mr. Herbert Knox Smith, in resigning the office of Commissioner of Corporations, frankly told the President that he resigned in order to join "the new Progressive Party." The progressive movement, he added, "includes principles that I believe in, "and that I have earnestly tried to "further, so far as I could, during my "term of Federal service. I feel that "the new party represents these principles more directly" than either of the old parties. But Mr. Smith leaves us altogether in doubt as to the nature of "these principles." If we turn to the fountain of authority, our neighbor The Outlook, we get no more light than from Mr. Smith. The Outlook, in its article on "Woodrow Wilson and the Democratic Party" this week, says that Mr. Roosevelt returned from Africa in 1910 to find that while the people had gone forward the Administration had turned back:

> The people, exasperated, were demanding new guarantees of rights—a popular primary, a short ballot, the initiative, the referendum, and the recall.

Bless your soul, these are not guarantees, they are not principles, they are nothing but methods. Principle has a virtue of its own, inherent, undetachable. A method has no virtue whatever save that of efficiency. If it works, it is good; if not, it is discarded for something better. Mr. Roosevelt and his claque are continually putting forward these things as principles.

From another source, however, from Mr. Herbert Knox Smith himself, we may get a glimmer of a notion as to what the progressive principles are. As Commissioner of Corporations, Mr. Smith, on Sept. 21, 1907, wrote a letter to President Roosevelt about the International Harvester case. Attorney General Bonaparte was straining at his leash, eager to set off in full cry with a suit against Mr. Perkins's corporation. At the same time Commissioner Smith was investigating the corporation in his own gentle way. In his letter to the President he argued that the suit should not be begun, that the hand of Mr. Bonaparte should be stayed. Here is an extract from his letter:

> I therefore feel that the starting of a suit under the Sherman law against this company would, in the first place, be a moral injustice, and, in the second place, would be a reversal of the correct and advanced modern policy of the President in dealing with corporate business.

There, clearly, we are on the trail of a principle. To begin the suit would have been "a moral injustice." The moral quality is inherent in most principles, if they be really good and correct principles. The non-pursuit of the Harvester Trust may possibly, therefore, be accepted as one of the principles of the progressive movement. Principles should have their practical side, too. This Harvester principle has one. "It is a very practical question," wrote Corporation Commissioner Herbert Knox Smith to President Roosevelt, "whether it is "well to throw away now the great "influence of the so-called Morgan "interests, which up to this time have "supported the advanced policy of the "Administration."

We have an impression, which it would require evidence to remove, that we have here struck one of the foundation principles of the Bull Moose Party—not to prosecute Perkins and the Harvester Trust. Mr. Smith says openly that he "earnestly tried to further" the progressive principles. As to the Harvester case principle, his earnest efforts are of record. President Roosevelt was in full accord with his Commissioner of Corporations, apparently, for on Aug. 22, a month before he received Mr. Smith's letter, he wrote to Attorney General Bonaparte: "Will you see Mr. Perkins "and Commissioner Smith and go "over the matter in full, and report to "me thereon? Please do not file the "suit until I hear from you." Thus the tie of moral principle binds in union sweet these accordant minds.

THE NEW BEDFORD STRIKE.

The New Bedford strikers are obstructing by violent and unlawful and inhumane methods the earning by others of wages which they decline. Innocent and guilty suffer alike, for the mills have stopped altogether, instead of closing merely the departments affected by the strike. Not all of the strikers knew why they struck, and it is sure that some of the others made idle have no idea of what the unions are demanding.

The strike is simply for the principle on which unions are founded, that is, equal pay for all, irrespective of results. Some weavers are better than others, and naturally are worth more. Instead of refusing to employ the incompetent or careless, the owners pay according to the quality of the work, paying less for defective cloth. A yard of cloth is a yard to the unions, regardless of what the owners are able to realize for their product. It is recognized that cloth varies in quality, and wholesale contracts customarily contain clauses requiring acceptance of a certain percentage of "seconds." In many cases "seconds" are sold at a price much lower than first quality. But the unions will not recognize any variations of quality in their members. Payment must be by measure, and alike for good and bad workers. This was so highly humane and indisputably popular that the principle was put into a statute. The immediate result was more slovenly work and an increased quantity of "seconds." The statute was declared unconstitutional, and the adoption of a "new" and cruel system of pay is the return to the old method.

The interest of the employers is so greatly in favor of first quality production that they offered to distribute the difference in the two rates of payment to employés as an "extra" to deserving workers. Thus total payments would be at the full union rates, with no deductions, the employers benefiting merely by the betterment of the quality. This is the statement made by the employers over the signature of their representative. If it is untrue, the strikers should lose no opportunity in correcting it. If it is true, the sooner those willing to work under those conditions are put in condition to do so with safety to life and limb the more credit to those charged with the enforcement of law and order.

A SOCIALIST-SUFFRAGIST PARADE.

Asked by The Times what were the impelling motives for the organization of a parade of men by the Men's League for Woman Suffrage, to be held in this city on Nov. 9 next, following the Presidential election, Secretary Max Eastman responds:

> Your editorial references would help us more if you would oppose the real reasons we have for advocating woman suffrage. Therefore, I venture to send you a pamphlet of which we have sold about 12,000 copies, and which I used as a sort of statement of faith in organizing the Men's League for Woman Suffrage.

The Men's League in its pamphlet, "Is Woman Suffrage Important?" clears the field for two arguments, which, it says, have a "vital thrust in them," by saying that "we do not "look to women's votes for the purification and moral elevation of the "body politic." It is assured, however, that they "will not do any permanent, appreciable harm." Moreover, the League will not ignore the fact that women are different from men, and inherit "a body of passionate interests that men only partially share."

That those passionate interests "are needed in Government" is the foundation principle of the Men's League for Woman Suffrage. It freely admits that the interests are those of Socialism:

> The growth of the Socialist vote means that enthusiastic people believe that the best intellects of the Nation ought to be concentrated in legislative debate upon the problem of securing to all its citizens an opportunity for economic well-being. Yet there are many besides Socialists who urge and expect this change in the centre of Governmental interests. Many besides Socialists are ready to do all in their power to focus political attention upon the true issues of advancing civilization.

But what has this to do with votes for women? This, briefly:

> We have the opinions of hundreds of good men, in those States and nations where women vote, to support our reasonable expectation that their influence will favor rather than retard this achievement.

Socialists, and "many besides Socialists who urge and expect this "change," will make up the rank and file of the Suffragist parade next November. It is not just now necessary for us to oppose the "real reasons" for the agitation by the Men's League. We are content with stating them from its official pamphlet.

THE ROYAL SOCIETY.

The two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Royal Society of Great Britain was placed, somewhat arbitrarily, on Monday of this week, since the first charter of its incorporation passed the Great Seal on July 15, 1662. But Charles II. had approved its design in December, 1660; its second and working charter was passed April 22, 1663, and its council met for the first time on the following May 13. Any one of these dates might have been picked for the anniversary. As early as 1645, however, nine years after the founding of Harvard University, this most venerable of English learned societies began in weekly meetings at the Bull-Head Tavern in Cheapside, of "divers worthy persons, "inquisitive into natural philosophy "and other parts of human learning, "and particularly what hath been "called the New Philosophy or Experimental Philosophy."

The Royal Society has never believed the declaration of its worthy founders. Sir Francis Bacon had given the initial impulse to the philosophy of learning by actual experiment; they were his disciples who founded this society. They established a creed and a living body of scientific doctrine and example that have easily placed Great Britain in the forefront of civilization. They have elected to their membership, moreover, the most eminent men of foreign nations; indeed, the "Philosophical Transactions" were originally printed from correspondence with the scientists of the Continent. The spirit of the society has never been insular, and its achievements in exploration, science, and the arts have been more universal than the British Empire.

THE SUMMER SHOPPING CENTRE.

To the 185,000 "strangers within our gates," arriving here weekly by land and sea, the series of articles that is being published by The Times about New York as a city of Summer crowds will be of special interest, as well as to the multitudes who find the city fairly comfortable throughout the Summer. The passenger agents of the railroads and the big steamship lines corroborate the reports of the hotel and shop keepers that this city is not merely a port of passage, but an increasing centre of attraction by reason of its "sights" and stores.

Hither come the inlanders from the Middle West and from beyond the Rockies, from Canada and the Southern States, to swell the July and August rush. They are encouraged by the low rates of the railroads and water lines, and by the knowledge that in the shopping districts bargains are to be had. They tarry on their way to Europe; on their return they stop at this world market for the purchase of many things which they may take duty free to their homes. The fame of New York as a "Summer resort" is established. It is perhaps the coolest of all the great cities. It is one of the most interesting.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Railway Bars Are Disappearing. In stopping the sale of intoxicants on its dining cars while in the State for which it is named, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company has only duplicated the action of other lines in many parts of the country. Sometimes, perhaps usually, the action has been taken under the compulsion of State laws, but in not a few instances it has been voluntary, and determined merely by considerations relating to economy or efficiency.

Apparently nobody has suffered from the change severely enough to be led into making audible and articulate protest. Of course, when there is a bar on a train there will be passengers who will mitigate the tedium of their journey by patronizing it with more or less frequency, but for this privilege there seems to have been no real, or at least no strong, demand on the part of the traveling public. The same thing is probably true of many another of the luxuries and facilities provided by transportation companies on land and sea. They are nominally concessions to the needs and tastes of patrons, but really the outgrowth of business rivalries and considered more interesting or amusing than important by the travelers whom they are supposed to attract.

That the travelers like them all is doubtless true enough, but only under the assumption that they sacrifice little money and no safety for their sake. The higher fares on the best trains and steamers are paid rather for speed than because they combine the "accommodations" of a hotel with the comforts of a home. After the Titanic disaster the public demand, so vigorous that it had instantly to be heeded, was for more lifeboats, at any cost of deck space and convenience, and this demand was accompanied by manifestations of complete indifference to, or aversion from, the assorted magnificences so proudly advertised before.

At present travelers are not worried because it is becoming more and more difficult to buy liquors on trains; what they have been forced by recent accidents to think about is the possibility if railway cars were less elaborately equipped more money would be available for making them stronger. There may even be a suspicion or two afloat that the carefulness and efficiency of train crews would be increased if the opportunities of their members to get an occasional drink were reduced.

Not Indians As We Know Them. At first thought, and even at second, the most surprising thing about the stories coming from the headwaters of the Amazon is not the brutality shown by the white men in their treatment of the natives, but the docility of the natives in submitting without any effective resistance to torture and murder, systematically carried out. The victims of these atrocious outrages are Indians, and, in comparison with their oppressors, they are numerous enough to make up, it might seem, for inferiority of weapons.

The explanation of the mystery lies in the enormous difference between these South American Indians and the bearers of the same name in this country. The majority of our tribes were fighting men with the obstinate courage that takes little account of odds, and, though they could be killed, they never could be enslaved to a degree that made them profitable servants. From Central America downward the natives are of a different and weaker strain, and, with a few notable exceptions like the Yaquis and certain Carib groups, they have never made really desperate war against higher races. The Spaniards were able to exploit them ruthlessly, and did it, while the northern Indians almost invariably preferred death in battle to the performance of compulsory labor under an alien master.

It is not so strange, therefore, that a few white men of the sort who would be chosen to go into the Amazonian wilderness to collect rubber have been able to cow and control a people who are "savages" only in the original sense—who are, that is, wild rather than ferocious. Indians more unlike our Iroquois or Hurons or Navajos could not be imagined. They can be enslaved and therefore they are.

This, of course, is no excuse for what has been going on in that dark land, but it is the explanation of it, just as it is the explanation of what has happened in Africa since the dawn of history to some, not all, of the races there. Publicity will force reforms along the Amazon, as it did along the Congo, but it is not very likely to be complete in either region while big profits can be made out of laborers tolerant of the lash and hardly to be stimulated to industry in any other way.

Dressing for the Weather. One of our correspondents refreshingly varied, yesterday, the familiar chorus in derisive, contemptuous, or angry criticism of feminine dress by calling attention to the unquestionable fact that while men are sweltering and suffering under the burden of clothing most ingeniously ill-adapted to tropic temperatures, the women go about at least comparatively cool and happy because they are sensible enough to wear light garments and few of them.

Surely the absurdity of no fashion fol the convention that makes the wearing in the convention that makes the wearing in hot weather of a coat which a woman would consider sufficiently, if not excessively, heavy for Winter the mark of masculine propriety, almost of masculine decency. The inexorable demand is for the man to hide beneath many thicknesses of cloth, but woman, recognizing no such law, comes close to the surface of her garment and even ventures upon many solutions of its continuity.

She gets scolded for it, to be sure, with fierce vivacity and endless iteration, but she goes her airy way, indifferent or rejoicing—rejoicing in the objective as well as the subjective significance, as she well knows. She may have her special and peculiar follies in the matter of habilimentation, but she doesn't wear a coat when it is both unnecessary and oppressive, and to these who object, or pretend to object, when a good deal of her shines softly through what little she does wear, her only concession is to admit their inalienable right to look the other way. Which they fail to do.

ENDING THEATRE ORCHESTRAS.

One Who Likes Their Music Speaks for the Musicians.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is little short of amusing, this declaration of the theatre managers in their musical mix-up with the Musicians' Union that the orchestra is to be cut out at certain of their theatres.

Isn't this quite illustrative of the managers' concern for their patrons? Are we supposed to believe that for this deprival of what most of us regard as an essential feature of a theatrical performance we shall receive the benefit of a compensatory reduction in box office charges? Or are we supposed to acquiesce in meek submission in this further "hogging" of the gate receipts?

I imagine that the musicians' demands are only consequent upon the rigging up of prices by the managers; the musicians, I suppose, see no reason why they should not have an increased share of the spoils. But where are we supposed to come in in the musicless theatre?

Proposed New Omnibus Service.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The proposed extension of the Fifth Avenue coach service now before the Public Service Commission should be hailed with pleasure by the people of this city. The new routes will give adequate transportation from such residential sections of the west side as Riverside Drive, and from Fifth and Lexington Avenues, in which many well-to-do people live. There may not be much money in it considering that the price of gasoline is expected to increase from 8½ cents to 14 cents a gallon, entailing an additional cost of $40,000 to $50,000 annually, and rubber tires may also impose an increased outlay of $50,000 a year. So it seems that the promoters of the extended service are doing something handsome for the public and also for business interests and the railroads and shops on the new routes. I would like to see the omnibuses come into popular favor because they are clean, modern, and in every way convenient.

The Same Blease.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Is the Gov. Blease of South Carolina, who is now being investigated on account of various alleged "crimes and misdemeanors" of a politico-pecuniary character, the same gentleman who some time ago wrote a letter to The Times condemning newspapers as dishonest and generally disreputable in matter and manner?

Finns in the Parade.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wish to correct an error in The New York Sunday Times of July 14, in which you printed a picture under the heading "Swedes in Line." The paraders were not Swedes, but represented Finland, as could be seen on the sign carried at the head of the group.

OSBORN FOR PRINCIPLES RATHER THAN THE MAN

Michigan Governor Will Vote for Roosevelt Electors If Named; If Not, Then He Will Support Wilson.

Special to The New York Times.

LANSING, Mich., July 17.—Chase S. Osborn is Governor of Michigan. He was elected in 1908 by something like 50,000 majority, the largest majority ever obtained by any candidate for this office in the Badger State. He tried to be Governor in 1900, but the big interests were too big for him. He spent $5,000, all the money he had that could be made available for campaign purposes, but the other people spent $600,000, and he did not get in. He was naturally impressed, however, with the corrupting power of the coin of the realm and how impossible it was for the man with little means, or with no means at all, whatever his fitness for office or the merit of the cause for which he stood, to beat the machinery of the crowd holding the pocketbook.

There had never been in this country, so far as he had observed, so wild and wicked a waste of money for the accomplishment of political ends as in Michigan twelve years ago. He took a solemn oath then that the time would come, if he could help it along, when money would not be so powerful a weapon in the determination of political questions and questions involving matters of principle as well as personality.

The man does not matter to Osborn. Roosevelt does not count with him simply because he is Roosevelt. Any other man representing the same things would suit him equally well. The man is merely the instrument of working reforms, the reforms are the things that are worth working for, worth suffering for, worth abandoning outworn political creeds for, worth dying for, as a figure of speech at least. Lorimer is not one whit worse than many others. He is only a type of the corrupt political methods of the time in which he was a power in the politics of his State, and so has it been and will always be where money is used to influence the American electorate.

It was because, as he saw it, Roosevelt represented the moral side of the political questions of the day and Mr. Taft had not kept faith with the people and his ante-election promises that Gov. Osborn conceived the plan of holding a conference of Governors to devise some way of bettering the political ends of the country. It was at his instance that the seven Governors, whose names will be forever associated with the few, the immortal names that were not born to die, so to say, joined in the appeal to the sage of Sagamore Hill to "come up to the help of the Lord, to the help of the Lord against the mighty," and under their encouragement the battle of Armageddon was joined at Chicago. The allies appear to have got away with the baggage wagons and most of the imperial standards, but the Governors, although some of them have seemed at times to be suffering from political locomotor ataxia, declare that they have not abandoned their view that "something must be done."

Gov. Osborn is a Republican, has always been a Republican and was elected Governor as a Republican, but he does not think that being a Republican makes him any the less a patriot, and if the good he wishes to accomplish and upon which he has set his heart cannot be attained through the regular Republican organization it can be reached through other Republicans operating against the organization. If Roosevelt Presidential Electors shall be nominated in Michigan he will vote for them; if Roosevelt Electors shall not be named in this State he will vote for Wilson, and there will be many other Republicans who will do the same thing. He will not vote for Taft.

Whether or not there shall be a Roosevelt Electoral ticket in Michigan is to be determined at Jackson next Saturday. There is said to be little doubt that such a ticket will be named. It has been determined upon, in fact, and needs only the formal approval of the people who are in the movement to give it some sort of semblance of authority. One of the questions to be settled at this meeting is the naming of a third ticket for State offices, and it is upon this question that some of the reformers are gagging a bit.

Michigan is said to be a very conservative State, and its conservatism has been proved by its unwavering loyalty to the Republican Party. Since 1872 there has been only one Democratic Governor, and all the rest of the years it has come up regularly with its Republican majorities. In 1908, Taft carried the State by an enormous majority, but in the opinion of some of the hitherto faithful, the Taft of 1912 is not by any means the Taft of four years ago. These people do not claim that Taft will not carry the State in November, but they "think" that if Roosevelt Electors be put up Roosevelt will win, and that if Roosevelt Electors shall not be put up, Wilson will stand a good chance of winning the State.

As to Roosevelt's carrying the country and being elected President, they say that the "situation," so far as there is at this time any situation to speak of, "is very much involved," which would seem to indicate that they are lacking in the saving faith of their own gospel. It is worth noting that the Republican machine, if it can be said in these altruistic days that there is any such thing as a machine, is for Taft, and everybody knows that organization is a great thing when it comes down to practical work in political campaigns.

A man by the name of Warren, a sugar man, is the head of the party in Michigan, and they "do say" that he is a "mighty man of valor" and other things when it comes to leading the people to the polls.

In spite of the conservatism claimed for this State, there have been divers political sects here—Populists, Democratic Greenbackers, Straight Greenbackers, Union Laborites, Industrials, Democratic Populists, and Social Democrats—and yet with it all the Republicans have managed somehow, either through the use of money or because of a consuming sense of party loyalty, to "get away with the goods." They think that they will be able to do the same thing this year.

Osborn says that at least 80 per cent. of the people of Michigan are progressive. He has made quite a reputation as a progressive Governor, seeing that, according to his own story, he is not beholden to anybody, has found it easier to get into office than to keep out, has enough to live on modestly without the emoluments of official life, and is therefore "as independent as a wood sawyer." He thinks that the time is coming—is, in fact, already at hand—when men who think will hold their citizenship as something higher and better than slavish adherence to party regularity. With him, as already noted, the principles are everything, the man or men are nothing more than instrumentalities for carrying forward the reforms necessary to the welfare of the people and the safety of the State. He has told Roosevelt that, after the result of the convention at Chicago, he did not think that he should run for President. But if Roosevelt shall have an Electoral ticket in this State he will feel in duty bound to vote for it.

Gov. Osborn says that Bryan is stronger in Michigan than he has ever been, that the people trust him, that his work at Baltimore was all that could have been desired, and that the things for which he has stood are the things which will be of the largest benefit to the country and its people. Bryan is to speak here at the Chautauqua, which will open to-morrow. He will doubtless make a great speech—"Cross of Gold," "Crown of Thorns," "Prince of Peace," "Wall Street Malefactors," or "Predatory Wealth." He still is making hay while the sun shines.

Outside of politics there is a most encouraging situation in this part of the country. The corn was never growing so luxuriantly, the people were never dressed so well, the banks never held so much money, and "every prospect pleases."

It is a pity to spoil the true situation with a political squabble for the offices. The platforms of the two great parties are so nearly the same, and the candidates as well, that it seems to be very foolish, not to say criminal, for the alleged Progressives to make so much about nothing. Nobody has been found anywhere in these travels East or West who thinks for a moment that Roosevelt has the least chance of gratifying his selfish ambition this year. The American people have taken his true measure. But Osborn thinks he has a chance, and Osborn helped to make him foolish.

ENOUGH FOR FLOOD FUND.

No More to be Asked for Southern Relief—$71,000 Raised Here.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Inasmuch as the National Director of the Red Cross has notified the committee that the response to recent appeals sent through the country has been so generous that no further funds will be needed for flood relief and that it is now too late to plant further crops this year, one of the chief purposes for which money has been acquired, it is deemed unnecessary to solicit further contributions.

The total amount of money contributed to the National Red Cross through the efforts of this committee has been about $71,000. In the absence of so many of the committee at this season it has been thought unnecessary to call a meeting of the committee to reach a conclusion which seemed so plainly wise.

EXTORTING FROM A RICH MAN.

Is It Justified by the Fact That He Can Bear It?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Not long ago The Times contained a news item to the effect that the ferryman at Tarrytown had exacted of J. D. Rockefeller the sum of $15 to carry him and his automobile across the Hudson, Mr. Rockefeller having arrived after ferry hours, and that before the boat started two other autoists came along to cross, and they were charged $5 each. Mr. Rockefeller objected to the discrimination, but the ferryman held him up just the same, and everybody in hearing seemed to think that it was no more than right that the rich man should pay, and he was a "tight wad" for objecting to the charge. Now what I want to know is, has a rich man no rights that other people are bound to respect?

Of course Mr. Rockefeller was abler to pay $15 than either of the other two were to pay $5 each, no matter who they were, but is that any reason why he should be subjected to extortion? If it was rigrt to make him pay $15 for similar service done for others for $5 it was quite as right to pinch him for $1,500 because he was able to pay it. The less-rich people in this country are everlastingly talking about there being one kind of justice for the rich man and another kind for the poor man and crying out against the crime of discrimination, yet whenever these same people get a chance to hand out one kind of justice to the rich man and another to the poor man they do it gladly and consider that it is anything but crime.

Indeed, they believe it to be exceedingly commendable. Our rich have many indefensible points, but this certainly is not one of them. In my opinion if that Tarrytown ferryman were instead the power behind the Standard Oil Company its record would be far worse than it is reputed to be.

Cavour's Views on Protection.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I see with much interest a quotation from Cavour on the tariff. Permit me to submit below another statement by him, which is perhaps even more explicit.

It is obvious to me that the Republicans are going to do this year as they did in 1880, and make the main fight on the tariff, and I am very glad to see The Times so active in the matter.

EVERETT P. WHEELER.

New York, July 16, 1912.

> Cavour took pains to lay down the theory on which his measures rested, to explain its reasonableness and justice, to show how illogical it was to set up Liberty as the guiding principle in law and government and conscience, while denying its application to trade, nor did he fail to point out how protection, the most insidious modern form of privilege, rendered honest government difficult and equal government impossible, and how industrial selfishness, which did not scruple to beg for special favors from the lawmakers, would go on to demand these favors as a right, nor hesitate at last to keep them by corruption.

HAIL TO THE CHIEF!

Gee whiz,
What is it this is?
Lo, the poor Indian,
Whose untutored mind
Seems somewhat defective
In falling behind,
Has put it all over
The superior white
And pushed the proud paleface
Plumb out of sight.
Oh, say,
The Red Man is getting gay,
And all the lean years
He has known since the white
First lit on his land
And questioned his right
To live anywhere
The goat of Red Thorpe
As the boss of the lot
Of all the Caucasians
Olympiced to prove
That in progress it's only
The whites who do move.
By gum,
Ain't the red going some?
Hully gee,
Ain't the Aborigine
Rising to the occasion
With an up-to-date dash
And passing the finish
To the conquering Caucash?
Wow,
Will you mind that now?
Out of the lost, yet lingering, glory
Comes a great spirit of muscle and mind,
Who tells to the world his Olympian story
And laughs at the white man trailing behind.
Oh,
Lo!

JULY IS NO LONGER A DULL MONTH HERE

Merchants and Pleasureseekers Coming This Year in Great Numbers.

TRAVELERS STOPPING OVER

Hotel Men Tell of Change in Conditions of Summer Business Within a Few Years.

Hotel proprietors in New York are jubilant over the steady increase of Summer travel to the city, and optimistic for the future. The month of July, which was formerly looked on as the dead month of the year, now compares favorably, they declare, with other months for business. The smaller hotels and some of the larger ones reduce their rates for rooms about 25 per cent. during July and August to attract travel from the South and West. Mexicans and Cubans come to New York in large numbers during the Summer to make purchases, and bring their families to see the city.

The reason for the rush of visitors, according to experienced hotel men, is that the reputation of New York as a Summer resort has spread from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and down to the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean Sea.

It is within reach of mountain, river, lake, and seashore, and has also the attraction of Coney Island, of which the citizens of other parts of the United States have heard so much. Theatrical managers have realized the change in New York, and where they formerly kept their houses closed from the end of June until the beginning of September, many of them now open at the end of July or early in August, and some keep open all the year round.

James B. Regan, proprietor of the Hotel Knickerbocker, speaking of this change, said yesterday:

"When I opened this hotel six years ago I operated it during the month of July at a loss, and now I make a profit on the month. The number of guests passing in and out averages 400 to 500 daily. The restaurant business, including the Summer garden, is limited only by the seating capacity. Many of these diners are people from the South and West, who have come to visit friends. Others I recognize as Winter patrons, who are spending the Summer at home in New York and taking week-end trips to the seashore in their automobiles, instead of closing up their houses or apartments and going away for the Summer.

"Business men who used to come to this city only during the Winter months now find it to their advantage to come in the Summer. I met a well-known St. Louis merchant in the lobby to-day. He said: 'This is the first time I ever came to New York in the Summer.' I asked him how he liked it, and he replied: 'Great. I never realized how easy it was to combine business with pleasure here before. I do my business early in the day downtown, and then take a rest in the afternoon and go for an automobile or motor boat trip in the cool of the evening.'

"In my opinion New York is the best Summer resort in the world, and in saying that I do not bar London, which is famed for the number of travelers who pass through in the Summer months."

On the Way to Europe.

One of the managers of the Hotel Belmont, which does a big transient trade in the Summer months with guests from Canada, Mexico, and the West, said yesterday that the number of guests during the present month averaged 700 a day and was steadily increasing.

"We find the tide of travel through New York very heavy at the present time, by rail, steamship, and automobile," he said. "Some time in the near future, I suppose, it will be further increased by travelers alighting from airships. On the Lusitania, sailing for Liverpool yesterday, we had eighty passengers, and another forty-five on the Holland America liner Nieuw Amsterdam and the North German Lloyd liner Kronprinz Wilhelm. We have 125 guests in the house who are leaving by the Celtic, President Lincoln, and the Carpathia for Europe, which is a proof that travelers from cities all over the country stop here on their way to Europe. They do this in larger numbers going away than they do in returning late in the Fall, because then they have been away some time and are in a hurry to get home. If the steamer docks at night, then we have them until train time in the morning. To-morrow we have two big automobile parties who have come all the way by road from San Francisco, and after a stay of two weeks here they will return the same way. There is not the slightest doubt that New York is booming as a Summer resort and that her fame is increasing year by year."

One of the managers at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel said last night that there was no complaint to be made there as to the Summer business.

"At the present time we are handling about 900 guests a day at the ordinary rates," he said. "This is a big increase over what it was five years ago, when July was looked on as a dull month. Now the hotels are fed by the heavy train travel from the West and the foreigners, who are coming in from Europe, Canada, Australia, and the Orient via San Francisco on their way around the world."

At the Hotel Astor it was said that the transient and regular Summer travel brought about 700 guests daily to the house, and kept the restaurant and roof garden busy. The number was growing all the time.

Changes in Ten Years.

Thomas Carroll, proprietor of the Hotel Hermitage and partner in the Hotel Flanders, in West Forty-seventh Street, who has been in the hotel business in this city for the last eleven years, said yesterday: "I should say that the travel to New York by land and sea has increased 500 per cent. since I took over the Flanders, ten years ago. You can judge from the fact that my partner, H. R. Shares, has added 157 single rooms to that hotel, which are to be opened on Aug. 1, and 107 of them are booked already for a business party of Californians, coming from San Francisco on one train to spend a week in New York.

"Formerly New York apartment hotels used to compel their permanent guests to take yearly leases, but now that cannot be done any longer because the majority of business men have country homes or cottages by the seashore where they reside in the Summer, and they will only take their apartments on a six months' agreement. The rooms are let to transients during July, August, and September, who pay rates about 25 per cent. below what the proprietors get for them in the Winter. Some of the Fifth Avenue hotels let their suites 50 per cent. below the high Winter rates and then do very well, as they get the custom of the visitors in the restaurant.

"Then the markets of the United States have changed in the last ten years considerably. Formerly people in the West used to go to Chicago or St. Louis to buy their goods, but that is passed, and to-day they come right on to New York."

L. M. Boomer of Merry & Boomer, who are going to open the McAlpin Hotel at Thirty-fourth Street and Broadway on Dec. 5, said yesterday that he had every confidence in the attractions of New York as a Summer resort, and expected that there would be plenty of visitors to occupy the 1,500 rooms in the new hotel next year without taking away from the hotels that are now doing business here.

"I am especially sanguine about August, as well as July," said Mr. Boomer, "and I can judge of the number of visitors here from those we get at the Hotel Nassau. I believe that business will grow steadily in the Summer in New York. We would not open such a large hotel as the McAlpin if we had bad times to look forward to in the Summer months."

MEADOW BROOK POLO TEAM LOSES AGAIN

Cooperstown Victorious in Rockaway Hunting Cups Game on Cedarhurst Field.

WATERBURY'S GAME IS FAST

Internationalist Scores Four Goals for Home Team—Up-Staters in Good Form.

The Cooperstown polo team, which has been the sensation of the polo season on Long Island, yesterday scored its second victory within a week over the Meadow Brook four in the final game of the Rockaway Hunting Cups on the grounds of the Rockaway Hunting Club, Cedarhurst, L. I., by the score of 13¾ to 6½ goals. The game was second only to that of last Saturday, when the up-Staters won a crowning victory over Meadow Brook, while yesterday's event was of the handicap nature, in which the Long Islanders were forced to concede seven goals by handicap.

Each team earned seven goals, with Meadow Brook losing one-half a goal by penalty for a foul committed by Loew in the fifth period, while Cooperstown was penalized one-quarter of a goal in the opening session for a safety by Stevenson. This made the earned tally read Cooperstown 6¾, against 6½ goals for Meadow Brook.

Two players of the International Cup winners, Milburn and J. M. Waterbury, Jr., played with the Long Islanders, while the other two were Rawlins and Loew, each handicapped at four goals. The contest from start to finish was one that bristled with excitement, and the rapid-fire playing of both teams brought forth many rounds of applause from the many spectators.

Meadow Brook started in the first period to make a bold bid for the victory and carried Cooperstown at a fast clip. Beadleston of Cooperstown was the first to score a tally, after the ball had remained in his territory for a long time, with a flying drive close to the goal posts. Waterbury then took up the chase, and made Meadow Brook's first score with a long shot from the side of the field, which required two hard swipes, and Beadleston wound up with another score after charging the entire length of the field.

The closest approach to victory the Meadow Brook team could show was at the end of the fifth period, when the scoreboard read 9¾ to 4½ goals in favor of Cooperstown. The latter experienced an unusual amount of hard luck, for their players erred on shots that looked almost certain to count, two of which fell to the lot of Von Stade, the team's stronghold. In the third period his pony stumbled directly in front of the clubhouse and went down on its hind quarters, its rider only escaping by a quick dismount. The accident, although not serious, took some of the snap out of Von Stade's playing, and for the remaining part of the contest he player a careful game.

In the fourth period the teams played a scoreless period, with the ball changing from both sides' territory, but never got close enough to the posts to enable a player to score. The men dashed from side to side in wild West fashion all through the session, and two changes of mounts were made at the close of play.

Of the seven goals credited to Meadow Brook, Waterbury was responsible for four. Rawlins annexed two and the other one went to Milburn. Waterbury's game was fast, and he kept in the hottest of the fray at all times. Rawlins missed what would have been the most sensational play of the game in the seventh period. He took the ball from the throw-in and went galloping down the field with a good lead and making capital swipes at the sphere. About 100 feet from the posts and from a slight angle he made his last drive for a score. The ball struck a post squarely in the centre, rolling back into the field, and was recovered by Cooperstown. In the same period Rumsey executed a brilliant play when he drove the ball clean through the goal posts with an overhand swing, the ball going through the posts in mid-air. The line-up:

COOPERSTOWN.	H'cap.	MEADOW BROOK.	H'cap.
F. S. Von Stade	5	J. A. Rawlins	4

First base on error—Cleveland, 1. Three-base hit—Ryan. Home run—Jackson. Sacrifice hit—Turner. Stolen bases—Daniels, Chase, Zinn, Ryan. Left on bases—New York, 6; Cleveland, 7. Bases on balls—Off McConnell, 2; off Gregg, 1; off Baskette, 1. Struck out—By McConnell, 3; by Gregg, 3; by Baskette, 1. Wild pitch—Baskette. Hits—Off Gregg, 3 in 3 innings; off Baskette, 4 in 6 innings. Time of game—One hour and twenty-two minutes. Umpires—Messrs. Dineen and Sheridan.

For some reason or other the Cleveland Naps were a bit afraid of the Yankees on the Hilltop yesterday, and sent their best pitcher, Van Gregg, to the firing line to mystify the Hilltop team with his select southpaw slants. After three innings Manager Harry Davis decided that the Yankees were not as dangerous as he thought, so he pulled out Mr. Gregg and saved him for future use. Baskette finished the game for the enemy, and did as well as Gregg was doing. The score was 5 to 1.

The Yankees' deportment in the field was tiptop, but their batting was decidedly anaemic, while the Naps whaled McConnell when they needed runs. Fence-smasher Joe Jackson was prominent with a screeching home run into the centre field bleachers in the seventh inning. The Naps' worst destruction against McConnell was in the fourth, when five hits, including a triple by Ryan, gave them three runs.

The American League's veteran umpire Jack Sheridan, who is pensioned for life whether he works or not, was the official on the bases, and showed that a pensioned umpire makes few mistakes. The natural conclusion—pension 'em all. Larry Lajoie was not among those present to help keep the Yanks in last place, but he wasn't really needed. The Hilltop zephyrs made the plateau the coolest place to play that the baseball athletes have experienced in the last few days, so they cavorted with lots of ginger.

White-headed Terry Turner made the final put-out of the game in spectacular style, vaulting aloft to knock down Martin's red-hot liner. The ball popped into the air after colliding with Turner's glove, and he caressed it on the way to earth. Hartzell and Martin also did some fancy fielding which was delightful to observe.

The two teams broke even in the opening inning. First, Peckenpaugh singled to left and Martin tossed Ole Olsen out at first. Jackson flied to centre and Griggs drew a pass. On a delayed double steal Simmons made a poor return of the ball to the plate and "Beckie" scored.

Daniels waited on Gregg for a pass in the same inning, and Chase singled to centre. After Sterrett had fanned Daniels and Chase made a double steal, Zinn rolled one at Peckenpaugh, who tossed Daniels out at the plate. Zinn stole second and Simmons singled to left, scoring Chase.

The Naps were rough on McConnell in the fourth inning. Griggs singled and Turner sacrificed. Birmingham singled to centre, scoring Griggs. Ryan polled a triple to centre, scoring Birmingham. Ryan counted on O'Neil's single to right. Gregg was allowed to retire in favor of a substitute batsman, Hoeger, who forced O'Neil at second.

Baskette, who succeeded Gregg, refused absolutely to allow the Yankees to get more than one hit in an inning, so they had to be content with no more runs. With two down in the seventh inning Jackson hammered a hit high over Sterrett's head into the centre field stand for the Naps' final run.

Just wait, the Yankees will be winning some of these fine days.

Even Split in Washington.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Washington and St. Louis divided to-day's double header, Washington won the first 1 to 0 and the visitors the second 7 to 6, after going ten innings. Hughes held St. Louis to four scattered hits in the first game. In the second game Vaughn weakened in the eighth inning and the visitors bunched four hits, scoring five runs. In the tenth inning St. Louis scored the winning run on a single, a stolen base, and Milan's muff of Austin's long fly. The scores:

Two Sox Teams Break Even.

BOSTON, July 17.—Chicago and Boston divided a double-header to-day. Ed Walsh bested Buck O'Brien in a pitchers' battle in the first game, Chicago scoring the only run of the game in the ninth inning. Boston got only two hits, one a scratch. The Red Sox were on top in the second game, 7 to 3, although errors threatened for a time to undo Wood's fine pitching.

Seven Successive Hits for Cobb.

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—Detroit won the first game here to-day by 13 to 1, but lost the second in the eleventh inning by 5 to 4, on Lapp's triple and Maggert's single. The feature of the contests was the batting of Cobb, who made seven successive hits—three singles, three doubles, and a triple. Murphy, who claimed that the Detroit batsmen stepped out of the box in the first game, was ordered off the grounds by Umpire O'Loughlin. The scores:

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, July 17.—The Giants shook off their lethargy at Forbes Field this afternoon, and, with Mathewson in the box, the league leaders showed surprising convalescence, defeating the Pirates easily by a score of 10 to 2. Camnitz and "Babe" Adams were whaled for thirteen hits, Devore and Doyle throwing the Pittsburgh team into disorder with two slashing triples in the opening round.

Mathewson pitched great ball all the way. The Pirates did not have a chance to break through his service for seven innings, "Big Six" displaying his great talent for pitching with marvelous control and rare judgment. He did not give a base on balls until the eighth inning, when Menser beat out a teasing bunt. Carey walked, and Menser went to third after Wagner's long fly. Then Menser and Carey worked a double steal, giving the Pirates their first count. In the ninth inning Wilson whanged a triple off Matty to deep centre, and scored when Mike Donlin, performing as a pinch hitter, cracked out a single and sent Wilson home.

Matty's work has been the big surprise of the Giants' disastrous Western trip. Out of ten games played the Giants have won only three of the clashes, and "Big Six" has pitched all three victories. The Giants' record breaker, Marquard, who left New York only a short time ago the hero of the baseball world, has been subdued in his three starts, and Ames, Wiltse, and Tesreau, the big white hope of the New York Club, have been slammed to defeat on the Western diamond.

It is Matty, whom everybody has said has outgrown his usefulness on the diamond, who has survived the rough Western campaign and has come through with flying colors as the real hero of the trip.

To-day marked Mathewson's twelfth anniversary with the Giants. He pitched his first game in a New York uniform against Brooklyn on July 17, 1900, and the game was lost. He wanted to celebrate his twelfth year to-day and Manager McGraw was very willing to let him go against the Pirates.

The Giants started viciously at Camnitz, who defeated them last at the Polo Grounds. Devore tripled to left and scored when Doyle sent a triple to right. Doyle counted on Becker's sacrifice fly. The New York activity was continued in the fourth, when Herzog singled and Meyers beat out a hit to McCarthy. Fletcher tried a sacrifice, but Miller dropped McKechnie's throw and the bases were crowded. Wagner tossed Matty out at first, Herzog scoring. Devore was called out on strike, Doyle lined to Wilson, who dropped the ball and Meyers and Fletcher scored. That finished Camnitz, and Adams went in to pitch in the next inning.

New York annexed another run in the seventh. With two out, Doyle beat out an infield hit and Becker scored him with a terrific three-base smash to the right-field bleachers.

The Giants put the Pirates completely to rout in the eighth inning. Murray singled to centre and Herzog was tossed out by McKechnie. Murray romped on to third base on the play and scored on Miller's wild throw across the diamond. Meyer fanned and Fletcher walked. Matty singled to centre, sending Fletcher to third base. Devore's single scored Fletcher and Matty scored on Doyle's single, and when Miller booted the return of the ball from right field, Devore also scored.

Cravath's Batting Wins from Cubs.

CHICAGO, July 17.—Cravath's batting gave Philadelphia the opening game of the series with Chicago to-day 6 to 5. After Chicago took the lead, Cravath's triple in the third inning put the visitors ahead. Moore's wildness was responsible for the local's tying the score, but Cravath's home run, which cleared the right field screen, gave Philadelphia the winning run. Score:

Manager Bresnahan Protests Game Stopped by Rain for Thirty Minutes.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 17.—Brooklyn took the opening game from St. Louis today, 7 to 1. Rucker was effective in all except the sixth inning, in which the locals scored their lone tally on a single, a stolen base, and another single. The game was stopped by rain in the fifth inning and resumed after a half hour's wait, under protest of Manager Bresnahan, who announced that he would file an objection with President Lynch. Konetchy made his first error in fifty-three games. The score:

JERSEY CITY TEAM DON'T PAY.

Franchise Will Be Transferred If Patronage Is Not More Liberal.

Declaring that they cannot afford to lose any more money, James J. Lillis and Hugh McBreen, owners of the Jersey City Baseball Club of the International League, have announced that unless the games at West Side Park are more generously patronized they will be obliged to transfer the franchise to some other city. In a public statement issued yesterday, President Lillis said there would be a game on Sunday to test the loyalty of the local baseball enthusiasts.

Jersey City and Baltimore will be the contesting teams. The price of admission will be raised from 25 to 50 cents and the grandstand seats will be 75 instead of 50 cents. The free list, including passes, will be suspended. If the attendance is not up to the expectation of the owners it will be the last game played in Jersey City. President Lillis says that "only by the increase of prices and an attendance that will show a desire on the part of the local fans to patronize the game can Jersey City be continued on the baseball map."

It was learned that the Jersey City team has made money only one year since it was established. James J. Lillis, a Jersey City lawyer, bought the team two years ago from the estate of the late Robert Davis. Last year Hugh McBreen of Boston became part owner of the team.

STATE POLICE SAVE UMPIRE.

Wilkesbarre Fans, Enraged by Decisions, Attack Official in Ball Game.

WILKESBARRE, Penn., July 17.—But for the presence of seven members of the State Constabulary, Umpire Cleary probably would have been lynched at the end of an exciting game here to-day. It was a booster day under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce, and 6,000 people were present.

Umpire Cleary in the seventh inning enraged the crowd with a decision at the plate that cost Wilkesbarre a run. In the eighth inning, with the score 1 to 1, Pitcher McGinley, standing in the box, kicked the dust with his foot when Cleary called a ball that looked like a strike. Cleary ordered McGinley out of the game, and a base on balls by Martin and a hit off McBride gave Troy the winning run in the ninth.

Immediately a crowd of at least 2,000 swarmed out on the diamond. The State police surrounded the umpire and beat off his assailants with their clubs and finally got him to a dressing room where he was besieged for two hours. Finally the police cleared the ground and Cleary, disguised in a raincoat, was hurried to Wilkesbarre and placed on a Laurel line train.

WESTERN GOLF RESULTS.

Sixteen Pairs Play in First Match Round at Denver C. C.

DENVER, Col., July 17.—With the nine-hole course of the Denver Country Club in much better condition as the result of a day's drying in a hot sun, after Sunday's cloudburst, the first round for the amateur championship of the Western Golf Association, eighteen holes, was played to-day with the thirty-two players who qualified yesterday afternoon teeing off at intervals of five minutes. The results follow:

G. N. Aldridge, Dallas, defaulted to J. Dewitt of Colorado Springs; Charles Evans, Jr., Edgewater, defeated V. Whitney, San Francisco, 3 up, 2 to play; D. E. Sawyer, Wheaton, defeated J. A. Republican Club Golfers Play.

Republican Club golfers took part in their semi-annual tournament over the links of the Wykagyl Country Club yesterday, conditions providing for thirty-six holes medal play handicap. Prizes were offered for the players making the best net and best gross scores. F. P. Duryea, with rounds of 88 and 87, for a total of 175, won possession of the Haviland Cup, a perpetual trophy presented by the Republican Club for the contestant who makes the best gross score on this day. Duryea has had his name inscribed on the trophy on three former occasions.

The second gross prize went to Ralph A. Day of the home club, whose card read 90—91—181, while F. B. McLean, another home player, was third with 91—92—183. The rule providing that players shall take no more than one prize prevented Duryea from winning the net award in the all-day handicap, his card being 175—18—157, consequently the winner was T. D. Scoble, with 196—38—158. Second net prize went to C. M. De Mott with 199—38—161. Gerald Stratton, with 97—19—78, was the winner of the 18-hole handicap played in the morning. Duryea, who is from Englewood, was the only prize winner outside of Wykagyl men.

JACK BRITTON NOT CLEVER AT BOXING

Chicagoan Defeats Harry Stone Easily, but Left a Poor Impression as to His Ability.

Jack Britton of Chicago outpointed Harry Stone, Eddie Smith had the better of Johnny Marto, and Johnny Lore of the west side gained the honors over Paddy Sullivan in the three ten-round bouts at the St. Nicholas A. C. last night. All the bouts went the full distance, as did the preliminaries, and it was within a few minutes of midnight when the final bout ended.

The Britton-Stone bout, although it resulted in a rather easy victory for the Chicagoan, failed to show him in the colors that he has been painted during the past few months, when all the top-notch lightweights were alleged to be side-stepping because of Britton's cleverness. Nothing that the Chicago boy showed last night would cause any of the boxers whom he has been naming in his challenges to lose any sleep. He will probably be able to get all the bouts he wants after his showing against Stone.

The east sider was picked as an eleventh-hour substitute after Tommy Ginty had injured his hand, and it was generally expected that Britton would toy with the New Yorker and keep the latter from hitting him. Stone upset all the calculations by staying the ten rounds with Britton, taking everything that the latter could hand out, and several times tearing after the Chicagoan so fast that Britton was forced to give ground. In the fourth round Stone did all the aggressive work, and had Britton backing around the ring or keeping his distance.

The other nine rounds belonged to Britton, but at that his showing was far from impressive. Time after time Britton had free range on Stone's jaw while the latter stood with guard down, and yet Britton could not rock the New Yorker off his feet. In the seventh round Britton drove Stone back to the ropes with a hard punch to the jaw, but this was the only occasion in which Britton's punches seemed to have any effect on the New Yorker. Before Britton could follow up his advantage in this round Stone had fully recovered from the effects of the punch and was tearing after his opponent. Stone used a left jab with good effect, and it shot through Britton's guard without encountering much opposition.

The semi-final bout, with Johnny Marto and Eddie Smith as the principals, was easily the best of the show. Smith did the cleaner hitting and was entitled to the honors, but his margin was not a wide one. Marto was strong at all stages and gave Smith a hard fight. At the finish Marto seemed stronger than his opponent, who had become weakened through his own exertions and Marto's stomach punches. Smith started off like an easy winner and gained the honors in the first three rounds, showing more speed than Marto in each session. Marto gained the fourth and also the fifth, the latter being the poorest round of the bout because of too much clinching.

The sixth, seventh, and eighth rounds were marked by decidedly fast work, both boys tearing in at each other without much let-up. Honors were about even in each session. Smith gained a good lead in the ninth round, and Marto came back and won the tenth.

The opening bout, between two west siders, Paddy Sullivan and Johnny Lore, was an unsatisfactory contest. Lore did the bulk of the clean hitting but he was also to blame for the bout being slow. He refused to stand up and box Sullivan, but devoted much of his time to walking around the ring. Sullivan was anxious to mix at all stages, but his aim was poor and many of his swings were wild. Neither boxer did any real damage during the bout.

HEAVYWEIGHTS IN RING.

Kennedy Expects to Give Wells Hard Battle at Garden To-night.

So evenly matched are Tom Kennedy, the local boxer, and Bombardier Wells, heavyweight champion of Great Britain, that even the shrewdest calculators decline to predict the winner of to-night's ten-round bout in Madison Square Garden. Up to a few days ago Wells was a slight favorite, but the encouraging reports from Kennedy's training quarters have evened things. Wells, however, is sure of success. He says he will win quickly, which means, of course, that he believes he can stop Kennedy completely.

Wells had Palzer in distress in the first round of their battle a month ago. With three punches Wells closed Palzer's left eye, made his nose bleed, and knocked him down for a count. Palzer was so groggy when he got up that Wells tried to put him away, and in so doing the Briton fought himself out and had little or no stamina left when Palzer began to beat him down in the third round with body blows.

Wells's wonderful fighting in that first round, however, will never be forgotten. If he tears in the same way with Kennedy, can the American withstand the blows of the British champion? Kennedy is undoubtedly a better boxer than Palzer, and will have a more effective defense when he meets Wells's attack, but it remains to be seen what Kennedy can accomplish when he lands punches in the Bombardier's stomach or on the point of the jaw.

Kennedy will have plenty of confidence, and his handler, Sammy Kelly, says that Wells cannot last more than half a dozen rounds.

Wells and Kennedy will scale at about 195 pounds a few minutes before it is time to go into the ring. William Joh will referee.

There will be three preliminaries—a four-round bout between Young Ketchel and Mike Clancy, 115-pounders; a six-round bout between two Jerseymen, Young Seiger and Young McKenna, and another six-round affair between Walter Brooks and Ed Gordon of Milwaukee at 130 pounds.

ALBRIGHT AGAIN WINS.

Denver Motor Cyclist Scores in Straight Heats at Brighton.

Professionals had their innings last night at the motordrome at Brighton Beach, and although rain put an end to the evening's sport, the only event that the spectators had to forego was the five-mile handicap. Johnny Albright of Denver was again the all-star performer by his defeat of Roy Veditz of Philadelphia in straight heats. Arthur Chapple of New York won a special match, in which Billy Wray figured. The summary:

Time Trial, Three Miles.—Arthur Chapple, New York. Time—2:13 1-5.

Match Race, Three Miles—Between Johnny Albright, Denver, and Roy Veditz, Philadelphia. First heat won by Albright. Time—2:26 2-5. Won by a length. Second heat won by Albright. Time—2:28 3-5. Won by two lengths.

Five-Mile Race, Professional.—First heat won by M. Costello, Bronx; John Cox, Brooklyn, second; Ferdie Mercier, Brooklyn, third. Time—3:43. Won by a length. Second heat won by John Cox, Mike Costello second; Ferdie Mercier third. Time—3:48 1-5. Won by one-quarter wheel. Third heat won by Mike Costello, Mercier second. Time—3:44 4-5. Won by one lap.

Three-Mile Match Race.—Arthur Chapple, New York, vs. Billy Wray, Brooklyn. First heat won by Chapple. Time—2:21 3-5. Won by two lengths. Second heat and race won by Chapple. Time—2:25 1-5. Won by two lengths.

Van Orman a Cornell Coach.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., July 17.—It was announced to-day that Ray Van Orman, for several years end on the Cornell football team, had been selected by Dr. A. H. Sharpe, head coach at Cornell, to be one of his assistants in developing the Ithacans next Fall. Van Orman, who was graduated from Cornell in 1908, was considered one of the best ends Cornell has produced. The appointment of Van Orman practically completes the Cornell coaching staff, of which Dr. Sharpe will be at the head. He himself is to coach the backfield, "Dan" Reid the line, and Van Orman the ends.

Esther W. Makes Her Debut in Grand Circuit by Winning.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., July 17.—Esther W., a nine-year-old mare, which made her début in the Grand Circuit this year, won the $10,000 Paper Mill Stake for 2:11 class trotters to-day in one of the best races ever seen in Kalamazoo. The crowd that witnessed the event was the largest that ever attended a race meet here.

Baden, which was generally thought to be the best of the lot, made a poor showing. Esther W., the mare that traveled over half-mile tracks in Pennsylvania and Ohio last year and was sold for $7,500, lost only one heat. Berger, driven by Geers, made a remarkable dash on the home stretch, winning the first heat, with Marigold, Oakdale, and The Wanderer all racing home ahead of Esther W.

In the second heat Oakdale followed Esther W. by a length under the wire, beating Marigold by a nose for second place. Esther W. had no difficulty in taking the third heat, but the fourth proved to be one of the closest contests of the day. Esther W. was leading the field at the half mile, Oakdale, Miss Archdale, and Baden closely following. Noses apart the four came down the home stretch until Baden broke, throwing the field apart, and leaving Esther W. nearly a length in the lead. The summaries:

UPSETS IN LAWN TENNIS.

Williams, Touchard, Inman, and Larned Beaten at Longwood.

BOSTON, July 17.—R. N. Williams of Philadelphia, National clay court champion, was defeated by Karl H. Behr of New York at the Longwood Cricket Club singles championship tournament to-day in a five-set match. The contest between the two, both of whom are survivors of the Titanic disaster, was declared by old-timers to be one of the hardest fought tennis battles seen during the twenty-two years of tournaments at Longwood.

Another five-set match which was closely contested was between G. F. Touchard of New York, winner of last year's tournament, and Nat W. Niles of Boston, the latter finally winning.

F. C. Inman of New York, after losing a match in the singles and being overcome with exhaustion, went into the Eastern doubles championships with E. P. Larned, and the two were put out by N. P. Hallowell and J. Nowell of Boston. This was the only upset in the doubles. The summary:

Singles—Fourth Round.—G. P. Gardner, Jr., Boston, defeated Craig Biddle, Philadelphia, 6—3, 5—7, 6—4, 7—5; J. E. Jones, Providence, defeated L. H. Martin, Boston, 6—3, 6—2, 6—3; W. J. LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Importers' Contention of Goods Entered Under Duress Fails.

Butler Brothers were unsuccessful protestants yesterday before the Board of United States General Appraisers. The importers contended that they entered certain goods under duress because a reappraisement proceeding was pending on this class of merchandise, in which a United States Appraiser had advanced values by disallowing a 5 per cent. discount, and they said that they were forced to enter the goods without the discount in order to avoid additional duties should the advance be sustained on appeal to reappraisement proceedings. In the opinion of the board, however, this circumstance did not set forth such a state of affairs as would relieve the importers, on the theory of duress, from the result of their action in entering the goods as they did.

Judge Waite contended that if the goods had been entered at what the importers considered the proper market value they might have appealed to reappraisement if the entered value had been raised by the Appraiser; but having entered the goods at the higher value and the Collector having assessed duty upon the entered value, as was his duty under the law, there were no elements of duress under the circumstances that would operate to relieve the importers from the effect of their action in thus entering the goods.

Regarding an importation of pepper, which is dutiable by weight, L. Mundet & Son entered a protest that allowance should have been made for the absorption of sea water, amounting to about 700 pounds. This was overruled.

Metal cases filled with chocolate cigarettes were the basis for a protest filed by C. B. Richard & Co. The cases were classified as smokers' articles, and assessed under Paragraph 475 of the present tariff as "unusual coverings." It was mantained by the importer that they were the usual coverings of the chocolate contained in them, and therefore dutiable at the same rate as their contents. The question presented by the facts in the case was rather a close one, but from the testimony and the samples the board thought it was brought fairly within the scope of a previous decision, and reached the conclusion that the Collector was right in making the assessment.

PRICES OF MEN'S FABRICS.

They Will Be Named To-day, and a General Increase Is Expected.

Interest in the New York men's wear market is centred on the naming to-day of prices on standard lines of staple woolen and worsted fabrics for next Spring. While the extent of the expected advances is problematical at the present moment, it is generally believed by men in close touch with the inner workings of the market that the prices named will be substantially above those quoted at the opening of the 1912 season.

Recent advances in raw wool and yarns have made a readjustment of values imperative, and for this reason more than the usual amount of interest is shown by buyers and sellers alike. Initial openings of less standard lines were made several weeks ago at prices ranging from 5 to 10 per cent. above last year's figures, and to-day's quotations are expected to show an equal if not greater advance. From all accounts fabrics of Australian wools will be relatively cheaper for the coming season than those into which domestic wools enter. Fancy worsteds of foreign and domestic manufacture are now being quoted at figures averaging about 7½ per cent. above those of a year ago.

Several lines of lightweight serges also will be opened to-day, and here advances of about 7½ to 10 cents a yard are expected. Owing to the high cost of lines of these fabrics already opened, some comment is heard in the market regarding cheapening them to get under present and expected prices. This means of lowering production costs is said to be meeting with favor among a certain class of manufacturing clothiers, but considerable trouble is predicted for them when they begin to make these cheapened fabrics up. Talk of design pirating is also heard, but as this is a topic for discussion at the opening of every new season it is not taken seriously by traders not directly affected by it.

THE DRY GOODS MARKET.

Buying Kept Pace Yesterday with That of the Day Before.

There was no appreciable change in the New York dry goods market yesterday. A number of out-of-town wholesalers were reported to have been in the city, and the aggregate volume of business placed by them compared very favorably with that of the preceding day. Cotton cloths of heavy construction moved well, denims and similar fabrics having received a satisfactory amount of attention. Buyers operated in a fair way on staple and dress ginghams, but bought rather cautiously of the latter. There seems to be a divided opinion in the market regarding the real position of these fabrics for next Spring, and until their status can be more definitely established there will probably be little disposition shown to buy heavily.

The retarding effect of the New Bedford strike, or lockout, whichever it may be, was plainly evident in the diminished activities in the fine cotton goods end of the market. Fear was expressed in certain quarters that should the trouble be prolonged to any extent sample lines would not be ready in time for salesmen to make their regular Spring trips. Hosiery and underwear trading in the primary market was about on a par with that of the day before. Silks have as yet shown little activity.

The unchanged condition of the primary market was reflected more or less in the principal jobbing centres. Some good spot buying in the heavier lines of Fall dress goods was reported, but for the most part seasonable dress materials received no great share of the day's house trade. Ribbons and laces showed a little improvement over Tuesday's buying, but the movement of the majority of lines in this market was seasonably limited.

BILL TO AID COTTON GROWER.

Will Receive Information on Actual Cotton if It Becomes Law.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Conferrees of the Senate and House have agreed to a bill which they think will give to the cotton grower the same amount of information on actual cotton that the cotton spinner now gets on cotton crop conditions.

The bill would require the Census Bureau to issue a monthly bulletin showing the actual amount of spot cotton on hand, and the number of spindles in operation. The spinners now get the statistics on the growth of cotton from the Agricultural Department.

Business Men Name Officers.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Elliot H. Goodwin of New York, Secretary of the National Civil Service Reform League, was to-day appointed Executive Secretary of the new Chamber of Commerce of the United States. D. A. Skinner, Assistant Chief of the Bureau of Manufactures, was appointed Assistant Secretary. Grosvenor Dawe, former Managing Director of the Southern Commercial Congress, was appointed Chief of the Editorial Division.

BUSINESS NOTES.

American purchases of tea from Japan for 1911 show substantial advances over 1910, both for Continental America and the insular possessions, according to The Tea and Coffee Trade Journal. The figures covering purchases of green teas advanced from $5,890,352 to $6,138,862, and for Oolong from $2,638,542 to $2,999,455. Exports to the Hawaiian Islands, green teas only, increased approximately $1,500 in value. Shipments of green teas to the Philippines fell off somewhat in 1911, but advanced for Pouchong from $15,011 in 1910 to $15,707 last year.

Reports from the New York drug market indicate present operations to be largely of a jobbing character, with the demand large enough in the aggregate to hold prices steady. Essential oils are firm, and show little change from quotations current at the opening of the week. Activities in roots are limited in certain lines, but moderate offerings tend to keep the market steady.

EXPORTS FROM NEW YORK.

8,698 Packages Shipped from This Port as Against 1,744 Last Week.

Exports of domestics and cotton duck from the Port of New York in the week ended July 13, as reported by the Custom House, came to 8,698 packages, valued at $418,229, against 1,744 packages, valued at $125,219, shipped in the preceding week. Under this increase of 6,954 packages and $293,010 in value, exports of this class of merchandise recorded since the beginning of the current year show a substantial gain over the size and value of similar shipments forwarded in the corresponding period in 1911, the excess now being 50,757 packages and $1,381,411 in value.

Exports to the British East Indies, valued at $94,381, headed the list of the week's shipments, with forwardings to China, Aden, and the British possessions in Africa, valued respectively at $47,105, $34,242, and $28,316, following as named. Total exports of this merchandise reported since Jan. 1, 1912, aggregate 249,334 packages, valued at $15,416,207, against 198,577 packages, valued at $14,034,796, shipped in the same period a year ago.

The situation in the local export market shows no material change from last week. Excepting for the Philippines, none of the principal foreign markets are supplying much in the way of new business. The demand from the smaller miscellaneous markets keeps up well, however, and tends to keep values firm. No really large orders were received from China and the Red Sea districts in the week, and the continued lack of demand from these sources caused no little concern among New York exporters. The call from Cuba was limited somewhat by the plague scare, and Porto Rican business was practically at a standstill as far as this market was concerned.

COTTON MEN CONFER TO-DAY.

Representatives of All Exchanges to Adjust Bremen Claims.

Representatives of the various Cotton Exchanges of the country will meet today in the board room of the Cotton Exchange here to discuss reclamation claims in dispute between the Savannah Cotton Exchange and the Cotton Exchange of Bremen, Germany. This was to have been taken up yesterday, but owing to the absence of many Cotton Exchange men the meeting was adjourned until to-day.

The claims have been arbitrated by the Bremen authorities, and it is permissible to appeal to a committee of the Bremen institution. According to the Savannah Cotton Exchange and other Southern Exchanges, the Bremen Arbitration Board decisions are unsatisfactory.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—The Consular and Trade Report will note the following foreign trade opportunities. Further information regarding these may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures, care of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of item referred to:

9,198. HAMS.—An American Consul in France reports that a local commission merchant with extensive selling connections would like to get quotations on about 1,000 sugar-cured American hams weighing from 8-10 to 12-14 pounds each. If prices are acceptable, he would be willing to buy as much as 20,000 pounds at a time.

9,199. LOW-PRICED AUTOMOBILES.—A business man in a Mediterranean country informs an American Consular officer that he desires to enter into communication with American firms manufacturing low-priced automobiles, with a view to representing as agent and importing this class of machines. As the territory in which the machines will be used is hilly and mountainous, the engines must be good. Electric automobiles are not wanted.

9,200. RAILS AND RAILWAY MATERIAL.—An American Consul has forwarded a list of railway materials, including rails, fishplates, rail rests, &c., needed by railways in his district, and for which tenders will be received until Aug. 1, 1912.

9,201. DREDGING AND WHARF CONSTRUCTION.—The American Consul General at Ottawa, Canada, reports that the Department of Public Works has advertised for tenders, to be received until July 23, 1912, for dredging required at Marble Cove, St. John County, New Brunswick. Bids will be received until July 31 for constructing a landing pier at Ste. Felicite, County of Rimouski, Quebec. Tenders are invited until July 29 for constructing a wharf and approach at the town of Orillio, Simcoe County, Ontario. Forms of tenders, &c., can be obtained at the Department of Public Works, Ottawa, Canada.

9,202. COTTON GOODS.—An importer in a Mediterranean country informs an American Consular officer that he desires to be placed in communication with exporters of American cotton goods.

9,203. COTTONSEED OIL.—A report from an American Consulate in a European country states that one of the largest importing firms at a local port desires to represent an American exporter of cottonseed oil.

9,204. LOW-PRICED AUTOMOBILES.—An American Consular officer in a European country has forwarded a copy of a letter received from a business firm in his district, requesting certain information in regard to low-priced American automobiles, and containing particulars regarding the automobiles which he wishes to handle and the conditions upon which he desires to obtain the same. This firm is anxious to hear from factories making large quantities of low-priced cars, that will do much advertising, and with which business can be done for some years to come.

9,205. BALATA BELTING, COTTON GOODS, AND BLANKETS.—A prominent British firm with offices in the Far East has written to one of the commercial agents of the Department of Commerce and Labor that it would like to get in touch with a first-class manufacturer of balata belting. If quality and price are right, this firm feels certain that a good business can be done in this line. It also has a branch dealing with soft goods, such as collars, flannelettes, shirtings, blankets, underwear, &c. There are many lines of American products of this nature which the firm feels sure it could handle to good advantage and it would like to hear from manufacturers of the same. Another line in which there is a good demand in the home trade is in blankets made of waste cotton. These blankets are supplied in what is known as jasper, scarlet, and white and come either hemmed or with whipped ends.

9,206. BROOM CORN CLEANING MACHINERY.—A resident of a Latin-American country recently called at an American Consulate for information relative to machines for cleaning the seeds from broom corn. He is a large grower of broom corn and not only wishes to clean his own straw for the manufacture of brooms but also wants an agency for the machines. American manufacturers of such machines should send their catalogues, with discount sheets, both to the inquirer and to the Consulate, as it is believed several can be sold in the country in question.

SIDELIGHTS ON SELLING.

According to advices from Chicago, Middle Western manufacturers and jobbers of corsets predict that sales in this line for 1912 will eclipse all previous records in that part of the country.

Manufacturers of braids and similar dress trimmings anticipate a better season this Fall than for some time.

An increased demand for quarter goods has been noted in the New York hosiery market of late. Some creditable merchandise to retail at this figure is shown.

Among the novelty laces offered for Fall, those with broad mesh net backgrounds are attracting considerable attention.

CONSULAR TRADE NOTES.

A laboratory for study of canning and preserving has been opened by the United States Bureau of Chemistry at San Francisco, Cal. It is equipped with the latest appliances for duplicating on a small scale the work done in factories. Dr. A. W. Bitting, the food technologist in charge of the laboratory, has issued a bulletin on "The Canning of Foods: A Description of the Methods Followed in Commercial Canning." Copies may be obtained at 10 cents each from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C.

In his annual message the Prefect of the Federal District of Rio de Janeiro stated that tenders would shortly be invited for the construction of several incinerating furnaces in certain zones of that Brazilian district.

BILL WILL AID SHIPPERS.

House Committee Favors Wider Power for Commerce Court.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—The House Judiciary Committee has voted to report favorably Representative Borland's bill to amend the new judicial code that the Commerce Court may have jurisdiction over all cases brought to correct any error of law made by the Inter-State Commerce Commission in granting or refusing to grant relief in any proceeding before it.

This would give the Commerce Court authority to enforce orders of the commission if lawful and to stay the enforcement of an illegal order. Luther M. Walter of Chicago advocated the amendment on the ground that it would give shippers the same relief which railroads have against an error of law by the commission.

ERIE BUYS MIKADO ENGINES.

Fifty to be Made by Two Builders—New Steel Cars, Too.

The Erie Railroad has placed orders for its fifty new Mikado type freight locomotives with the American Locomotive Company and the Baldwin Locomotive Company. An order for 500 steel coke cars has been given to the Pressed Steel Car Company, and for 300 automobile cars to the American Car and Foundry Company.

For the suburban passenger service the Erie has ordered 25 steel underframe electrically lighted coaches and 11 combined passenger and baggage cars from the Standard Steel Car Company.

IMMIGRATION BILL DELAY.

New Law Has Small Chance of Being Reported This Session.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Chairman Burnett of the House Committee on immigration, has little hope of the passage of a new immigration law at this session of Congress.

His rule making the Dillingham-Burnett bill privileged will not be reported by the Rules Committee until December and as it is so far down in the calendar there is little likelihood of it being reached before adjournment.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—The Senate and House conferrees on the River and Harbor Appropriation bill reached a complete agreement to-day on an amended bill carrying a total appropriation of $33,000,000. The bill as it passed the Senate was reduced in conference by $809,000. The $500,000 item for improving Jamaica Bay, N. Y., was cut to $300,000.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

JOHN KENNEDY & SON.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against John Kennedy & Son, Inc., builders and contractors of 6 Church Street, by Roland R. Carter, attorney for these creditors: Commonwealth Roofing Company, $5,513; N. Ryan Company, $4,454, and Charles A. Zeh, $60. It was alleged that the corporation was insolvent, and on July 13 admitted in writing inability to pay its debts and willingness to be adjudicated bankrupt. It was stated that the liabilities were at least $70,000 and that the assets did not exceed $10,000. The business was started in 1889 by the firm of John Kennedy & Son and was incorporated on Sept. 27, 1910, with a capital stock of $10,000, and with William Kennedy as President and Treasurer. The corporation has had several large contracts lately for the erection of buildings, among which were the office building at 6 Church Street for the Church Liberty Leasehold Company and the Methodist Episcopal Church Home on New York Avenue and Park Place, Brooklyn.

JOSEPH LERMAN.—Joseph Lerman of 1,462 Brook Avenue, formerly a dealer in painters' supplies, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $1,983 and no assets.

MORE EMPIRE TRUST CAPITAL

Stockholders Asked to Waive Rights So Other Interests Can Get In.

Stockholders of the Empire Trust Company of 42 Broadway have been called to a special meeting April 1 to act on a proposal to increase the company's capital stock by 5,000 shares, which would carry the par value of the capital stock from $1,000,000 up to $1,500,000. The purpose of the new capital is "to enable the company to satisfactorily handle a large increase in its deposits and general business which would result from the consummation of plans now under consideration." The stock is to be sold at $300 a share, and, therefore, $200 a share will be added to the surplus.

It was said at the trust company yesterday that it would be premature to reveal the exact nature of the developments hinted at in the letter to stockholders, but it was explained that the prospective purchasers of the new stock were "interests here and abroad."

After the sale of the new stock it is expected that the directorate will be increased so that the new interest will have a proper representation in the board. Although under the laws of the State each stockholder is entitled to subscribe pro rata for new shares issued for cash, the circular explains that while shareholders are "not required to do so," they are "requested to waive wholly or in part" their rights to subscribe. It is explained so that subscribers "to whom the company desires to allot as many shares as possible will, it is believed, influence profitable business and lend additional strength and importance to the company in its domestic and foreign relations."

The company's capital was raised to $1,000,000 in 1908, and since then the deposits have risen to nearly $20,000,000, and similar growth has taken place in the banking and trust departments. The corporate mortgages under which the company acts as trustee have increased since 1908 from $132,000,000 to $472,000,000.

IRON MOUNTAIN ISSUE.

Company Will Put Out $26,000,000 6 Per Cents. When Market Favors.

The St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern Railway, which the Gould bankers have decided is big enough to finance itself, announced yesterday that it would offer for sale at an early date approximately $26,000,000 of 6 per cent. bonds. These are part of the issue of $200,000,000 authorized by the stockholders at a special meeting on July 9 under a new first and refunding mortgage covering all of the property owned by the company.

Of the $200,000,000 bonds authorized about $134,000,000 are reserved to refund underlying issues. Of the $66,000,000 which the company is free to sell it is expected that $26,000,000 will be put out as soon as the security market justifies an offering. From the proceeds the $11,300,000 5 per cent. bonds of 1909, now pledged under the Missouri Pacific refunding bonds, and the $8,500,000 6 per cent. notes of the Iron Mountain company, pledged under the Missouri Pacific three-year notes, will be retired. The balance will be used to reimburse the Iron Mountain for past capital expenditures amounting to about $6,000,000.

In connection with the issue of the new bonds a rearrangement of the collateral for the Missouri Pacific three-year notes has been agreed upon between the Missouri Pacific and Speyer & Co., which provides that for $11,300,000 Missouri Pacific refunding bonds and $8,500,000 Iron Mountain notes there will be substituted with the trustee $19,500,000 of the new Iron Mountain refunding mortgage 6 per cent. bonds which the Missouri Pacific will acquire. The Missouri Pacific will also replace the $7,000,000 Wabash preferred stock now deposited as security for the Missouri Pacific notes by depositing in their stead $2,500,000 Iron Mountain stock now held in the Missouri Pacific treasury.

The St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern Railway Company's earnings for the eleven months of this year show a surplus over all fixed charges amounting to almost $2,000,000.

MUCH LIGHTWEIGHT GOLD.

Coins Beyond "Limit of Tolerance" Are Discounted at Treasury.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—There are probably millions of dollars in gold coins circulating in the United States which are not worth their full face value. This fact has been called to the attention of Lee McClung, Treasurer of the United States, but the Government has no desire or intention to recall the money in order that only gold of standard value may be in circulation.

Should this gold be presented to the treasury or sub-treasuries, its owners would be the losers, because of the enormous wear caused by abrasions in circulation. While the Government does not require that gold coins shall be of standard weight to be redeemed at their face value, it has established what is known as a "limit of tolerance," which permits a loss in weight of one-half of one per cent.

Below the limit, the Treasury makes a reduction at the rate of four cents per grain.

Lightweight gold, it is said, exists principally on the Pacific coast, where the greater bulk of yellow metal is in circulation. The financial interests of the West, the Treasury has been advised, know two kinds of gold—Treasury gold and bank gold. The former is full weight, while the latter is below the "limit of tolerance." The worn gold never reaches the Treasury, or the Sub-Treasuries. According to reports here it is passed from bank to bank and individual to individual, like a plugged coin, and in that way maintains its parity of value.

Silver coin is always worth its face value, however much abused by the ravages of time.

Grains Down on Fine Growing Conditions; Cotton Wavers.

Wheat declined under heavy liquidation, closing at new low levels on the favorable crop advices. Corn and oats also weakened, and as in wheat, closings were at new low records. The entire crop situation is highly favorable. Provisions were irregular. Cottonseed oil showed irregularity, but no special steadiness, with consuming demand continuing quiet. Cotton values lacked definite tendency, due to the mixed crop outlook. Rains continue in the East, but the West received beneficial showers. Spot business at Liverpool was smaller, although futures were firm. American spots are strong. Coffee declined, due to increasing willingness of Brazil to sell.

WHEAT.

The American wheat markets closed at the low point of the day and at the low point on the crop. Aside from a little rally in the first hour there was pronounced pressure on values and almost no resistance shown. In the early trading prices were affected by sudden strength in Winnipeg, where the markets were up on a sharp drop in temperature and some apprehension of frost. The cables were relatively steady and the high temperatures abroad are causing a little apprehension of crop damage there. When the early covering movement was satisfied selling became aggressive and prices declined about 8c a bushel from the high of the day. The weather was very favorable in the American Northwest and the estimates on the crop are increasing. The Northwestern Miller says that the situation is slightly promising, with the crop reports monotonously favorable. Wheat is heading out in most of the territory, and in some sections the berry is forming. Early cutting is expected to start around July 25. Its reports from the Southwest are equally favorable, with advices indicating a reasonable certainty of a Kansas crop over 90,000,000 bushels. Many of the Southwestern reports claim 90,000,000 to 100,000,000 bushels for Kansas. The extreme estimates for the three States, Dakotas and Minnesota, are 300,000,000, but this is regarded as excessive by conservative reporters. The break in the Minneapolis markets carried wheat at the close to only 1⅞c over Winnipeg October, and making a nearest approach to an export parity on Spring wheat with the Canadian since last year. Winter wheats have declined to a point where a little export business is reported from Baltimore and five loads were worked late Tuesday for the United Kingdom. No. 2 red was quoted at $1.09¼, f. o. b.; No. 1 Northern, Spring, $1.13¼; No. 2 hard Winter, $1.07½, and No. 1 Northern, Manitoba, $1.15¾.

OTHER GRAINS.

CORN.—The corn market was steady during the morning, but later, affected by the weakness in wheat and renewed pressure on the new crop deliveries, prices weakened and the close was at the lowest of the day, with the new crop deliveries at new low records on the very favorable weather conditions. The crop situation is encouraging, expectation of a very large crop of corn with ordinary weather from now on and possibly a record one. Spot corn is held very firmly. Western receipts are decreasing and old crop months are liable to repeated periods of congestion. Cash corn was quoted nominal, 82¼c, free on board.

OATS.—New low records were made on the new crop deliveries, with the close at about the low point. Confidence in record crop is growing, and new oats are being offered very freely. They are quoted for forward shipment, cost, insurance, and freight, New York, at a heavy discount under the old crops, which in the local market are very scarce and have been held at high figures owing to the scarcity. As soon as new oats begin to arrive prices will be liable to a sharp readjustment, as new oats are quoted from 18c to 20c under the spot old. Spot Standards, No. 2 whites, and No. 3 whites were quoted at 58c, elevator, nominal.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market was dull and easier, sagging off a little with the decline in feeding grain and the heaviness in oil at New York. Hog receipts for the day were 75,000.

COTTON OIL.

The technical position of the future market seemed to largely account for the rally toward the close of Tuesday's session, and the outset yesterday, although a higher set of lard values, and a scattered demand from cotton interests contributed to this result. Offerings of cottonseed oil, however, became plentiful on the upturn, and what improvement had occurred was virtually all obliterated. Inasmuch as the short interest continues successful in covering their previous sales without difficulty, the tendency remains for professional operators to adhere to this side, particularly as the consuming demand affords little encouragement for acting otherwise. With the lowering of levels, however, there is some modification of bearish opinions, especially as the new crop deliveries are not far from the six-cent level, although without a doubt the progress of the cotton crop will determine, to an important extent, the fluctuations in those deliveries. More liberal new crop crude offerings were claimed from Texas, and it is believed that part of the selling of futures was in the nature of hedges.

COTTON.

Again the character of the weather news was complicated enough to render the future market nervous, and irregular price movements resulted. Reports indicated that the drought situation west of the Mississippi, especially in Texas, was being relieved at many points because of the receipt of showers, and dispatches to this effect inspired freer offerings of contracts on the small advances. On the other hand, the regions east of the river experienced more moisture, with the precipitation heavy in parts of Alabama and Georgia. The market was alternately heavy and firm, although it closed with only small net changes, and the disposition in general was to await further developments.

Initial quotations showed average advances of about seven points. The fact that the Liverpool market was steadier than anticipated was not ignored, and the trade interpreted the excessive moisture in parts of the East as bullish. From Georgia were a renewal of claims that the plant is not fruiting, with a sappy condition noted, while the trade was again reminded of insects in that State. From various authorities, however, were statements that the dry areas in many parts of Texas were receiving either light or moderate rain, and with the official forecast for general showers in Texas, Oklahoma, and Arkansas, the disposition to accept profits was not surprising.

The dealings were less active, and the market was not near as broad as recently, suggesting cautiousness in many quarters. It was asserted that, should the precipitation materialize overnight in the Southwest, and should there be a natural let-up in the hitherto persistent showery weather East, crop accounts would assume a more hopeful tenor. Many are also expressing the opinion that the prevailing levels go a long way toward discounting much of the deterioration, prospective and past, but it is still evident that until there is a decided betterment in climatic conditions the aggressiveness toward higher levels is limited, being partially restricted by the indisposition of the South to sell freely, while the tone of the spot markets has not been impaired.

The report by Miss Giles, issued early in the session, was not a market influence, although construed as rather bullish by a majority of the trade. The state of the plant as of July 11 was placed at 80.4, indicating deterioration since June 25 of 1.5 points. This compared with a condition of 80.2 in mid-June and 88 last year. Some interests argued that since the compilation of this report there has been mainly unfavorable weather in the Southeast, but against this it is not thought that there has been any irreparable damage from the drought in the Western district. The Memphis Commercial Appeal in its weekly review claimed that the crop west of the river has made more than normal progress, but this was counterbalanced by the unfavorable situation East, where the excessive moisture has had a deleterious effect.

COFFEE.

Coffee opened quiet, unchanged to 2 points lower, and continued to sag until prices lost 8 to 10 points on the active positions, final figures being 2 to 5 points net lower on total sales of 58,500 bags. Cost and freight offers from Brazil were 10 to 20 points lower. Havre came ¼ franc lower, while Hamburg was unchanged to ¼ pfennig decline. Rio declined 150 reis, losing the previous day's advance, and Santos was 50 reis lower. Private advices from Europe were that there was a tendency to anticipate a heavy flowering for the 1913 and 1914 crop.

KINKEAD ASSAILS PACKERS.

Would Remove Duty on Cattle—Also Defends Lorimer.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—In a speech to the House to-day vigorously assailing the Beef Trust, Representative Eugene F. Kinkead, Democrat, of New Jersey, excoriated the United States Senate for its recent vote ousting William Lorimer of Illinois. He pictured the Senate as subservient to the press, and declared that such an attitude on the part of the Senate was very regretable, and if continued would bring Congress to a position of cowardly subserviency to the magazines and newspapers. He said:

"When the tirade of abuse in the magazines and newspapers was leveled at the head of Senator Lorimer I have thought that these editorial writers should have been made of the peaceful clay of Representative Nye of Minnesota; that they should overlook whatever indiscretion may have been committed by men in behalf of Lorimer and level their guns at the mighty men of wealth who have grown rich while children in New York were lying naked beneath the pitiless rays of the scorching Summer sun."

Mr. Kinkead called the Beef Trust "the most iniquitous combination in this country." He was speaking in support of a bill which he introduced to-day for the immediate removal of the duty on cattle, sheep, swine, beef, and refrigerated meats. The bill is aimed at the Beef Trust, and opposed by Representative Atterson W. Rucker, Democrat, of Colorado, who asserted that the Kinkead bill, providing for free importation of cattle from Australia and Argentina, would not produce lower prices in this country, or benefit the consumer. It would, Mr. Rucker asserted, be of advantage only to the Beef Trust.

Mr. Kinkead said the evil in the beef situation was apparent when these great packing concerns began to combine. They had denied that they were making money, Mr. Kinkead said, but they recently tried to sell $30,000,000 in bonds, and their net earnings were 35 per cent.

TO AUCTION OFF A FERRY.

Franchise for Bay Ridge-St. George Line to Go to Highest Bidder.

The Sinking Fund Commissioners authorized yesterday the establishment of a ferry between Bay Ridge Avenue, Brooklyn, and South Street, St. George, Staten Island. It has been in operation since July 1, and it was proposed that the Commissioners should grant a franchise to Frank G. Montag for ten years at a rental of 2 per cent. of the gross receipts.

Deputy Controller Fisher reported that this seemed too small a sum and on the motion of Controller Prendergast it was decided to direct Dock Commissioner Tomkins to put up the ferry at public bidding.

Wireless Law Goes to President.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—The conference report on the new wireless law, framed from the lessons of the Titanic disaster, and requiring wireless operators on duty constantly aboard ships, was adopted by the House to-day, and now requires only the President's signature to make it law.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Advance Sharply in Last Hour—Good Crop and Steel News.

After showing quiet firmness during four hours of yesterday's Stock Exchange session the market rose sharply in the final hour, the leading issues in this movement making net gains for the day of over 2 points. The chief influences which prompted this closing strength were the further decline which occurred during the afternoon in grain prices and the very satisfactory advices which were published late in the day regarding the steel trade. At this time a week ago there were some who, contrary to the opinion of the best informed authorities in the steel trade, were finding in the position of that industry an excuse for the bearish sentiment which at that time was being reflected in the dealings on the Stock Exchange. The actual information regarding the steel market has not varied materially within the week, but yesterday's news was accepted as confirming the view that there is such a broad forward movement under way in the country's chief industry that even the usual check which the Summer puts upon activity at the steel mills will not prevent the booking of a large volume of orders. The fact that these are still coming to hand freely despite the recent advances—and there have been further increases in prices this week—bears out the most optimistic expectations regarding this trade.

It happened that the emphasis which the day's events laid on the excellence of the crop prospects was itself closely related to the influence exerted on financial sentiment by the weekly reviews of the steel trade position. It has all along been expected that when the crops become far enough advanced to convince the managements of the railroads that the yields would be bountiful, increased orders for equipment would be placed for the purpose of meeting the requirements of traffic which, if the crops are really good, will in all probability increase beyond the ability of the railroads to handle it easily without some additions to rolling stock. The fact that so large a percentage of the equipment of the railroads as the fortnightly bulletins of the Railway Association have shown has been in use even in advance of the crop moving period, makes it reasonable enough to expect, as yesterday's trade advices indicated, that railway equipment orders will become more of a factor in the steel trade than they have been of late.

In considering the extent of the influence of the day's developments upon the stock market, it is necessary of course to bear in mind the fact that this week's firm, and until the last hour of trading yesterday, quiet market, was the sequel to fairly active selling by traders a week ago during the course of which the short interest in the market was probably considerably increased. Some of this may have been tempted to cover because of the recent strength and dullness of the market which make a conjunction of conditions not altogether comforting to a short interest. It is probable, however that enough of these commitments for the Fall were open when the market began to show aggressive strength yesterday afternoon to lead to a good deal of covering, which was joined with further accumulation of stock in influencing quotations. It was not strange under the circumstances that the market was still very narrow in all but the few leading issues. The day's change in market sentiment naturally found pronounced reflection in such stocks as Union Pacific and Reading, leaders, particularly the latter, in speculative operations, but the specific influence of the crop and steel trade news was clearly reflected in the steel shares and in the Northwestern granger roads. St. Paul did not lag behind the other roads in its territory, notwithstanding the recent discussion of the possibility of a further cut in its dividends. Crop prospects must necessarily play an important part in forming the judgment of the road's directors regarding the outlook for earnings during the coming year, and whatever tends to make that outlook more favorable, as does yesterday's satisfactory crop news, will necessarily lessen the likelihood of a further reduction in the dividend rate at this time. If nothing occurs between now and the date at which action on the St. Paul dividend will be taken to lessen the bright outlook for the crops it will not be unreasonable to expect that the present dividend rate will be maintained.

The mood of the market was not one in which the Stock Exchange was likely to concern itself much with the further declines which occurred in consols yesterday, but the fall in this premier security below the worst price of 1831, which carried the comparison back five years further to 1826, must necessarily exert a more or less disheartening influence upon the great investment markets. The placing yesterday of a $20,000,000 exchequer loan puts behind the London market a flotation the anticipation of which had been a depressing influence upon the price of consols, but the coincident news that only about 10 per cent. of the $10,000,000 Queensland loan had been taken off the hands of the underwriters added just one more to the many incidents which have indicated a congestion of investment securities in London. Other markets are suffering to some extent from this same influence, but its effect there is more pronounced than at the other financial centres. Thus while French rentes have been declining, they are still about one-half of 1 per cent. above their low price of last April. The Imperial Bank of Germany in its weekly statement reflected good progress in its recovery from the credit expansion which was required in connection with the July 1 settlements.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

End of a Once Popular Ferry.

There are a few business men in lower Manhattan who will see the passing of the old Wall Street Ferry with regret. One of these is the President of a large trust company, who has taken the trip across the River on the Baltic or Columbia twice a day for many years. For the most part, however, the closing of the ferryhouses on July 28 will cause no disappointment. At one time the boats bound for Manhattan between 9 and 10 in the morning carried a crowd of prominent Wall Street men. In those days the Heights was a popular residential section, and the ferry saved men with offices in the financial district a long, roundabout trip over the Brooklyn Bridge. The opening of the Interborough's tunnels under the East River, about five years ago, marked the beginning of the end for the boats. The crowds rapidly thinned out as passengers discovered that they could save several minutes between Wall Street and their homes by taking the tunnel. The old fare, which was 1 cent in rush hours and 2 cents at other times, was raised to 3 cents in the hope of making up part of the lost revenue. This discouraged still more patrons from taking the boats, and the fare was ultimately made 5 cents. With the removal of the tolls for Bridge travel the ferries carried fewer trucks, and it has been evident for some time that the boats could not be operated at a profit.

⁂

Last-Hour Business.

It looked for most of the session yesterday as though the stock market would set a new record for dullness. Up to 2 o'clock the total number of shares changing hands was but 137,527. Nearly an hour elapsed between two quotations for Reading, one of the leading issues usually in point of activity. At the end of the fourth hour there was a sudden spurt, with the result that more business was done from 2 to 3 than had been done in the first four hours. From noon until 2 o'clock only 6,700 shares of Steel changed hands. In the next hour transactions in this issue totaled 35,300 shares. With the increase in activity came a general improvement in prices, and there was a renewal of the talk of an impending bull market.

⁂

Not Betting on the Election.

While reports are heard occasionally of big wagers having been placed on the outcome of the November Presidential election, it is asserted by a man who usually holds the stakes when Broad Street is making bets that practically no wagers have been made so far. He ascribes this to the absence of any Taft sentiment in the financial district, and to the uncertainties of Roosevelt's position. There are plenty of men who would like to put up a few hundred dollars on the Democratic nominee, but it takes two sides to make a wager, and the Taft supporters are not coming into the open. It was reported yesterday that a Curb broker was holding $7,000 to be put up against $5,000 that Taft would not be re-elected. In the event of Roosevelt's withdrawing, this man is instructed to offer the money at 9 to 5 on Wilson.

⁂

One Rate for Tobacco Issues.

Another of the new companies formed by the breaking up of the American Tobacco Company declared its initial dividend yesterday, putting the stock on a 10 per cent. basis. This is the J. S. Young Company, which handles part of the business formerly done by MacAndrews & Forbes Company. While the former members of the trust may be competing for business, they do not believe in competing for stockholders. The American Tobacco Company, the P. Lorillard Company, American Snuff Company, Weyman-Bruton, George W. Helme & Co., MacAndrews & Forbes, and the J. S. Young Company are all paying dividends of 10 per cent. now.

⁂

A "Morgan" Market.

There used to be a tradition that stocks went up when J. P. Morgan returned from his annual vacation in Europe. Whether there was any real connection between the two facts or not, brokers were interested yesterday in seeing a general advance on the day that the banker started across the ocean.

⁂

A Forgotten Argument.

Since the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company became interested in subway development the old bull argument of increased earnings from the Coney Island business, which used to make its appearance with each hot day, has been lost sight of. The Brooklyn Rapid Transit always has maintained that the profit in hauling crowds to Surf Avenue is more apparent than real, anyway.

⁂

Hawaii Wants a Little Cash.

Hawaii is about to make a modest demand on the New York money market. David Lloyd Conkling, Treasurer of the islands, arrived here yesterday admittedly after money. On a visit last year he sold a small batch of bonds. Now he has to offer $1,250,000 of twenty-year 4 per cents., the proceeds of which are to be used in public improvements in the islands.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Trading in Better Volume, but Price Movements Are Narrowly Confined on Curb.

Trading was in somewhat better volume yesterday and some strength was shown in the Curb issues, but price movements were for the most part narrow. Interest in the industrial list has shifted from the tobacco issues to some of the other stocks. British-American Tobacco reported transactions of only 800 shares, and United Cigar Stores 300 shares, the latter advanced from the opening at 245 to 250, even with the previous day's close. Among the more active industrials were Loose-Wiles Biscuit which advanced from 41⅞ to 42, and Marconi which sold 1,900 shares between 8½ and 8¾, closing at 8⅝. Manhattan Transit reported sales of 1,000 shares between 2⅛ and 2¼, closing at 2 3-16. Braden was the most active copper, selling 4,000 shares between 6¾ and 7, and closing at the high figure which was even with the opening. Gains of ⅛ on the day's trading were made by British Columbia, Greene-Cananea and Mason Valley. The bond list reported no sales.

STOCKS OUT OF TOWN.

Rally Shortly Before Close Lifts Stocks After Early Dullness.

There were few features which attracted notice in yesterday's markets in other cities, although reports to THE NEW YORK TIMES reflected a good undertone in most of these Exchanges.

On light buying at Baltimore Consolidated Power preferred rallied briskly and recorded an additional recovery of 2½ points. Houston Oil preferred sold at a new high record.

The market at Boston was dull and featureless until the last hour, when a brisk advance took place.

Butte and Superior was heavily traded in all day at various prices between 39½ and 42¼, selling last at 42. The story that the company might be compelled to litigate over some of its territory was revived and perhaps caused some of the selling. Isle Royale was strong and fairly active.

There was a fair volume of trading on the Cicago Stock Exchange, but price changes were closely confined to fractions, one of the exceptions being Pacific Gas, which advanced 3½ points to 65 on the five months' earning statement.

Hart, Schaffner & Marx preferred was moderately active.

Rates of discount are hardening in Chicago. The mercantile demand for money has picked up so decidedly this week that rates have become responsive. Leading banks hold out for 4½ per cent., as the minimum on commercial paper. Counter loans at 5@5½ per cent. are in increasing demand. Scarcely any paper finds ready sale except September maturity.

Hesitation marked trading in the Philadelphia local market, and dealings were within small limits. The narrow market caused recessions in several issues, although the offerings for the most part were light. Other stocks resisted the heaviness and held firm. The selling movement in Tonopah Belmont seemed to have been checked, and the smaller supply caused a slight advance in the quotation.

BOURSES OF EUROPE

Consols Touch a New Low Level in London—German Shares Weaker.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Thursday, July 18.—The Times says in its City article to-day:

"The chief topic of interest in the money market yesterday was the placing through Messrs. N. M. Rothschild of £3,800,000 of 3 per cent. eighteen-year Exchequer bonds at 93½. The amount, needless to say, was easily absorbed, and the bonds were bid for at 3.8 premium before the close. The proceeds of the issue are required in connection with the nation's purchase of the telephones.

"Money was in rather better supply, partly, no doubt, in consequence of the large discount business done by the Bank of England on Tuesday, and at the close balances were occasionally placed at 2 per cent. A trifling amount due to the Bank was repaid. The India Council renewed a fair amount at 2¾ per cent. for a month.

"Discount rates were maintained at Tuesday's level. Not much business was passing. A few short bills were taken to the Bank for discount.

"A welcome feature in the late dealings in the stock markets was a slight rally in consols. At the opening there was a renewal of the selling of gilt-edged securities. The weakness of the market was attributed to the poor response to the issue of £2,000,000 Queensland 3½ per cent. stock, of which about 90 per cent. was left to the underwriters. Consols at one time changed hands at 74 7-16 for cash, a new low level, but on the news that the expected issue of exchequer bonds, which was for a smalleramount than had been looked for, had been successfully placed, the tone of the market hardened and part of the initial fall was recovered.

"Business showed no signs of becoming more active. In most departments the tone was inclined to be dull. Home railway stocks derived very little benefit from the batch of excellent traffic returns, and the market was idle pending the appearance of dividend announcements, several of which are due to-day.

"Elsewhere features of interest were few and far between."

PARIS, July 17.—Prices moved irregularly on the Bourse to-day.

Three per cent. rentes, 92f. 10c. for the account.

BERLIN, July 17.—Domestic shares were weaker on the Boerse to-day. American securities closed firm.

APPROVES MONTICELLO PLAN.

Senate Adopts Resolution Looking to Purchase by Government.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Stripped of the preamble which some Senators thought committed Congress to the Democratic views of Thomas Jefferson, the resolution looking to the Government purchase of Monticello was adopted to-day by the Senate.

The measure authorizes an inquiry by a joint Congressional committee into the desirability of the purcnase, and directs an estimate of the cost. It has not been acted on by the House.

CANADIAN PRICES HIGHER.

Nearly 37 Per Cent. Advance Over Average of 1890-1899.

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, Ontario, July 17.—A statement issued to-day by the Department of Labor shows that wholesale prices in Canada advanced from 135.9 in May, previously the highest recorded, to 136.9 in June, as compared with 126.1 in June of last year.

The numbers are percentages in each case of the average price level prevailing during the ten years 1890-1899, the period selected by the department as the standard of comparison throughout its investigation into wholesale prices of some 250 commodities of representative character.

The estimate of the department for the month of June, therefore, shows prices to have been nearly 37 per cent. higher in that month than was the average for the decade 1890-1899.

The chief increases during June were in animals and meats, fodders, fruits and vegetables, hides and leather, there having been slight decreases in dairy products, prepared fish, sugars, coal and iron.

MAKING NEW FREIGHT RATES.

Southern Classification Committee Works Out Higher Tariff.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 17.—Representatives of thirty-nine railroads, composing the Classification Committee of the railroads of the South, who have been in conference here for the last three weeks wrestling with protests and problems arising from a new schedule of freight rates, have adjourned to meet next Thursday in Washington. There the decisions reached will be submitted to the Uniform Classification Committee and a representative of the United States Commerce Commission before the final adjustments are made.

Chairman W. R. Howe admitted last night that the new tariff, scheduled to become effective on Aug. 1, would revise the rates upward and increase the income of the railroads involved. He said, however, that they were so designed that the burden would be distributed and traffic promoted.

IRON AND STEEL MARKET ACTIVE

Price Advances Extended to Black and Galvanized Sheets and Other Articles.

UNUSUAL FOR THIS SEASON

Trade Journals Call the Demand Phenomenal—Failure of Mills to Meet Deliveries, One Explanation.

Activity continues in the iron and steel trade, and the broadening of demand has resulted in the extension of price advances to black and galvanized sheets, railroad spikes and rivets, bolts and nuts. An advance of $1 a ton is talked of as likely to be made in the near future in wire products. The phenomenal activity of this season, which usually witnesses a let-up, due to the slackening of trade in mid-Summer, is admitted this week by The Iron Age, which in its previous issue was inclined to belittle the volume of business since general advances in prices went into effect on July 1. It says:

> The output of steel works and rolling mills has been somewhat cut down by hot weather, but not enough to be regarded as a factor. There is pressure for deliveries in the heavier lines.
> Specifications for some products have kept up better than was expected after the rush in June, but in new contracts, as distinct from specifications, there has been such a slackening as was to be looked for after the heavy buying of May and June. The export trade is well maintained.

The Iron Age says of the advances in prices this week and of the return of the Jones & Laughlin Company to the wage scale from which they had made a 10 per cent. reduction when prices were at their low ebb:

> The advance in sheets made by the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company is $2 a ton on black sheets or to 2.05c. per pound for No. 28, $2 a ton on tin mill black plates or to 2c., and $3 a ton on galvanized sheets, or to 3.15c. for No. 28. The high price of spelter has forced a differential of 1.10c. between galvanized and black sheets, instead of the usual 1c. Independent sheet manufacturers may not all at once make the same advances as the leading interest, but all mills are so well employed that the new prices are likely to be established sooner than those announced in April.

Of the general situation The Iron Age says:

> The mills are counting on an important addition to new tonnage from pending car business, concerning which there is evidently more urgency than the railroads have shown heretofore. The Grand Trunk is in the market for 2,000 additional cars, the Boston & Albany for 5,000, the Denver & Rio Grande for 1,200, the St. Paul and the Southern for 7,000 each, and the Virginian Railway for 750, while the New York Central, Big Four, Lake Shore, and Michigan Central are reported to be figuring on 15,000.
>
> New rail orders have been relatively light. The Northern Pacific has bought 8,000 tons at Chicago and the Paris & Mount Pleasant Railroad 4,000 tons. A Southern line has placed 5,000 tons at Ensley, and the Pennsylvania has ordered 4,000 tons of Bessemer rails from an Eastern mill. Some of the railroads are seeking Fall deliveries, which the mill can no longer entertain.

The Iron Trade Review reports that in the last six months the Steel Corporation booked a larger tonnage of sheets, tin plates, tubes, and wire products than in any previous like period, and is still doing a large volume of business in these lines.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

When grain prices broke sharply late in the day following early firmness there was a sudden change in the aspect of the market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Activity developed, with prices rapidly mounting upward, the action of the grain markets being construed very favorably in its bearing upon stocks. There was a big run in of shorts, with about one-half of the day's total business of 33,460 shares handled in the final hour. Transactions took place in American Car & Foundry, Kansas City Southern, and American Malt at 16, the only sales of those stocks reported in Wall Street during the day.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Investor Buys New Lafayette Street Loft—Thirty-second Street Deal for Improvement—Maiden Lane Sale—Builder Acquires West Side Broadway Front—Bronx and Suburban Activity.

More activity characterized the realty market yesterday than has been the case for several days during the Summer period. In the middle Broadway district the best deal that has been consummated for some time was made in the sale of the new twelve-story loft at 237 and 239 Lafayette Street, facing the Spring Street Subway Station, and at the head of the small park known as Cleveland Square, situated at the junction of Lafayette, Centre, Spring, and Kenmare Streets. The loft covers a plot 50 by 100 feet, and was sold to John S. Melcher by the De Selding Brothers and E. H. Ludlow & Co. for the Citizens' Investing Comany, Dominick Abbate, President.

The building was completed about six months ago, and is entirely rented. It is in a section where many improvements have lately been made, and several business buildings have been erected in the neighborhood since the widening of Lafayette Street and the widening of Delancey Street, of which Kenmare Street is really a part, as an approach to the new bridge. The plot sold is also a few blocks north of the new Court House site.

In part payment the Citizens' Investing Company took the parcel at 27 and 29 Frankfort Street, about 80 feet east of William Street. The plot is 59 by 104, now covered with old structures which the new owners contemplate tearing down and improving with a modern commercial building especially adapted for the printing trade.

32d Street Deal for New Loft.

The sale of the property at 22 to 26 West Thirty-second Street, which has been under negotiations for several days, has just been closed by Corn & Co., who have sold the plot, 75 by 98.9, to the Midwest Realty Company, of which Henry Hellman is President. The two easterly houses have been sold by the brokers for Minturn Post Collins, and No. 26 by Mary K. Hilliard, L. T. and W. K. Sheffield. The old residences will be torn down at once and a sixteen-story loft erected on the site, for which plans are being prepared by the architects, Schwartz & Gross. The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company has arranged to make a building and permanent loan on the property of $525,000. The new structure is to be ready for occupancy by May or June, 1913.

Sale in Maiden Lane.

The William M. Benjamin Company, in conjunction with the Charles F. Noyes Company, has sold to an investor 121 Maiden Lane, extending through to 5 Fletcher Street, a six-story loft building covering lot about 24 by 85. The building is under lease to Smith & Nichols for a long term of years. The property was held at $60,000.

Another Loft for Twenty-ninth Street.

It was learned yesterday that Reinthal & Newman are the buyers of 104 West Twenty-ninth Street. It was recently reported that Ivan Frank & Co. of Tenth Street and Broadway had bought this property for their own occupancy.

No. 104, together with the properties 106, 108 and 110 West Twenty-ninth Street, is included in the plans that Reinthal & Newman have had drawn for the erection of a twelve-story building. The combined plot is 85 by 100 feet and has taken six years to accumulate, in which the brokers were William J. Roome & Co.

A Place for People
Who Are Hard to Please
The readiest buyers of Red Bank Estates are the people who are by nature "critical".
They come here with minds made up to be disappointed, and they are,—but happily so.
In the first place, Red Bank has every convenience and comfort that New York City affords.
Besides, the choicest country combines with splendid seashore here at Red Bank.
Nothing is left to be desired.
Commuters find trains every ten minutes, over the Pennsylvania and New Jersey Central Railroads.
Fast express steamers, also, make the trip between New York and Atlantic Highlands in a little over an hour—and Atlantic Highlands is within 15 minutes of Red Bank by trolley.
Red Bank Estates is a new addition to Red Bank, and has found a ready market within the township itself—a rare tribute to any property.
Prospective bungalow builders find here some splendid sites at a remarkably low cost. They find, too, that assistance is generously accorded them in the work of construction, if desired.
Red Bank Estates
Lack of means need hardly exclude anyone from this delightful community.
On the other hand, wealth will scarcely purchase any more desirable place to live.
Further facts about Red Bank Estates are contained in the book, "From Pillar To Post". A copy will be gladly mailed to you on request.

FOR LABOR CABINET POST.

House Passes Sulzer's Bill Creating the New Department.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—The House of Representatives to-day passed the Sulzer bill providing for the creation of a new Executive Department of the Government to be known as the Department of Labor, with its head serving as a member of the Cabinet. The bill had been urged for the last few years by the American Federation of Labor and other labor organizations, and was reported last April from the Committee on Labor by Representative Wilson of Pennsylvania, one of the prominent labor members of the House.

The bill proposes to transfer the Commissioner General of Immigration, the Commissioners of Immigration, the Bureau of Immigration, the Immigration Service at large, the Bureau of Labor, and the Commissioner of Labor from the Department of Commerce and Labor to the Department of Labor.

The new department would have authority to collect and publish statistics relative to the conditions of labor and distribution of labor products, and would allow the new labor member of the Cabinet to call on other executive departments for such statistical data as they may have which would be valuable for such purpose. It would also authorize the new Secretary to act as mediator and to appoint Commissioners of Conciliation in labor disputes, thereby, the advocates of the bill contend, gaining the influence of the Government toward industrial peace.

For many years there has been a widespread desire among labor leaders for the establishment of this proposed new department. Advocates of the bill in Congress assert that the great development of industrial life since the introduction of machinery and the large number of wage earners frequently employed by a single individual or corporation has made the labor question one of the greatest problems of the age.

The present Bureau of Labor was created by Congress in 1884 as part of the Department of Interior. Four years later Congress created a Department of Labor without giving it the rating or dignity of an Executive Department, and the Commissioner of Labor has never been a member of the President's Cabinet. When the Department of Commerce and Labor was created the Department of Labor was merged with it as a bureau. Now it is to be shifted into the proposed new Department of Labor.

EDUCATION NOTES.

Secretary A. Emerson Palmer of the Board of Education recently made a request of the Municipal Civil Service Commission for an examination for promotion from the position of cleaner to that of janitor and janitor with knowledge of steam heating. The Assistant Chief Examiner has informed the commission that the requested examination would substantially be limited to cleaners employed in the Boroughs of Queens and Richmond, although the resulting eligible list might be certified to fill vacancies in any borough, and that, for this reason alone, it would not be advisable to grant the request. He therefore has recommended that it be denied. The commission has adopted his recommendation.

The request of the Board of Education for approval of the reassignment of Joost C. Slingerland, janitor engineer, who had been on leave of absence without pay for six months, has been granted by the Municipal Civil Service Commission.

City Superintendent Maxwell will take a well-earned vacation in August. His place will be filled during his absence by Associate City Superintendents Edson, Haaren, and Walsh, each in turn.

The Committee on By-Laws and Legislation has received an opinion from the Corporation Counsel sustaining the committee in its contention that high school teachers who were appointed by the Board of Superintendents as fit and meritorious must also be approved by the Board of Examiners in order to obtain the superior merit mark. The Corporation Counsel also states that a teacher who receives the superior merit mark in the ninth year of service may be refused approval for the twelfth year by the Board of Examiners of it is not satisfied with her record.

The action taken by the Board of Education at its last meeting in changing the boundaries of the Brooklyn school districts makes it necessary, under the provisions of the Revised Charter, for Secretary Palmer to file maps of these changes with the Mayor, and a duplicate map with the Brooklyn Borough President. Mr. Palmer said yesterday that this is the first time this has been necessary since 1902, there having been no change in the local school districts since that time until the present.

Mr. Palmer expressed puzzlement yesterday at a recent resolution adopted by the Board of Aldermen. It was introduced by Alderman McCourt. It requests the Board of Education, in the matter of engaging tuners for pianos used in the public schools, to give preference to those persons recommended by the New York Association for the Blind.

The Board of Aldermen has also adopted a resolution to prevent obstruction or interference with fire drills in the public schools. It makes it unlawful for a driver of a vehicle to go within fifty feet of a public school building while a fire drill is in progress or in any way to obstruct of to interfere with the fire drill. Violation of the ordinance is punishable by a fine of from $5 to $10 or, in default of payment, imprisonment for a period of not more than ten days.

FAST TRAIN DRIVERS BEFORE ARBITRATORS

Testify at Hearing on Wages That They Get $1,600 and $2,300 a Year.

THE 20TH CENTURY RUN

Time Taken in Inspection and Reports—Worthington Sums Up for the Roads.

Engineers who take some of the fastest trains over the railroads east of Chicago, including the Twentieth Century Limited, described their work yesterday before the Arbitration Commission, which is sitting at Manhattan Beach and which will decide whether or not the men are entitled to the new scale of wages and working conditions that were rejected recently by the General Managers.

The engineers were questioned by Warren S. Stone, Grand Chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and the object of their testimony was to support his contentions that their work has increased and that their risk is greater than at the time of the last wage adjustment.

Dean Wood was introduced by Mr. Stone as "one of the crack performers" on the New York Central. He said he was 46 years old, had been an engineer twenty-four years, and lived in Syracuse. He pilots the Twentieth Century Limited between Syracuse and Albany. In answer to Mr. Stone's questions he said:

"I am called for duty at 12:15 A. M. and am due to leave Syracuse at 3:45. I get to the round house about 1:15. I examine the work report and look over the engine to see that the work needed has been done on it. Then I give the engine a general inspection. I ride to the depot on the engine and take charge. I compare my watch with the standard clock in the station, and wait for the train to come in. When the other engine cuts off I back up to the train, and, after the engine is attached, test the brakes, put on the steam heat, and get the train orders. Then I am ready for the start.

"The running time is 2 hours and 42 minutes for the distance of 148 miles. If the train is late in getting to Syracuse, I am allowed to make up twelve minutes on the run. It takes eight minutes to get out of Syracuse, a distance of a mile. There are nine slow-downs on the run, one, in going through Utica, to eight miles an hour. We scoop water four times and have to slow down for it each time. Our speed is seventy to seventy-five miles an hour after a slow-down.

"There are 151 stop signals in the 148 miles, and I must locate and observe each of them in all kinds of weather. We arrive at Albany at 6:27, when I examine the engine and report any work that is needed on it to the work clerk. I sign the time card for the work I have done, make a report to the master mechanic, draw up a report to be telegraphed to the Superintendent stating whether there have been any detentions or not, and also make a report to the chief signalmen as to whether any signals were out of order. All this takes about an hour after arrival.

"On the return trip I leave at 6:49 P. M. I get around about 4 o'clock and make the same preparations as for the trip down. I arrive at Syracuse at 9:32 and have the same series of reports to make out, which again takes about an hour."

A. H. Smith, Vice President of the New York Central, conducted the cross-examination of his road's engineer.

"You do this every other day, don't you?" he asked. "You perform no service the next day?"

Mr. Wood said that was the case. He said his compensation was $12.45 a trip or $186 a month.

"How many hours out of the forty-eight are you performing service?" asked Mr. Smith.

"About twelve," was the answer.

Mr. Stone asked some more questions to emphasize the amount of time an engineer has to put it besides the time he is actually on the road, to which he referred in his preliminary argument.

"Why do you get around two or three hours before it is time to start?" he asked.

"To see that everything is all right. If I didn't do that early and anything was wrong it would be too late to fix it."

C. B. Gallagher was introduced as one of the fastest engineers on the Boston & Maine. He has been an engineer for thirty years, and is 51 years old. His run is from White River Junction, Vt., to Springfield, Mass. He said he was due to leave at 11:25 A. M., but reported at 10.

"I go to the engine house," he said, "look over the repair book, inspect the bulletin board, find the engine and examine it to see whether the special work required has been done. I see that the lubricators and sandbox are filled. I look over the firebox and the greasebox, get the hand tools, take on water, get the signals, go to the station, set my watch, inspect the register book, back up to the train, try the brakes, and am ready for the run.

"The run is 123 miles in three nours and thirty-five minutes, with five stops. Part of it is on the Boston & Maine and part on the Vermont Central. We operate under two sets of rules, and a good many of them are different. We have to know both and apply the right set to the part of the run we are on. It is single track part of the way and double track another part. There are 270 signals each way. There are also forty-five interlocking switches. We have to stop twice for water.

"After we get in I go to the roundhouse, give the engine a thorough inspection, and turn it over to the hostler. If I find any work that needs to be done I report it. I also report any detentions and any signals out of order.

"I put in between five and a half and six hours on the run. I make the run back at night the same day I make the run down. The next day I lay off. I consider that I do two days' work in the two days, as I start at 10 in the morning, and it is from 1:15 to 1:45 the next morning when I leave the roundhouse. I get $5.12½ a trip."

Charles Moore, who handles a passenger train on the New Haven from Springfield to New Haven, then takes another train from New Haven to Stamford, was another witness. He said there were 144 signals to be watched in the 104 miles between Springfield and Stamford. He makes the round trip four days a week, for which he receives $34.10.

"Do you think all these signals increase the risk?" asked W. M. Duncan of counsel for the railroads.

"The risk of employment, yes," said Mr. Moore. "It makes that many more chances of getting into trouble."

M. K. Packer, who guides the Southern Limited on the Reading between Jersey City and Washington, detailed his routine, and said he had to examine five bulletin boards, as he ran under five Superintendents, and to carry six time cards. There had been some discussion of the inspections of the engines, which all the men had testified they made. They admitted that the engines were inspected by men employed by the roads for that purpose, but said they went over the work, too, for their own safety.

"What would result," asked Mr. Stone, "if you went out with the headlight empty? Who would be blamed?"

"I would," said Mr. Packer.

H. J. Hughes, whose run is from Pittsburgh to Cumberland on the Mountain Division of the Baltimore & Ohio, testified that he got $13.28 for a round trip of 312 miles, and earned $196 a month.

Mr. Stone said his witnesses to-day would be men who pulled heavy freight trains.

Before the witnesses were examined B. A. Worthington, President of the Chicago & Alton, concluded his argument on behalf of the fifty-two roads affected. He declared that engineers were at least as well paid as other skilled workmen, and that the railroads, because of the expenditures to which they have been put for safety devices and by other legislative requirements, and the money that will have to be expended in the near future for improvements, are in no position to take on an increased wage cost.

"The railroads," said Mr. Worthington, "claim that the existing wages are fair and liberal because railroad employes are as well if not beter paid than labor in other employments, and engineers constitute the highest paid class of employes in the railroad service.

"The railroads need money for all sorts of things. We feel that our employes ought to realize that, and we feel that when they are getting liberally rewarded for their services they ought to be ready and willing to help us. Because if the return to capital is to be constantly narrowed down, we are soon going to reach a period where capital will not have much confidence in railroad investments in this country, and the ultimate effect will be to retard the growth of the country. There is not any question about that; that is something that you gentlemen, it seems to me, want to consider very carefully."

Chairman Straus announced yesterday that C. William A. Veditz, Chief Examiner for the Tariff Board, had been appointed Statistical Secretary to the Arbitration Commission.

MAY EXONERATE FLAGMAN.

Woman Tower Operator Once in Asylum, Wreck Investigators Hear.

CHICAGO, July 17.—Discovery that Mrs. F. A. Wilcox, the tower operator at Western Springs, Ill., where a wreck occurred on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad last Sunday, costing the lives of thirteen persons, once was confined in the Dunning Asylum, caused Coroner Hoffman to-day to summon her for interrogation to-morrow.

Mrs. Wilcox will be questioned at length by the Coroner, who has announced his intention of prolonging the inquiry until the blame for the wreck is fixed. More than fifty other railroad employes have been summoned.

P. S. Eustis, passenger traffic manager of the road, to-day issued a statement regarding the report sent to Coroner Hoffman about Mrs. Wilcox, in which he says:

> On May 20, 1911, a letter was addressed to the chief dispatcher at Aurora, informing him that Mrs. Wilcox had been in an insane hospital, and that it was thought she was not right at that time. A company physician made an examination and reported that Mrs. Wilcox was in normal condition both physically and mentally; that he learned while she was in the hospital in Dunning in 1909, she was returned in a few days, as there seemed to be no occasion whatever for holding her. He was informed that ill feeling existed between the party who made the complaint and Mrs. Wilcox and we concluded that the charge that she was unbalanced was prompted by malice.

The investigation by the railroad officials exonerated Mrs. Wilcox of blame and laid the responsibility for the disaster on George Brownson, engineer of the fast mail, who was killed, and Frank Woodworth, flagman of the passenger train.

BOMB BLOWS HIS HAND OFF.

Boy Found It in Front of Church and Hit a Post with It.

Persons in Third Avenue near 134th Street, the Bronx, yesterday afternoon saw a young man strike a piece of gas pipe he carried against a lamp post. Instantly the pipe exploded, blowing away part of the young man's hand.

Policeman Fox of the Alexander Avenue Station called Dr. Salinger from the Lincoln Hospital. The surgeon dressed the hand of the youth, who was James Maino, 18 years old, of 227 East 113th Street. He said that he had found the pipe the night before in front of the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel in 115th Street, between First and Pleasant Avenues, where the annual feast of Our Lady of Mount Carmel was in progress.

He said he had wondered what the pipe was, and had carried it around with him until last night, when he visited the Bronx to meet a friend. He was swinging the pipe and carelessly struck it against the lamp post.

The police are trying to learn how the bomb came to be where Maino found it.

FOG DELAYS THE OCEANIC.

Liner Sighted Several Small Icebergs on Long Course.

The White Star liner Oceanic arrived yesterday from Southampton, Cherbourg, and Queenstown with 272 cabin passengers an dmails. She was delayed six hours by fog. Capt. Harry Smith reported sighting several small icebergs coming over the long course taken at this time of the year, which is 110 miles further south than the short northern course which begins on Aug. 15.

On board the ship was the body of Joseph L. Hudson, ex-Mayor of Detroit, who died in Paris. Members of the family took charge of the body at the pier.

ASK ESTIMATE BOARD FOR A DOCK HEARING

Maritime Associates Urge That It Be Ready to Act on Water Front Improvements.

RADICAL TALK AT MEETING

Board Is Criticised, and Suggestion That State Take Over the Dock Department Is Applauded.

The mass meeting of the Maritime Association at 78 Broad Street yesterday to protest against any further delay on the part of the Board of Estimate in the matter of harbor improvements was marked by a most aggressive attitude on the part of representatives of various industrial and commercial organizations. The statement was made that the city officials seemed to be incompetent to handle such a large and important department, and that while the members of the Board of Estimate were wasting time in trifling with the shipping interests of this port other cities were meeting with success in enticing much trade away from this port.

Henry A. Meyer of the Jamaica Bay Improvement Association said it was time to start an agitation for the transfer of the Dock Department to the State. The [illegible] warmly applauded. Mr. Meyer also said:

"The cities of Bremen and Hamburg have spent $100 for every man, woman and child on harbor improvements. Those cities see the necessity of this, but our officials seem to be blind to the city's interests."

There was a good deal of talk of a sort that got on the nerves of Deputy Controller Fisher, and President Taylor of the Association introduced him as the representative of Controller Prendergast. Mr. Fisher climbed upon the little platform and declared that the Board of Estimate needed no defense. He explained that it was necessary for the board to investigate every proposition that entailed the making of an appropriation.

"If the board acceded to all of the requests of heads of departments," said Mr. Fisher, "the city would be bankrupt. These requests this year amounted to half a billion dollars."

Mr. Fisher said that the investing public could absorb only a certain amount of bonds each year, and that the bond sales for the last three years ran from $40,000,000 to $65,000,000. He told of the $170,000,000 that will be needed this year for water and the $125,000,000 for subways. Then he said:

"The Board of Estimate must sift the good from the bad. I have no doubt but that in the early Fall a successful plan for dock improvements will be adopted. During this inert period the city has been growing in financial strength."

J. J. Rooney of the Merchants' Association said that all that the city was asked to do was to take up the plans submitted to it by Dock Commissioner Tomkins and decide whether or not they covered the improvements that were absolutely necessary. He said that the Dock Department was not only self-sustaining, but yielded a large revenue to the city.

"This port," said Mr. Rooney, "is what has made this city great. No thanks are due to the gentlemen who are blocking improvements for this greatness. Montreal is taking our grain trade away from us. Every harbor from Galveston to Montreal is being improved, and every one of them is bidding for increased trade. How can we expect to hold our business in the face of better facilities offered by other ports? We lack speed, ginger, and public spirit. Every dollar put in dock improvements will return five or ten dollars."

Mr. Fisher objected to some of the statements made by Mr. Rooney and interjected with some heat:

"I said that the Board of Estimate needed no defense."

"The Board of Estimate has taken no action," retorted Mr. Rooney. "You know there are substitute plans before the board."

"There are four sets of plans before the board," admitted Mr. Fisher.

Mr. Rooney thought the plans of the Dock Commissioner should be first considered, and said that it was news to him if the board could take from the heads of departments the power given to them by law.

Dock Commissioner Tomkins did not relish the line of argument. He has been in office about two and a half years and has spent nearly two years in studying the harbors abroad and in this country. His plans were the result of the knowledge he obtained from this study. He liked his own plans best, but he did not want to be drawn into any acrimonious discussion with the Mayor and the other members of the Board of Estimate.

"There is great danger in any unfriendly feeling that may arise between the Dock Department and the Board of Estimate," said Mr. Tomkins. "The two should co-operate."

Among others who spoke were C. H. Callaghan, Chairman of the Pier Committee of the association; E. Outerbridge, Chairman of the Committee on Harbor and Shipping of the Chamber of Commerce; James T. Holle, Secretary of the Merchants' Association, and Borough President Cromwell of Richmond. Among those present were R. A. C. Smith, Chairman of the New York State Commission to Investigate Port Conditions; Fred Dalzell of the Board of Trade and Transportation, and James L. Wells of the Bronx.

Resolutions were adopted asking the Board of Estimate to set aside a day for a public hearing when the whole question can be threshed out. The resolutions also protested against the Board of Estimate initiating any plans for the improvement of the waterfront and urged the board to publicly consider all of the plans submitted to it and be ready to act as soon as the courts shall have passed upon the bond exemption.

CAR HITS AN AMBULANCE.

Doctor Drives Wagon Back to Hospital with Driver Inside.

A Seventh Avenue car, in charge of Motorman Patrick Cahill, hit an ambulance of St. Vincent's Hospital at 7 o'clock last night, when the ambulance turned out of Eleventh Street to answer a sick call at Elizabeth and Grand Streets. The ambulance was overturned, and Thomas Ganley, the driver, was caught under it. Dr. Joseph Kilborne was thrown out and bruised and shaken up. He and passengers from the car righted the ambulance, put Ganley in it, and Dr. Kilborne drove it back to the hospital. It was found Ganley had a broken collarbone, but was not hurt otherwise.

BOY AERONAUT KILLED.

Falls to His Death in Parachute as Mother Did Before Him.

QUINCY, Mass., July 17.—Lawrence Stafford of Dorchester fell 2,000 feet to his death in Quincy Bay to-day as he was attempting a parachute jump at Hough's Neck. His parachute failed to open after he began the drop from the hot-air balloon, and he fell into shallow water in sight of several hundred people. His body was found in the mud with nearly every bone broken.

Stafford's father, Ernest Deforest Stafford, and his mother were both balloonists and parachute jumpers. His father committed suicide in 1910, and his mother was killed in making a parachute jump at Revere Beach.
